Hill Testifies Fish Ordered Him to Mail Out Nazi Propaganda

N. Y. Representative Introduced Him To Viereck, Clerk Asserts on Stand

By Dillard Stokes
Post Staff Writer

"I am an American!" said George Hill yesterday, and, turning on the people who got him to lie, he told the truth at last—as a witness against the German agent, George Sylvester Viereck.

Hill did not say who was protected by his lying, or who "advised" him to keep on lying when he resolved to tell the truth, after he was indicted for perjury. That may come out today.

Hill did say that his boss, Hamilton Fish, introduced him to the German agent in Fish's office on Capitol Hill, and that Fish instructed him to mail franked speeches for Viereck. Hill told how he operated the Capitol end of the Nazi agent's propaganda machine.

Fish to Appear Today

Fish will have a chance today to tell what he knows about it all. He has agreed to appear as a witness for the prosecution this morning.

After court adjourned—with Hill's examination still not finished—Prescott Dennett, Washington henchman of the German agent, was jailed, in $3500 bail—because the daughter of a witness for Viereck was keeping him posted on what happened in court.

Dennett was not supposed to learn this, as the Government wants to use him, too, on the witness stand.

Viereck is accused of violating the Foreign Agents Act, by concealing the use of Congressmen and their franks by his propaganda machine. It was well into the fourth day of his trial when Special Prosecutor William Power Maloney and Edward J. Hickey, jr., had Hill brought up from the prisoners' cells at the District Court.

Swears to Tell Truth

The mild, bewildered-looking little man—who was gassed and decorated in the World War—wore the same shabby brown suit he had on when he was sent to jail two weeks ago, being denied bail after he was sentenced to 2 to 6 years in prison for two perjuries.

Blinking behind his spectacles at the courtroom lights, Hill took the witness chair beside Justice F. Dickinson Letts, who sentenced him to prison.

"I do," said Hill, loud and clear, when asked to swear that he would

'Positively Did Not'

Ewing Takes Stand to Deny Charge He Attacked Girl, 19

Ashen-faced and haggard, speaking in a firm but at times almost inaudible voice, Orman W. Ewing yesterday directly denied that he had criminally assaulted a 19-year-old Government girl in a Sixteenth Street apartment house last October.

At the end of an hour-long session on the witness stand, the 55-year-old landlord and former Utah politician was asked by Defense Attorney Charles Henry Smith:

"You have heard her accuse you of coming into that room and forcing her to have intimate relations with you."

"Yes."

"Did that occur?"

"It did not," Ewing replied, his voice so low that his words could scarcely be distinguished in the front rows of the hushed courtroom. "It positively did not, Mr. Smith."

Cross-examination of Ewing by Assistant United States Attorneys John W. Fihelly and Charles B. Murray is scheduled to begin when court convenes this morning. Whether the defense will rest its case when the defendant leaves the stand, his counsel declined to say.

Ewing's testimony, which took in his activities for the entire week-end of October 25 and 26, came after members of his family, together with Miss Hester Chamberlin—coowner with Ewing of the Sixteenth Street apartment—had been called to the stand in his behalf.

To the jury of 11 men and 1 woman, who have been asked by the prosecution to return a death sentence against him, the defendant related in detail his movements on the eve of the alleged attack.

He said that he had spent the evening making several business trips in the city, attending to complaints from tenants, and in working on legal and business affairs in connection with an addition being built on the apartment.

He was working, he said, in Miss Chamberlin's apartment, which also was used as an office. The blonde complainant was said to have been staying in the apartment at that time as the guest of Miss Chamberlin, having come to Washington from Utah two weeks before to take a Government position.

Ewing said that the girl came in from a date that night about 1:30 a. m.—just after he had phoned his wife to tell her that he would spend the night there because of the late hour.

He asserted that he and the two

Tax Conferees Near Accord On Formula

Evening Parley At George's Home Smoothes Differences

Treasury and Congressional staffs of tax experts last night were reported near agreement on methods of raising some three billion dollars additional in corporate revenue and another two billions from individuals.

"We believe there will not be any serious differences on any of the big, basic problems of tax policy," Chairman George of the Senate Finance Committee told reporters following a tax conference at his hotel apartment.

His remark was interpreted as meaning the long-standing quarrel between Treasury and Congress over the twice rejected invested capital base of excess profits taxation may not be renewed in the coming-seven-billion-dollar tax program.

In Parley Two Hours

George and Chairman Robert L. Doughton, of the House Ways and Means Committee, sat for more than two hours with tax staffs representing the Treasury and the Joint Congressional Committee on Internal Revenue, which have been trying for weeks to reconcile in advance major differences on tax policy.

By major tax questions, George said he meant the big corporate and individual tax structures, which must carry the bulk of the tax load. He indicated the present structures may be left largely undisturbed, and increased revenue chiefly raised through adjustments in rates.

On the 2 billion in additional revenues that must be raised from loop-hole plugging and excises, George indicated there had not yet been an attempt at agreement, but the Treasury more than likely would again recommend mandatory joint income tax returns, rejected

War Jobless Subsidy Beaten In Committee

House Group Rejects It 16 to 8, Despite President's Appeal

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

The Administration's program to pay 300 million dollars to war-displaced workers in Government-subsidized unemployment benefits yesterday was rejected hands down by the House Ways and Means Committee.

In the face of a Presidential message and repeated appeals through Administration leaders, the committee overrode a move for a compromise and tabled the legislation, 16 to 8.

The action, worst domestic policy defeat dealt the President since the outbreak of the war, followed mass opposition from State officials and a sharp committee break on war jobless policies.

Held an Incentive to Idleness

Committee opponents charged the program, by temporarily raising jobless benefits to new heighss, would encourage idleness at a time when workers are most needed in factory and farm and make difficult a return to current unemployment benefits.

Senate Kills Pensions by 75-to-5 Vote

Downey Proposal To Pay Needy Aged $30 a Month Is Quickly Rejected

By Robert De Vore
Post Staff Writer

The Senate last night reversed itself on the question of annuities for members of Congress.

Then it decided that with the Nation in peril this is no time, either, to vote $30 pensions for the country's needy aged.

Less than five weeks after it judged so-called Congressional pensions to be proper by approving their inclusion in a provision of the new Federal retirement law, the Senate voted repeal of the section on a 75 to 5 roll call.

House Action Monday

At almost the same time, the House Civil Service Committee, after all day hearings, voted to report a repeal resolution "without recommendation," a decision which paved the way for action in the House on Monday.

Twenty-eight Senators who on January 19 voted to bring themselves into the Federal retirement system, last night supported the Byrd repeal amendment in a historic demonstration of concern for the opinion of a protesting electorate.

Against the rush to make peace with voters stood Senators Clark of Idaho, Mead of New York, and Wallgren of Washington (Democrats); Nye (Republican) of North Dakota, and La Follette (Progressive) of Wisconsin.

Downey Proposal Beaten

All but Clark voted for annuities January 19. Clark was not present then. Wallgren represents the State where the outcry against pensions first gained momentum.

For most of this week and part of last, the Senate, under the anxious guidance of Senator Barkley (Democrat), of Kentucky, the majority leader, labored to set itself right with the country. Yesterday its predicament was complicated by Senator Downey (Democrat), California's "ham and eggs every Thursday" man, who attempted to use the situation to advance his advocacy of the Townsend pension plan by bringing to the floor an amendment to provide $30 monthly Federal pensions for all needy persons 60 years of age and older.

The Senate's pension bloc quickly rallied to Downey's support, an advantage Barkley and other leaders finally upset with impassioned oratory and adroit maneuvering, although it required most of the afternoon to do so, on a 49-to-22 record vote.

Now Goes to House

Downey first presented his pension plan as a substitute for the Byrd amendment. He withdrew the substitute when convinced by his backers that his measure would stand a better chance if offered as an amendment to the Byrd amendment. Finally he agreed to withhold his proposal "in order to help alleviate anxiety" to dispose of the Byrd repealer.

Downey's plan was then defeated as an amendment to a pending Naval Affairs Committee bill to which the repealer also was an

U. S. Sub Sinks Ship Off Japan; Cripps Enters British Cabinet In Shakeup, Beaverbrook Out

'Beaver' Coming Here On Production Job; Lyttleton Supplants Him in London Post

By Drew Middleton
Associated Press Staff Writer

London (Friday), Feb. 20.—Sir Stafford Cripps, former ambassador to Moscow and a rising star in British politics, was named lord privy seal and House of Commons leader by Prime Minister Winston Churchill today in a cabinet reshuffle dictated by parliamentary criticism over Britain's recent military reverses and by the approach of vital spring offensives.

Oliver Lyttleton, known as "one of Winston's bright young men," was made minister of state in charge of production to supplant the dynamic Lord Beaverbrook, who declined to join the new war cabinet on grounds of health.

Beaverbrook, who organized Britain's aircraft and tank production, will go to the United States to carry on the task of pooling the resources of the United Nations.

War Cabinet Cut to Seven

Lyttleton, who has been minister of state in the Middle East, will join the war cabinet, reduced from nine to seven members, and will exercise "general supervision over production."

Laborite Sir Stafford Cripps replaces Clement Attlee as lord privy seal and will take the place of Churchill himself in facing a House of Commons which has shown increasing resentment over the fact the prime minister has not shorn himself of some of his portfolios.

Attlee, in response to dominions demands for representation in the war cabinet, becomes secretary of state for dominion affairs.

Dropped from the war cabinet were the veterans, Sir Kingsley Wood, chancellor of the exchequer, and Arthur Greenwood, Labor minister without portfolio.

The Holdovers

The holdovers who will direct British strategy at a crucial moment in history include Prime Minister Churchill, who remains as defense minister and first lord of the treasury; Attlee; Labor Minister Ernest Bevin; Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, and the lord president of the council, Sir John Anderson.

Churchill disarmed his opponents, gathering for a bitter house debate over British war reverses, by announcing the changes in which he gave way on all major points save one—that of his own retention of the ministery of defense.

Attlee, as a direct representative of the dominions, answers the repeated Australian requests for a place in the war cabinet.

Appointment of Lyttelton was a guarantee that a younger man will boss Britain's production effort. Cripps will lift much work from Churchill's shoulders by being his stand-in for House of Commons sessions.

Oil of the Indies Lost to Japan If U. S. Helps Dutch in Time

By H. R. Knickerbocker
Copyright, 1942, by Chicago Sun

Batavia, (Delayed) Feb. 18.—Japanese have lost the oil of the Indies and thereby they have lost the principal objective of their war.

This is of such vast importance to the people of the United States and to all of our Allies that it was worth traveling 15,000 miles to learn that it is not propoganda, but glorious fact.

Far more important, however, is the somber fact, also truly understandable only here on the spot, that unless United States weapons and men, but chiefly fighter planes, reach here with all possible speed and in sufficient numbers, then the Japanese may, by reboring the wells, regain in part the oil they have lost.

There is in the opinion of many military observers here only one possible alternative to sending here those air, land and naval reinforcements which would make easier the defense of this island.

That alternative is for the United States air or naval forces or both to attack Japan proper.

It is believed by many persons who know Japan best that the bombardment of any important point in Japan itself would most probably lead to the return of many units of Japanese air forces, especially the fighter planes, for the protection of the homeland.. This would delay the expected attack upon Java by precious weeks.

As one put it:

"A half-dozen—no, just two—Flying Fortresses over Japan, or a dozen bombers from an aircraft carrier might change the history of the whole Pacific. The Japanese at home so far haven't felt this war at all. It would be most salutary to teach them war is painful and their high command could not afford to ignore such an attack."

A military observer said:

"If we can hold Java we can use it as a base from which our bombers can go out and prevent the Japanese from reconstructing the oil fields. If we lose Java, where can we operate from?"

The answer to that is usually given as Australia, but Australia is as far from here as Los Angeles is from New York, as I learned in two days of continuous flight from Sydney to Batavia.

Two hours after I arrived here I met the last two British officers to

U-Boats Attack At Three Points In Caribbean

Two Ships Anchored Off Port-of-Spain Damaged by Blasts

Axis submarines, in defiance of American patrols, have struck again at three points in the Caribbean, including Port-of-Spain, Trinidad, site of a United States naval and air base.

Two ships at anchorage in the Gulf of Paria, off Port-of-Spain, were damaged by explosions caused "presumably" by a U-boat attack.

A submarine meantime shelled the Dutch West Indies island of Aruba, but failed to damage the world's largest oil refinery located there. United States bombers immediately attacked the U-boat and "probably" sank it.

Submarines also made another attack in the waters off the Dutch island of Curacao, and sunk an oil tanker of Panamanian registry—the eighth tanker bagged by the underseas prowlers in four days.

In addition, the Chilean naval undersecretariat at Santiago reported the Chilean steamer Arica had radioed that it heard an American ship's distress call saying the ship was under torpedo attack in the Caribbean.

Curacao was blacked out last night, with every home, store and

Last Bastion

By the Associated Press

Batavia (Friday), Feb. 20.—A fighter-escorted Japanese bombing attack on the inland Java city of Bandoeng, headquarters of the Netherlands East Indies army, was disclosed this morning following announcement that American troops as well as American fighter and bomber pilots now stand shoulder-to shoulder with other United Nation's reinforcements here.

As the Allied troops worked together in preparation for the Japanese offensive expected against this major Allied position, the last in the south Pacific except Australia, 12 Japanese bombers and 20 fighters attacked Bandoeng yesterday and inflicted some damage.

9 Downed at Sourabaya

Dutch fighters got into the air promptly, and there followed aerial fighting in which one Japanese bomber was declared probably shot down. Two Dutch fighters were lost, the pilot of one saving himself by parachute.

It was also disclosed today that eight Japanese bombers and one fighter were shot down in a Wednesday attack on Sourabaya, the Java

American Fliers Down Six of 27 Nipponese Planes Raiding Sourabaya

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

America's Far Eastern submarine force has again taken the offensive, the Navy Department disclosed last night, striking at enemy sea lanes close to Japan and sinking a 5000-ton cargo vessel.

At the same time, the War Department announced that 16 United States Army pursuit planes fought an aerial battle with 27 Japanese craft over the principal Dutch naval base at Sourabaya, Java, and shot down six of them.

These successes for American forces in the Pacific were revealed after an earlier report from the Philippines told of increasing pressure on Gen. Douglas MacArthur's lines on Bataan Peninsula, and enemy troop movements indicating an early major attack.

Sinking Near Japan

No details were given by the Navy on the submarine action. A brief communique announced merely that "a United States submarine has sunk a 5000-ton cargo ship in the East China Sea."

But to Naval men here, it meant that undersea-craft of the Asiatic Fleet had returned to Japanese waters—where earlier in the war they sank three enemy ships within sight of the Japanese coastline. The East China Sea is north of the Philippines, between Formosa and the enemy homeland.

It was the fifteenth Jap ship sunk by an American submarine in the war.

In the aerial fight over Sourabaya, a formation of 16 American Curtiss P-40s jumped a force of 25 heavy Jap bombers and two fighter planes which came above the base in four successive waves.

One U. S. Plane Lost

Five of the big enemy bomber and one fighter were shot down, while one of our pursuit planes was lost. The American pilot, however, parachuted to safety.

The report of 16 United States fighter planes in the air over Java showed a strengthening of our forces there. It was the largest number yet announced in action at once.

The morning War Department communique disclosing that the Japs were increasing the "heat" on MacArthur's outnumbered forces, said that the pressure was particularly heavy on the defenders' right flank, where the only road down Bataan Peninsula runs.

MacArthur also reported a "relatively minor local action" in which his troops captured three enemy artillery pieces, several flame throwers and ordnance and signal equipment. Army officers here said there have been no reports that the Japs have used flame throwers in the fighting to date.

Texts of the communiques telling of the action follow:

29 From D.C. Area Are Among 2209 Japanese Captured

The Navy Department announced last night that 1009 officers and men and 1200 civilians have "presumably" been taken prisoner by the Japs in China and Pacific island outposts. The prisoners of war include 29 from the Washington area.

The list is headed by Maj. James P. S. Devereux, of Chevy Chase, who commanded the Marine garrison which sank seven Japanese warships and held Wake Island against the invaders for 14 days.

The prisoner list, the Navy Department said, is based on the last available reports from Shanghai, Peiping, Tientsin, Guam and Wake.

Mayris Chaney Pirouettes Into Radio Health Show Job

By Christine Sadler
Post Staff Writer

As the Office of Civilian Defense continued in the throes of reorganization, word reached its halls yesterday that Mayris Chaney will continue her physical fitness activities via a large-paying radio program definitely NOT sponsored by the Government.

After deducting $4800 for living expenses, according to the information, Miss Chaney will give her new salary to the American Red Cross.

The dancer, friend of Mrs. Roosevelt, was making a $4600 "subsistence" wage as director of folk and children's programs in OCD's physical fitness division. She offered to resign Wednesday after several radio offers with commercial tie-ups.

"Her program will be built around her interests in defense fitness for children and she can continue with many of the ideas she worked out while with OCD," declared one of her friends from Philadelphia, where the physical fitness division has headquarters.

Blame Defeat on Generals

Daladier, Blum Tell Court At Riom It's Unconstitutional

By Taylor Henry
Associated Press Staff Writer

Riom, Feb. 19.—France's supreme court took under advisement tonight the question of its own constitutionality and, by implication, that of the whole Petain regime, after a violent attack upon it led by former Premiers Leon Blum and Edouard Daladier, two of five defendants, at the opening session of the French "war guilt" trial.

Thus as the trial opened to fix the responsibility for the defeat of France, the accused leaders of the Third Republic turned the tables and took the offensive against the right of the court to try them.

After a brief response from the prosecutor, who argued the court was set up specifically to try the defendants and not to consider the legality of the Petain laws, the president of the court announced a decision would be given soon.

The first clash came in a dramatic break between Gen. Maurice Gustave Gamelin, aged former Allied generalissimo, and the other defendants on the question of whether the cause of France's defeat was military or political.

The ailing Gamelin, in quavering but resolute voice, read a declaration of refusal to have anything to do with the trial. He said he was doing this for the honor of the army, and with a clear conscience.

Blum, the Socialist popular front premier, snapped Gamelin up short, and in biting phrases virtually accused the general of full responsibility for "military defeat."

Blum spoke with his old fire as he addressed Gamelin, snaking his head so that his drooping gray mustaches waved:

"The best-armed army will go under if the commanders don't know how to inspire the will to fight."

The only time Germany was mentioned was when Daladier declared the trial would never have taken place if the Germans had not insisted.

Pierre Caous, president of the special tribunal, immediately

U. S. in Front Line, Must 'Take' Coastal Raids, Stimson Says

Secretary Stimson said yesterday that the United States is massing its military strength for a "vigorous offensive" against the enemy and cannot disperse its forces for defensive measures against coastal attacks.

The War Secretary told reporters that the American people must be prepared to undergo "sporadic" raids "all along" our coasts, such as the German U-boat attacks on islands off the shores of Venezuela.

We must be ready to "take" such blows, Stimson made plain, and urged that the people refrain from bringing public pressure to bear to force the War and Navy Departments to string out their forces in defensive positions.

"Such pressure, if yielded to," he added emphatically, "would be the surest way of losing the war that I know."

The Army chief minced no words in driving home his grim stand. He told reporters that Americans have to "take the same position that all of our Allies have taken."

"We haven't got anybody in Europe holding the line against the Germans," Stimson said, "we're in the front line ourselves.

"We can't buy our way out of this

Heavy Damage In Earlier Raids Admitted

By the United Press

Sydney (Friday), Feb. 20.—Swarms of Japanese bomber and fighter planes staged their third raid in 24 hours today on the vital Allied stronghold of Darwin, North Australia, jumping-off point for American and Australian reinforcements to the Netherlands East Indies.

The third raid followed two savage attacks yesterday in the first of which 72 twin-engined bombers took part while 21 of the same machines took part in the second, causing casualties and considerable damage, particularly in the port area.

First Attack Killed 15

"Another air raid now is in progress in the Darwin area," it was announced this morning at Canberra by Air Minister Arthur S. Drakeford. "In yesterday's raids, it has been established, 15 persons were killed and 24 injured."

Other dispatches said the Japanese planes were machine-gunning the Darwin area today.

The raids for the first time in history brought war directly to the Australian mainland.

Premier John Curtin from his hospital bed immediately rallied the nation to a "total" war effort and said in a dictated statement that while "damage to property is considerable," the attack must only "gird with steel our loins and nerve."

"Let it be remembered that Darwin has been bombed, but it has not been conquered," he admonished.

Four Shot Down

At least four of the Jap bombers were shot down from the first two raids.

Both attacks were well escorted by fighters and the second came while the city was still reeling from the first.

The force of the raids indicated that the Japanese used both shore based and carrier aircraft. The bombers could well have come from Amboina, the Netherlands' secondary naval base 600 miles due north of Darwin, which the Japanese occupied two weeks ago. They probably picked up their fighter escort from a carrier in the Timor Sea, where such a craft has been reported operating for some time.

It was the attack which Australians had dreaded since the collapse of Singapore.

With the great Malayan bastion gone, Java threatened and the Philippines immobilized, Darwin has taken on increasing stature as an Allied base for Far Eastern operations. The port, which little more than a year ago was a bushland trading post, lies 3000 miles by air or sea from metropolitan Australia—farther than the Hawaiian Islands are from San Francisco.

When war in the Far East seemed inevitable, Australia last year began fortifying Darwyn and arranging routes to supply the base. With phenomenal speed a road was built covering the 6000 miles between two railheads, one extending 300 miles south from Darwin and the other 700 miles from connections with the main southern Australian rail system. This road was built in the course of one dry season by crews who drank from wells that they dug themselves, there being no watercourses in the vast expanse of the North Australian bush.

Curtin's rallying statement to Australians said:

"Let us each vow that this blow to Darwin, the loss it has involved and the suffering it has occasioned, shall gird with steel our loins and nerve."

"The first attack was made by 72 twin-engined bombers," his official account said, "the second by 21 twin-engined bombers. It is known for certain that four enemy aircraft were downed.

"The government regards the attacks as most grave. It is quite clear that a severe blow has been struck against Australian soil.

"Damage to property is considerable, but reports so far do not give precise particulars as to loss of life. The armed forces and civilians behaved most gallantly. As I said, the information does not disclose casualties but it is most obvious that we suffered."

"We must face with fortitude the first onset, and remember that whatever the future holds in store for us, we Australians will fight grimly and victoriously."

Total Effort Her Policy

Curtin said the commonwealth "has now experienced the physical contact of war within Australia."

"As head of the Australian government, I know there is no need to say anything other than these words—total mobilization is the government's policy for Australia."

A Royal Australian Air Force communique said that the first attack was concentrated on the Darwin Township and on shipping in the harbor. The attack lasted an hour and resulted in some casualties and damage to service installations.

leave Palembank 12 hours before. They remained behind four hours after the British rearguard withdrew. They gave me the first eyewitness account of what I have since corroborated in conversations with oil men and diplomatic authorities, namely, that the Dutch have really destroyed every oil field, every pipe line and every oil refinery in territory seized by Japanese.

This means that the Dutch have already dealt the Japanese a heavier blow than any yet delivered by ourselves or the British and if we can uphold their hands and help them to keep Java it means a gain of untold thousands of lives and a saving of years of blood and tears.

To realize further what this Dutch blow means it is necessary to remember also that every person who helped or directed the destruction of the oil fields or refineries put his life in jeopardy because the Japanese have sworn to execute every person in any way responsible for it.

The description given me by the two British officers of the burning and demolition of Palembang and its oil installations was most impressive. Palembang was the biggest of all the Dutch oil centers and is said to have produced more than half of all the petroleum in the Dutch East Indies.

Its refineries belong partly to Royal Dutch Shell and partly to Standard Oil of New Jersey, but credit for their construction is generally given to one of the best known Americans in these parts, L. W. Elliot, of Oklahoma.

To Ruins in Minutes

This black-haired, genial giant set up one of the most productive and valuable refineries in the East. The British officers who told me of its destruction shook their heads in a gesture of admiration and regret as they told me how the great refinery with buildings covering many acres was reduced by the force of a series of explosions to scraps and tatters within a few minutes, while other mines shattered miles of pipe lines.

Witnesses coming in from the oil field declared they had been fired and were blazing with a light which could be seen for 30 miles.

Palembang was but one of the several oil centers which the Japanese coveted, attacked and seized, but discovered were reduced to ashes and junk in one of this war's most significant "scorched earth" campaigns. The most important of these destroyed oil centers were in southern Sumatra—Palembang—in Borneo at Tarakan and Balikpapan, both Royal Dutch Shell possessions. In most of these places, authorities say it would take from 18 to 24 months or more to rebore the wells and get production under way. The minimum time admitted by any authority to be necessary for the Japanese to get any new production out of their oil field plunder is six months.

The best news for the United States Navy and other fighter forces in this area is the fact that the Dutch blew up and burned all their tanked oil so that the Japanese did not receive enough to run their fleet or their air force for a single week. They had hoped that here in the Indies they would receive oil resources which would enable them to carry on indefinitely.

The Dutch have prevented that for the time being, but now all depends upon whether the Japanese are going to be permitted time to rebore the wells, restore the pipelines and rebuild the refineries. With expert German help, they can, authorities admit, do this, and if they do so some people would be inclined to say they had won the war.

So viewed from here it is to the self-interest of the Allies to keep Java from falling into the hands of the enemy, quite aside from the profoundly human aspect of this Japanese attack upon this ancient stronghold of Western civilization in the Orient.

This human aspect hammers at one's heart as I sit here on a hotel porch with floods of tropical rain cooling the air, and think of this lovely city with its centuries of European tradition and culture falling into the hands of the Japanese.

Most of the non-Dutch population already has been evacuated but the Dutch are staying. They are staying exactly as the British stayed in Britain during their bloody trial.

Every Dutch official remains at his post. Those who were in Palembang are still there. All women doing jobs such as nursing must also stay at their posts. The technical reason is the same as it was in Britain—they do not want to impede the movement of troops by crowding the roads with refugees. The human reason, however, is simply that the Dutch will not run away.

So here in Batavia's streets today, at this hour when an invasion is expected momentarily, you can see blonde-haired Dutch babies walking with their Javanese nurses, and Dutch women and men taking the air with as little perturbation as those English families we used to see cooling themselves on the streets of London between air raids.

Batavia's streets are a study in the brilliant colors and exotic personalities of the Orient, interspersed with the familiar scenes and types of a European city. Tiny ponies trot along pulling diminutive carts. Curious bicycle-driven rickshas carrying two passengers go pumping along down the avenues.

Many a Lamour

Javanese girls dressed in sarongs saunter along, gracefully unaware of the existence of Dorothy Lamour. Fruit venders stagger under loads of the scarlet, gold, yellow, ivory and green products of the most fruitful of jungle orchards.

Nobody seems to be worrying that only 200 miles away the Japanese are digging themselves into new positions from which to leap in their attempt to seize this richest of all the islands in the Far East and enslave its 45 million inhabitants.

Our own authorities, however, have taken steps to get as many Americans out of here as would go. We learned officially today that some 400 of Java's 500 American's have been evacuated.

Others married island residents, or have business and professional interests they refuse to leave, or else they simply will not go away and abandon their Dutch friends. Our United States consul general here, Walter A. Foote, of Texas, has had to handle this traffic as well as to help the Americans from Singapore.

Foote believes that all Americans got out of Singapore, except 20 to 24. Those whose fate is uncertain include United States Consul General Kenneth S. Patton, of Virginia; Consul Harold D. Robinson, of Utah, and Charles O. Thompson, of Alaska, counsel to the consulate.

A British naval officer, one of the last to leave Sinapore, reported he saw these three American consular officials standing on a blazing wharf talking with the owner of a large motor boat. Their friends here hope they got away in some such vessel.

Chiang Maps Burma Road Substitute

By the Associated Press

Chungking, China, Feb. 19.—China's government disclosed today that Chiang Kai-shek has made concrete arrangements to replace the Burma Road with an India-to-China railroad-river route, now that the approaches to Rangoon are mined and that menaced city is no longer a practical port of entry for war material consigned to China.

Chinese troops meanwhile are in positions on the upper Thailand-Burmese frontier for offensive action by which they expect to invade Thailand "step by step" and relieve the Japanese pressure on lower Burma, an army spokesman said. (A Reuters version of this statement quoted the spokesman as saying Chinese forces already were advancing into Thailand.)

An official Chinese statement, disclosing the mining of the Rangoon Sea approaches and the yielding, for the time being, of Rangoon as a port of entry.

But it said Generalissimo Chiang, in his current talks in India, had solved satisfactorily the problem of India-Chinese transport; that steps were settled upon whereby a much larger quantity of goods than ever traversed the Burma Road would henceforth be transported to China, via India, and that goods for China will be sent direct from Indian ports.

The statement did not mention the route to be used but it is known to be overland through Burma, involving carrying by rail, road and river. (Presumably the plans contemplate eventual use of the partly complete "Assam Road," some 400 miles north of the Burma Road, which is being carved out of Himalayan cliffs and put across great rivers to Assam, in northeastern India, where it connects with railways to Calcutta—a route 2300 miles long by motor, river steamer and railway.)

The Chinese army spokesman, relating details of a sharp local clash on February 5 between Chinese and Japanese troops on the Burma-Thailand front, said the Chinese forces in Burma were determined to wrest the initiative from the enemy by invading Thailand.

The February 5 clash, described as the only one to date involving Chinese troops, took place at Tkayid, on a small and shallow tributary of the upper Mekong River near the frontier of Thailand and Indo-China.

Japanese and Thai units established a position on the northern bank of the tributary, inside Burma, but were thrown back by the Chinese. As they fled, the enemy destroyed a pontoon bridge over which they had crossed. Thirty Japanese were killed and 80 wounded.

After this clash, the Chinese troops moved into their offensive positions.

Bataan Battle

4000 Japs Are Killed In Jungle

By Frank Hewlett

United Press Staff Writer

With Gen. MacArthur's Army in the Philippines, Feb. 19.—United States troops have wiped out a Japanese regiment (about 4000 men) in a bitter, week-long jungle battle and stemmed what was intended to be a major drive to clear the defenders from the Bataan Peninsula.

(This dispatch apparently refers to fighting mentioned in last week's Washington communiques. On Friday, Washington announced that after suffering heavy losses in battle, the Japanese were reorganizing to resume their offensive, hence the American counterattacks must have ended at the time.)

Battle-hardened Americans and Filipinos have slaughtered Japanese shock troops in frontal attacks in the dense jungles, and they have filtered through the Japanese lines and cut off large detachments of the enemy, which were later destroyed.

Beside a stream, several hundred yards from the scene of the main action, I saw the bodies of 50 Japanese who, like wounded deer, had crawled to water to die.

Commanding Officer Killed

The Japanese regiment involved was a crack one, and it was destroyed down to and including its commanding colonel.

Documents taken from the bodies of Jap officers proved subsequently that the first American counter-attack on Bataan hurled back what was intended to be a major drive to destroy our forces.

The American left flank made the attack. In this sector, the Japanese had built an intricate system of tunnels leading to well-concealed trenches. Japanese advance troops had smashed along a narrow trail made by animals and the Japanese had dug trenches on both sides of the trail.

The fighting was at extremely close quarters, because of the dense foliage, and bayonets were often used against machine-gun nests.

As always in this campaign, the American officers set an example for the men. Lieut. Willibald Bianchi, of New Elm, Minn., volunteered to lead a platoon forward. His own company was being held in reserve for action later.

Wounded, He Fights On

Early in the battle, Bianchi's left hand was wounded. He discarded his rifle, took a pistol and continued the advance.

His men spotted a machine-gun nest. Bianchi crept forward and hurled a hand grenade which killed the Japanese there. A short time later Bianchi was wounded again directing the fire against a second machine-gun nest. Still he kept going.

The platoon advanced on an American tank which had been abandoned the day before, when it hit a land mine. Bianchi climbed inside and blew up another machine-gun nest with the tank's gun.

He was wounded for the third time, seriously, and was sent to a hospital. The officer who told me the story said Bianchi had passed the crisis and would recover.

British Drive Enemy Into Bilin River

By the Associated Press

Rangoon, Feb. 19.—British imperial troops counterattacking from the west bank of the shallow and winding Bilin River drove a new Japanese assault force back into the stream today in the heaviest of fighting.

Both Japanese and British paid heavily with lives—the invaders in trying to consolidate a bridge-head across the stream; the British fighting desperately to hold them back in these distant approaches to Rangoon.

Some Japanese shock troops yesterday had crossed the Bilin in small boats and fought their way up the west bank in hand-to-hand combat, and the position of these troops tonight was not explained. Many of the boats, however, were known to have been broken up in midstream by British artillery fire or seared with machine-gun bullets, and once ashore, the invaders met the hottest fire.

Assaulted by Bombers

East of the Bilin the main Japanese force was assaulted by R. A. F. bombers, protected by both British and the American volunteer group fighters.

The Army communique told this story of the latest stage of the battle:

"The enemy first succeeded in cutting our west flank north of Bilin.

"Our troops were subjected to a heavy attack, and a counterattack had to be launched.

"The enemy tried to engage our left flank, but by means of counter-attack our positions were kept intact.

"The enemy tried to cross the Bilin River, but our troops drove them into the river.

"Fighting was extremely fierce and casualties were heavy on both sides."

The Bilin lies about 80 miles due northeast of Rangoon, between the Rivers Sittang on the west and the Salween on the east.

It was acknowledged frankly here that the British might not be able to hold the line of the Bilin indefinitely and might be forced back to the west bank of the Sittang, last natural barrier to Rangoon and its railway feeder line to the Burma Road. The latter lies only 20 miles from the Sittang.

naval base. One Allied fighter was lost, the pilot saved by parachute.

The arrival of the Americans, described as "a relatively small number" thus far, and of other expeditionary forces of the United Nations was announced with the explanation that while these contingents were "by no means large enough yet" their presence in this last and greatest Pacific bastion of the Dutch "serves as an indication that the Netherlands Indies do not fight alone."

The heartening disclosure was made through the Dutch news agency Aneta concurrently with a communique of the Dutch command making clear that precious time was yet being bought by the defenders of the southern section of Sumatra, and with an authoritative recapitulation showing that the invaders' march southward, though almost uninterrupted, had cost him heavily in men and ships.

One hundred and eighty-two Japanese ships had been sunk or damaged up to February 14 in the entire Pacific theater, it was stated. This excluded the heavy enemy losses inflicted since the beginning last week of the invasion of southern Sumatra.

Of this known and incomplete tally of the invader's casualties, 109 ships were sunk, 28 probably sunk and 45 damaged, and of all these American ships and planes accomplished 84 of the known sinkings, 13 of the probables and accounted for 28 of the damaged ships. Dutch forces claimed 24 sinkings, 6 probables and 11 ships damaged.

Only American and Dutch action was detailed; the precise Allied agencies responsible for the remaining damage were not given. This, however, was the grand recapitulation for all Allied action against the enemy:

Battleships—Two probably sunk, two damaged.

Cruisers—Seven sunk, four probably sunk, 11 damaged.

Destroyers — Thirteen sunk, three probably sunk, two damaged.

Aircraft carriers—One sunk, two probably sunk, one damaged.

Submarines—Six sunk, one probably sunk, one damaged.

Transports—Fifty-two sunk, 12 probably sunk, 23 damaged.

Cargo vessels and auxiliaries—Twenty-three sunk, four probably sunk, three damaged.

Tankers—Seven sunk, two damaged.

On Borneo and Celebes the Dutch rear guard still struggled to delay the invader while in southern Sumatra action was much heavier than had appeared probable after the abandonment and destruction by the Dutch of the Palembang oil fields.

Thus time has been gained for a grand marshaling of the forces which will attempt to save Java.

Wounded soldiers arriving during the day from Sumatra disclosed that not only the Dutch and natives but some British soldiers were fighting heroically and inflicting heavily disproportionate losses upon the enemy. It was the first word that British ground forces were in action in the Indies and suggested that some of the British Singapore garrison had escaped to Sumatra.

Demolition experts who put the hammer and torch to the Palembang fields—a 500-million-dollar destruction—reported that they had also seen many rubber plantations ablaze.

Senate Approves 10 and 20% Pay Increases in Army

By the Associated Press

The Senate last night voted to provide for an increase of 20 per cent in base pay for enlisted men and 10 per cent for officers serving in the Army and Navy in foreign countries and in Midway, Hawaii and the Philippines.

The action was taken on motion of Senator Clark (Democrat), of Montana.

Chairman Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, of the Naval Affairs Committee, said the provision was similar to one adopted during the last war.

The measure has yet to pass the House.

Hill Tells of Mailing Viereck Speeches

tell "the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, so help me, God."

Prosecutor Maloney went briskly through preliminary questions, showing that Hill had worked for Representative Fish for 20 years and that he was convicted of perjury on January 15. He perjured himself by denying that he knew Viereck and that he helped Dennett get rid of eight mailbags of evidence which Hill placed in a storeroom used by Fish.

Admits Knowing Viereck

Q. Do you know the defendant, George Sylvester Viereck?

A. I do.

Q. Do you see him in court?

(Hill looked carefully among the massed faces which confronted him, at length fixing a level gaze on the German agent.)

A. I do.

Q. Tell the court and the jury the circumstances under which wou met Mr. Viereck, and the date.

A. It was in the first part of July, 1940, and it was in the office of Congressman Fish.

Q. The circumstances?

A. He came from the private office of Congressman Fish. Mr. Fish brought him over to me. Mr. Fish said Mr. Viereck had some speeches to send out—of Senator Lundeen's. Mr. Fish told me to send them to the mailing list of the National Committee to Keep America Out of Foreign wars.

Group Formed by Fish

(Fish formed this committee before his trip to Germany in 1939. He was chairman. A vice chairman was former Representative John O'Connor, one of the lawyers Hill since has accused of bungling his defense in his perjury trial and of failing to relay important messages to him.)

Q. What else was said?

A. Mr. Fish left the room and Mr. Viereck asked me how large the list was. I told him it was 100,000 names. Mr. Viereck doubted we had 100,000 names. I showed him the list. He asked me for a copy. We had an extra copy and I gave him one. He asked if there was any other list we could use and I told him of our Who's Who in America list.

Q. Did Viereck give you anything?

A. He gave me a tip. He gave me two bills rolled up. When I looked at them later they were two $50 bills.

Q. What speech did they have reference to?

A. He told me the speech was "Six Men and War." He told me for all details to contact Senator Lundeen's office. This included payment. He said they would buy about 125,000 copies.

Written by Viereck

(A secretary of the late Senator Lundeen, Farmer-Labor, of Minnesota, has testified that Viereck wrote this speech, which Mr. Lundeen placed in the Congressional Record).

Q. How was the speech delivered to you?

A. It was sent over and stored in the subway of the New House Office Building. The envelopes were sent to me. I put out 125,000. Senator Lundeen paid me—on two occasions, $125 each time. The speeches went out under Senator Lundeen's frank.

Hill said he completed mailing lists from Who's Who in America and Viereck gave him two payments of $50 each for them. Viereck asked about other lists. Hill said, but did not order any.

"Viereck told me not to write to him," Hill declared. "He told me he would get in touch with me."

Often Saw Dennett

Often in and out of Fish's office, said Hill, was Prescott Dennett. Hill said he next saw Viereck one night when he had been to Dennett's headquarters, after which he saw Dennett and the German agent together in a Connecticut Avenue restaurant.

Like every witness who has taken the stand for the Government, Hill was frequently interrupted by heated objections from Emil Morosini, jr., one of the German agent's lawyers.

When Hill mentioned Dennett's Make Europe Pay War Debts Committee, Morosini broke in, protesting that there had been no evidence to connect Viereck with the group.

"Very well," snapped Prosecutor Maloney, "we will withdraw this witness and supply the connection."

Expectant Mother on Stand

Mrs. J. Frank Webber, who will become a mother in a few weeks, took the stand.

Answering the questions of Prosecutor Hickey, Mrs. Webber said she first met Viereck in his apartment on Riverside Drive in New York City. She had gone there with her husband, who like herself, was working for the War Debts Committee.

"We went there about the middle of October, 1940," said Mrs. Webber, "to pick up a box that was sent there at Mr. Dennett's request. We went into Mr. Viereck's den. There was a picture of Hitler on the wall. Mr. Viereck came in and I told him I had come to take my belongings that were in the box.

"Mr. Viereck asked me about mailing lists and I told him that all that were done were put in the box."

Prosecutor Hickey reached into the Government's heaped up evidence and plucked out a mailing list, one which was identified yesterday by Sigfrid H. Hauck, president of Flanders Hall, Inc., which published anti-British propaganda for Viereck. The German agent had got control of the firm and, Hauck said, had put $22,500 into it, getting back $4500 which was collected from Viereck's Nazi employers, the German Library of Information.

Four Legislators Named

Hauck said Viereck had given him this mailing list, which Hickey handed to Mrs. Webber.

"I can identify it," she said. "That is my handwriting—those names: 'Tinkham, Thorkelson, Nye and Holt.' They are men whose speeches had been sent out (by the Dennett committee)."

"Mr. Viereck told us that he had organized the committee. We were talking about the passing of Senator Lundeen, (the committee chairman, killed in a plane crash in September, 1940) and Mr. Viereck said he and Mr. Lundeen and Mr. Dennett and Mr. Hill had organized the committee.

"I had seen Mr. Viereck in the offices of the committee in the Bond Building in the summer of 1940, on two or three occasions. I was employed by the committee—to take care of things and address speeches—isolationist speeches. At one time there were seven or eight people employed in the office, addressing franked envelopes. I have seen about 30 mail bags full in the basement at once.

Compiled Other Lists

"I compiled mailing lists from the fan mail of Representative Sweeney and Senator Johnson (she did not say which Senator Johnson)."

Among other lists Mrs. Webber said the committee used was one from the New York Enquirer, published by William Griffin, who made a trip to Cuba, and later reported himself ill, when the special grand jury on Axis agents wanted to question him.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Webber. She is a great-great-granddaughter of Charles Carrol, of Carrollton, signer of the Declaration of Independence

Defense Counsel Morosini broke into Mrs. Webber's testimony to protest that "this woman is pregnant" and that he could not anticipate her answers in time to object to them.

Morosini said it was unfair of the Government to put "this pregnant woman" on the stand and place him in the position of heckling her with objections. He said he did not wish to do this.

Questions Her About It

When his turn came to cross-examine Mrs. Webber, almost his first question was, whether she was pregnant.

She said she was.

Morosini asked Mrs. Webber whether she had not observed the pictures of about 35 other persons in Viereck's den. The list ranged from Albert Einstein, Thomas Mann and Kaiser Wilhelm—the only ones she remembered for sure—to Theodore Roosevelt, Col. House, George Bernard Shaw and Marshal Foch.

Mrs. Webber said Hitler's picture was the largest.

She denied she and Viereck talked about "fake" stories about the committee's work, which could be the basis of libel suits if palmed off on newspapers.

So did her husband, who was the next witness. He confirmed what his wife had said, except that she said they visited Viereck for an hour and he placed it at not more than 45 minutes.

Hill Is Recalled

With this evidence of Viereck's link to Dennett's committees in the record, Prosecutor Maloney called Hill back to the stand.

Hill identified a copy of one of the Congressional Record reprints he said he ordered and Dennett paid for and mailed out. The title was "Dangers of Invasion." Maloney pointed out that it was an interview with Hitler and quoted the Nazis' leader's expression:

"America for the Americans—Europe for the Europeans."

Hill then identified the Lundeen speech Hill said he mailed for Viereck, and Maloney quoted:

"Europe for the Europeans—Asia for the Asiatics—America for the Americans."

For nearly an hour, Hill went over the records of the Government Printing Office, indicating item after item. He said he got the manuscripts of many of them from Dennett, caused the material to be placed in the Record by some Representative or Senator, ordered thousands of reprints and paid for them with money he got from Dennett.

More Than Half Million

Hill said Dennett paid for more than half a million isolationist items Hill ordered last year. Dennett paid about $3000 to them, Hill said.

Hill declared that three days after he was indicted he resolved to tell the truth, but did not do so until a week ago, having kept stubbornly silent through the trial in which he was sent to prison.

"I was advised, not to," Hill explained.

Under cross-examination, Hill maintained that he had not been promised leniency, that not even a hope of leniency had been held out to him.

"The main thing I recall," he said of his first talk with the prosecutors, "was that Mr. Hickey reminded me that I was an American. That worked on my mind and after a couple of days I decided that I would tell the truth."

Goes Over His Perjuries

Morosini sent for the indictment against Hill and began to read Hill's perjuries before the grand jury, statement by statement.

"Do you remember saying that?" Morosini would snap.

Here are some of Hill's replies:

"I should never have said that."

"I'll never forget it."

"I'm paying for it now."

When Morosini read how the prosecutors warned Hill of his danger, the convicted man retorted, "That's when I ought to have talked."

Morosini indicated at adjournment time that he was far from through with Hill. He will resume at 11 o'clock this morning.

After the jurors left, Prosecutor Maloney asked for a $15,000 bond for Prescott Dennett, saying he was informed that Dennett was keeping up with the testimony through the information of Miss Maria Waters, 3267 N Street Northwest.

Took Notes for Him

Miss Waters has been in court each day and has talked to Dennett, to Morosini and to another defense attorney, Daniel F. Cohalen, jr. The defense lawyers have summoned her mother, Mrs. Agnes Waters, as a witness for Viereck.

District Attorney Edward M. Curran told the court he had questioned Miss Waters. With her out of court he examined Dennett, who admitted the girl had met him after court sessions and read him extensive notes on the testimony. Curran then questioned Miss Waters. Her replies did not agree with Dennett's, he said.

Dennett has been free on $1500 bond to secure his appearance on the witness stand. As his hearing started, his bondsman surrendered him to Justice Letts, saying he would no longer be responsible for him.

The justice committed Dennett, saying he would need $3500 bail to get out again.

Last night, Dennett was in jail.

Viereck's lawyers asked Justice Letts to "order" the newspapers not to publish accounts of the Dennett incident. The Justice replied gently that he had directed his jurors not to read about the case, but that he would do no more. His power, said the justice, did not include censorship.

Morosini then asserted that the defense counsel had nothing to do with Dennett's maneuvers and demanded an assurance from the Government that no such suspicion was entertained.

"I won't say that, sir," retorted Maloney. "All I know is that the defense subpenaed Miss Water's mother as a witness."

"I DIDN'T KNOW THERE WAS ANY LAW AGAINST THAT," said Marie Waters, 20, of 3267 N Street Northwest, about making notes on the trial of George Viereck, then reading them off to Prescott Dennett. Dennett, who was not supposed to know what was going on inside the courtroom, was jailed in $3500 bond

Girl Who Took Notes at Trial 'Never Knew . .'

Attractive 20-year-old Maria Waters, whose note taking at the Viereck trial was a contributing factor in sending her friend, Prescott Dennett, to jail, last night, said she was just penciling notes on testimony and "didn't know there was any law against that."

Anyhow, the slender girl with tumbling blond hair and a way of acting out every word, exclaimed she didn't give the notes to Dennett, promoter of isolationist committees for George Sylvester Viereck, Nazi prosecutor.

"Pres and I had lunch together twice and soft drinks twice more today and yesterday," she said. "I would look at the notes I had taken in the courtroom and then put them back in my purse and we would discuss the trial. But I didn't give any notes to Pres."

Dennett's Bond Raised

Dennett was free under $1500 bond until yesterday. Then the prosecution saw the girl taking notes and charged she was thus communicating to Dennett testimony given while he was out of the room and which he was therefore not supposed to hear. The prosecution, fearing that Dennett would jump his bond when he learned in this manner how the trial was going, asked it be raised to $3500. Dennett, unable to meet it, was jailed.

Her deep blue eyes flashing alertly, Maria had rushed into her apartment at 3267 N Street Northwest, coming from the trial. After pausing for breath, she related in dramatic word and gesture to her sister and a Post reporter the story of how her note-taking interrupted the trial.

She told them that her mother, Mrs. Agnes Waters, is coming back home soon to testify for the defense in the trial because "she wants to do anything she can to clear" the name of the late Senator Ernest Lundeen. The prosecution charges an arrangement had been made whereby 125,000 copies of a speech by Viereck were to be franked by the Minnesota Farmer-Laborite.

Mother Now in Midwest

Mrs. Waters is now in the Middle West making speeches before mothers' groups, Maria said. Her mother is 'dissatisfied with the way the war is going," she explained.

"She doesn't like the idea of sending planes to Britain when we need them so badly ourselves in the Pacific," Maria said. "And she didn't like the idea of sending an expeditionary force to Ireland."

And about Prescott Dennett?

"I met Pres when I was working for George Hill," she said. (Hill, former secretary of Representative Hamilton Fish, has been convicted of perjury before the special grand jury on Axis agents).

"Mother had met George through her work as an isolationist and she got the job with him for me. I addressed envelopes. I understood they contained Ernest's (Senator Lundeen's) speeches. Later I worked on Representative Stephen Day's poll of (Illinois isolationist) 'Who's Who.'

"When I saw in September that Pres had been called before the grand jury I wrote him reminding him that we had met in George Hill's office and that mother said Ernest had spoken highly of him. I offered to do what I could to help."

She didn't do any work for Dennett, Maria said, but "Pres and his mother came over to visit us and we reminisced about Ernest."

The late Senator Lundeen and her mother became friends, she said, when the Senator called to discuss some isolationist letters on the neutrality bill Mrs. Waters had distributed on Capitol Hill.

Panama Next On Schedule, Haan Asserts

By the Associated Press

Seattle, Feb. 19.—Japanese military books calling for attacks upon Hawaii, Alaska, the Pacific Coast and the Panama Canal in April have been turned over to Government authorities, a Korean who said he once served on the Japanese consular staff in Honolulu related today.

Kilsoo K. Haan, Washington representative of the Sino-Korean Peoples' League, said he obtained one of the books at a 1940 meeting in Portland, Oreg., where Japanese reserve officers were to speak, and stole the other from the room of Japanese officials in a Los Angeles hotel.

Next Objective Hawaii

"The first phase, now in progress, is to be completed in four months, according to the Japanese war plans," he said in an interview. "The second phase, scheduled to start in April, calls for an all-out attack on Hawaii, with capture of Oahu and Pearl Harbor slated to be accomplished in one week. Simultaneously, the plan schedules attacks on Alaska, the Pacific Coast generally and the Panama Canal.

"That's when the campaign of sabotage is to be waged. The reason there has been no outbreak of sabotage in the United States so far is that the Japanese government has ordered the Japs in this country to withhold such activities until the military attacks."

He said he passed as a Japanese in obtaining position in the Japanese Consulate in Honolulu from 1935 to 1937 and "was amazed and deeply concerned over what I found out. For example, I saw blueprints and detailed technical information of the construction at Pearl Harbor."

Haan contends that all Japanese, whether alien or American-born, should be interned for the war's duration.

30 More Japs Held In Imperial Valley

El Centro, Calif., Feb. 19 (AP).—Federal agents today arrested 39 additional Japanese aliens in the Imperial Valley and placed them in the county jail for questioning by immigration authorities.

Previously 32 Japanese aliens had been arrested in a roundup that began five days ago. Japanese are employed extensively in the rich agricultural districts of the valley, which adjoins the Mexican border.

Henderson Asks Sugar Hoarders To 'Sell It Back'

By the Associated Press

Price Administrator Leon Henderson yesterday urged householders who have built up excess sugar supplies to "remove the stigma" of hoarding by selling it back to the neighborhood grocer.

The price administrator, declaring that hoarding or bootlegging of scarce commodities could almost be "traitorous," suggested that housewives ask their grocers to buy sugar back at the current retail prices. The grocers would then be expected to resell it at the same price, as a patriotic service.

Henderson suggested also that householders, who must declare the amount of sugar in their cupboards when they register for copies of war ration book No. 1 sometime in March, might "sell some of it to your neighbors who may be without."

Henderson said the instructions were aimed primarily at persons who had built up sugar hoards since Pearl Harbor and were not intended to affect farm wives and others who normally buy sugar in quantity once or twice a year.

Canada Loses Corvette, 57 Officers, Men

By the Associated Press

Ottawa, Feb. 19.—The Canadian corvette Spikenard has been lost with 57 officers and men, it was announced officially today.

Navy Minister Angus MacDonald said the ship was lost through enemy action.

Five of her officers and 52 of her 60 crew members lost their lives, he said.

The Spikenard was the third Canadian corvette lost since the start of the war, and the death of 57 of her officers and crew brought the Royal Canadian Navy's war losses to 522.

Naval service headquarters said it believed the corvette was torpedoed by a German submarine while on convoy duty in the North Atlantic.

"Four of the survivors, reported to be slightly wounded, are in a hospital in England," said a statement from the naval service headquarters.

"The fact that only eight men survived suggests that the corvette broke up and sank within minutes after the believed torpedoing."

Welles Finds Vichy Reply Unsatisfactory

By Michael Chinigo
International News Service Staff Writer

Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles yesterday confirmed that the American Government is far from satisfied by Vichy efforts to explain away aid given the Axis and has dispatched "further instructions" to Ambassador Leahy at Vichy.

America's attitude involves considerations which question whether Marshal Petain's regime is a free agent or a mere puppet of the Axis combine.

If the Vichy government is really a free agent, then the American Government holds that it should be in a position to terminate aid to the Axis.

Inability on the part of Marshal Petain to give America full satisfaction on the present issue would be regarded here as definitive proof that Vichy France is not in reality a sovereign power, and therefore does not merit normal diplomatic relations with the United States.

DeGaullist Sees Welles

Late yesterday Adriene Tixier, representative in America for DeGaulle's Free French movement, paid a surprise call on Welles.

Tixier, on emerging from a 15-minute talk with Welles, explained that it was "a consultation" and added that he was about to leave for London to report to Gen. DeGaulle.

American shipments to northern Africa, suspended when reports of Vichy aid to the Axis began to flood the State Department, are not to be resumed until Marshal Petain has demonstrated his ability to operate as the head of a sovereign power to the satisfaction of the United States.

Welles, commenting on the suspension of American shipping to North Africa, told his press conference that the situation is "in status quo," but department officials clarified his expression by explaining that "pending a decision" no American vessels would leave for North Africa ports.

Assurances on Madagascar

The Acting Secretary of State also disclosed that Vichy Ambassador to Washington, Gaston Henry-Haye, on Wednesday had assured him that Marshal Petain's government had made no commitments to Japan in regard to Madagascar, strategic Indian Ocean island possession as large as France itself.

Welles declared that the American Government had no direct information which would bear out current reports that enemy submersibles were using the French islands of Martinique and Guadeloupe as supply bases for their raiding operations.

His conversations with Henry-Haye, the acting secretary said, covered a "very wide area" but he declined to go into details.

R.A.F. Chief Here Given Promotion

By the Associated Press

London, Feb. 19.—The Air Ministry announced tonight that Air Marshal A. T. Harris, now head of the R. A. F. delegation in Washington, had been appointed commander in chief of the bomber command as successor to Air Marshal Sir Richard E. C. Peirse, who has been given "a special appointment."

Air Vice Marshal D. C. S. Evill has been appointed to succeed Harris in Washington, the ministry said.

The 50-year-old Harris has been air officer commanding a bomber group since the outbreak of the war. He joined the Royal Flying Corps in 1915 and was granted a permanent Royal Air Force commission in 1919. He has served in Iraq, Palestine and Trans-Jordan as well as in Britain.

In 1938 Harris visited Canada and the United States as a member of an air ministry mission.

Evill, 49, was born in Australia. He was appointed senior air staff officer of the fighter command in August, 1940, following return from France, where he had held a similar post with British air forces.

Evill was granted acting rank of air marshal as of the date of his new appointment.

Churchill Shakes Up Cabinet

idea that Churchill's retention of the defense ministry was vitally necessary because the post involves such momentous decisions that only the Prime Minister can make them.

Attlee will remain as Churchill's deputy, taking his chair at cabinet meetings in the prime minister's absence.

The withdrawal of Lord Beaverbrook from the highest councils of state was seen as a victory for Labor Minister Bevin who long has had a standing feud with "The Beaver" over the latters' attitude toward labor-production problems.

There also were reports that Cripps earlier had refused to accept a post in the cabinet because of "Beaverbrook's rather drastic methods."

On the whole Parliament members regarded the new cabinet as a victory over a stubborn prime minister, and there appeared to be no doubt that the new machine, shorn of deadwood, would receive better treatment in the House.

Other Changes Forecast

There were persistent reports tonight that a number of other ministerial changes probably will be announced next week.

Those who may be affected were said to include Sir Archibald Sinclair, air minister, and L. S. Amery, secretary for India. Some political observers also have predicted changes involving the destinies of A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, and Capt. H. D. R. Margesson, secretary for war. Both men have been attacked frequently by those demanding a thorough housecleaning.

Lyttelton's Middle Eastern post will be taken by Alfred Duff Cooper, also regarded as "one of Winnie's boys," and to make way for Attlee as dominions secretary, Lord Cranborne is expected to become colonial secretary and leader in the House of Lords.

Lord Boyne, present colonial secretary, will give up that office.

Parliament members said that there was "a general understanding" that although Cripps would serve as a buffer for Churchill in the House of Commons, the prime minister intends to spend one day each week in the House.

Morning newspapers welcomed the changes, but three of them, The Mail, News Chronicle and Herald, demanded more of them.

The announcement of the reorganization, issued from No. 10 Downing Street, said:

"The King has been pleased to approve the following appointments:

"Secretary of state for dominion affairs—Right Honorable Clement Attlee.

"Lord privy seal—Right Honorable Sir Stafford Cripps.

"The war cabinet will be constituted as follows:

"Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs—Rt. Hon. Clement Attlee.

"Lord Privy Seal and Leader of the House of Commons—Rt. Hon. Sir Stafford Cripps.

"Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs—Rt. Hon. Anthony Eden.

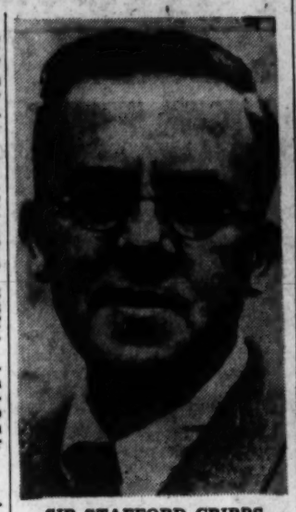
"Minister of State—Rt. Hon. Oliver Lyttelton.

"Minister of Labor and National Service—Rt. Hon. Ernest Bevin.

Mr. Attlee will also act as Deputy Prime Minister.

"Lord Beaverbrook was invited to join the new war cabinet but declined on grounds of health. He will shortly proceed to the United States, where he will carry on the work which he has already begun in regard to the pooling of resources between the United Nations together with such other special duties as may be entrusted to him from time to time by the war cabinet.

"It is intended that the Minister of State should be a war cabinet minister exercising general supervision over production."



SIR STAFFORD CRIPPS

High Spirits Of Prisoners Amaze Japs

Tokyo (From Japanese Broadcasts), Feb. 19.—Writing from Fort Changi, Singapore, now an internment camp for British imperial prisoners, a Domei correspondent expressed amazement tonight at "the insensibility to defeat and the high spirits of the prisoners."

He said there were 13,000 English and 15,000 Australians interned in the fort.

"At one place along the way we passed a band of Scottish Highlanders marching toward internments, blowing lustily all the while on bagpipes," the reporter wrote. "A monocled officer led them, sporting a cane in place of his saber. Not one face carried a shadow of sadness.

"We passed a second group stepping briskly along with the same lightheartedness. How they can do so is entirely beyond understanding to us who are Japanese. . . ."

He concluded: "The more I see of them the more these men amaze me."

Daladier and Blum Deny Trial Court Is Legitimate

warned Daladier that if he continued to mention foreign powers he would be forced to call a secret session.

Daladier snapped back:

"Don't I have the right to present my side of the case after having been in prison 17 months and made a scapegoat of defeat without the right to defend myself because the press, radio, and the chief of state himself are leagued against me?

"We shall see where treason lay, and by whom France was betrayed."

The defendants and their attorneys developed the following main arguments:

1. That the court is unconstitutional, since the republic still exists and under its laws only the Chamber of Deputies has the right to indict and only the Senate the right to try ministers.

2. That even if it should be decided that the court is constitutional, nevertheless since the law bringing it into existence was only decreed July 30, 1940, it is without a retroactive right to try for crimes allegedly committed before its creation.

3. That the defendants have been prejudged and condemned before the trial started.

Parliament Still Exists

(The French Chamber of Deputies adjourned sine die May 16, 1940, as Premier Paul Reynaud told it that France would be victorious against Germany. This was six days after the German invasion of the Lowlands and France, approximately a month before the fall of France.

(As Marshal Petain became chief of state, with a state council owing allegiance to him personally, the Parliament became a ghost, but the body never was buried. On August 19, 1941—more than a year after its last meeting—Marshal Petain ordered the Senate and the Chamber, now virtually disbanded, to be removed from Vichy.

(Ten days later this "ghost" Parliament took up headquarters at the small watering place of Chatel-Guyon-les-Bains, 45 miles from Vichy.

(Members who had accepted suspension of their salaries with what they called "quiet dignity" protested this removal from Vichy, mainly because they wanted left the reminder that technically the Petain regime was operating under mandate from Parliament.)

The trial is being held in the audience chamber of the former palace of the Dukes of Auvergne and conducted with impressive pomp and circumstance. The judges are robed in scarlet lace and ermine and the lawyers in ermine-trimmed robes of black. Tapestry hangs on the walls.

Former Air Minister Guy La Chambre and Pierre Jacomet, former administrator of national defense industries, are defendants along with Blum, Daladier and Gamelin.

Censorship has been suspended for the foreign press so long as stories of the trial stick to that event without bringing in "any extraneous matter," but three hours before the session opened four correspondents representing the American press were barred from the courtroom without explanation.

They were Mel Most, of the Associated Press, Ralph Heinzen, United Press, James King, of Transradio, and Paul Ghali, of the Chicago Daily News, who is an Egyptian subject.

Later ost and King had their admission cards returned to them, but not Heinzen and Ghali.

Those who were not impeded in reporting the opening were this correspondent, Herbert King, United Press; Paul Archinard, of the National Broadcasting Co., and Gaston Archambault and Lansing Warren, of the New York Times.

3 Famed Divisions To Be Reorganized

77th, 82d and 90th To Be Established As Active Units

The Army announced yesterday that three divisions of the Organized Reserve, which had brilliant combat records in World War I, will be established as active units March 25.

They are the Seventy-seventh Division, known as the "Metropolitan Division" in 1917-19 because its members came from New York City and nearby; the Eighty-second Dvilsion, nicknamed the "All-American Division," and the Ninetieth Division or "Alamo Division."

Two of the divisions produced men that will live forever in the Nation's hall of valor. The famous "Lost Battalion" which fought off continuous German attacks when cut off in the Argonne Forest, was a part of the Seventy-seventh, while the Eighty-second Division gave America its No. 1 World War hero, Sergt. Alvin C. York. It was composed of men from Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia.

The Ninetieth Division, made up of Texans and Oklahomans, fought notably at St. Mihiel and the Meuse-Argonne.

Maj. Gen. Robert I. Eichelberger, former superintendent of West Point, will command the Seventy-seventh Division. Maj. Gen. Omar N. Bradley will lead the Eighty-second and Maj. Gen. Henry Terrell, jr., the Ninetieth. All three units will be of the "triangular" or three regiment type.

At the same time the War Department announced that all of the 18 National Guard divisions will be reformed from the old "square" or four infantry regiment type into "triangular" units.

Officer and enlisted cadres for the three new divisions already have been organized and are undergoing special intensive training. New men assigned to them will come directly from reception centers without preliminary training.

Granted Divorce From John Payne film actress, was awarded a divorce from John Payne, screen actor, yesterday in Los Angeles on grounds of cruelty. The two were generally regarded as one of Hollywod's happiest couples. Both will have joint custody of their daughter, Julia Anne, 19 months old. Miss Shirley told the court she was "desperately unnappy" and that the marriage failed almost two years ago.

War Sidelights

'Child Slaves' Work Hours May Be Cut

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

London, Feb. 19.—Ernest Bevin, minister of labor, told the House of Commons today that he hoped soon to restore the children working in the pottery industry, described recently in the House of Lords as "child slaves," to a 48-hour work week instead of 53.

The labor shortage in the pottery industry is being overcome by bringing workers into the area, he said.

Brazil Seizes Arms Cache

Rio de Janeiro, Feb. 19 (AP).—A dispatch from Sao Paulo today reported that police in the coastal town of Cananeia had seized a large quantity of arms in an agricultural district occupied chiefly by Germans and Austrians.

The weapons were said to include many German-made Mauser rifles of a type no longer used by the Brazilian army.

From Belem came word that the Brazilian government had ordered the German, Japanese and Italian consuls there to go to Rio de Janeiro, presumably to obtain transportation out of the country. Two Portuguese and one Brazilian were arrested at Belem, these dispatches said, for openly expressing sympathy with the Axis.

False Alarm

London, Feb. 19 (U.P.).—An announcement by the Exchange Telegraph listening post that the Tokyo radio had gone off the air suddenly tonight proved without foundation. The United Press listening post heard the Tokyo station broadcasting as usual.

Cultural Note

Berlin (From German Broadcasts), Feb. 19 (AP).—A decree issued today by the German film chamber that no more than four moving picture theaters may be held under one ownership completed what were described as "efforts to drive Jews out of the German film business and for incorporation of the cinemas in the ranks of German cultural institutions."

At the same time the "German cinema company" was established to operate a number of important movie theaters throughout the country.

Army Considers 'Foreign Legion' Of Axis Foes

The Army is considering the establishment of a "Foreign Legion." Secretary Stimson disclosed yesterday, composed of citizens of all nations fighting the Axis who are now in the United States.

Stimson disclosed the plan was being studied as he announced the creation of a "Free Filipino" battalion made up of natives of the Philippines now in this country, either now in service or who volunteer.

Battalions of Russians, Chinese, Norwegians, Greeks, Poles and other units of citizens of the United Nations would give the United States an outfit comparable to the famed French Foreign Legion.

Croix de Guerre Winner, Herbert Sears, Dies

Boston, Feb. 19 (AP).—Herbert M. Sears, 75, a director of the Boston & Albany Railroad and a trustee and director of several Boston banks, died today at his home.

He was a one-time commodore of the Eastern Yacht Club and served overseas in the American Red Cross in the first World War. He was the first Bostonian to win the Croix de Guerre.

Gen. Gerow To Command 29th Division

One of the Army's ablest strategists and field soldiers, Maj. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow, was assigned yesterday to command the Twenty-ninth Division at Fort George G. Meade, Md., a National Guard unit made up of men from the District of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia and Pennsylvania.

GEN. GEROW

Gen. Gerow, Army war-plans chief for the past year, will be succeeded in this important post by Brig. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, an expert on Far Eastern military affairs.

The shift rounded out a reorganization of the War Department high command, which has seen four out of the five assistant chiefs of staff replaced by others since December 7.

Leaders Shifted

In less than two months the personnel, military intelligence, supply, and now war-plans divisions of the general staff have been assigned new heads, and the fifth, operations and training, has a new assistant chief, Brig. Gen. Harold R. Bull, who holds the same rank as the present G-3 head, Brig. Gen. Harry Twaddle.

Army officials say the moves are the result of a policy adopted by Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, to rotate his principal assistants between field and staff duty. Those relieved in the past two months were given other important posts.

EISENHOWER

Eisenhower, 51 and a West Point graduate, served from 1935 to 1940 as chief assistant to Gen. Douglas MacArthur, then Military Adviser to the Philippine Commonwealth. Since then he has been successively chief of staff of the Third Division, Ninth Army Corps and the Third Army.

Succeeds Reckord

As Twenty-ninth Division commander, Gen. Gerow will succeed Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, a Maryland National Guard leader who now commands the Third Corps Area in Baltimore. Since Reckord's transfer from troop command due to age, the division has been under the acting command of Brig. Gen. Amos W. W. Woodcock.

Gerow, a quick moving, soft-speaking Virginian, was graduated from Virginia Military Institute before entering the Army as a lieutenant of infantry in 1911. Born in Petersburg, July 13, 1899, he has had a notable career in the military service.

He won the Distinguished Service Medal and French Legion of Honor during World War I for his work in charge of Signal Corps procurement. Gerow headed a special Army board studying new tactical doctrines in 1939.

In his new post, Gen. Gerow will supervise the transformation of the Twenty-ninth from a "square" to a "triangular" division. The War Department announced yesterday that all of the 18 National Guard divisions will be reorganized to change them from the old four infantry regiment to the newer three regiment type.

Surplus units, it was said, will be assigned to the General Headquarters Reserve and Army Air Corps troops. They will not lose their State identity as Guard organizations, it was said.

Enlistment Rate Cheers Stimson

Secretary of War Stimson yesterday cited as a "bright spot" the report on Army voluntary enlistments in January, a total of 90,241.

This is more than double any month prior to the declaration of war, and more than double enlistments in May, 1917.

"That indicates a great deal, it seems to me," he added. "These young men who are going to fight the war are not yielding to the spirit of complacency or defeatism we sometimes hear running around back of the lines."

Court Grants Mrs. Dallant An Annulment

Mrs. Frances Dallant, 45-year-old Social Security Board nurse, was yesterday granted an annulment of her marriage to Nicholas Dallant, erswhile Communist leader also known as Nicholas Dozenberg, whom she accuses of having been a secret Russian spy.

She told Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue that she married her husband in 1936, under the impression that he was a motion picture producer born in Bismarck, N. Dak. She began to suspect his subversive activities, she said, when she was cross-examined and threatened by a delegation of Russians during a visit to that country.

Dallant was once termed America's No. 2 Communist, and has served a Federal prison sentence for passport law violations. He is allegedly a former associate of Gen. Krivitsky, who claimed to be the head of Stalin's secret agents in Europe and once was a star witness before the Dies Committee. Krivitsky committed suicide in Washington last year.

Mrs. Dallant, who lives at 3700 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, told the Court that she would never have married Dozenberg had she known of his secret affiliations. She asked the annulment on grounds of fraud.

Represented by United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage, Mrs. Dallant was given custody of her 4-year-old daughter, Ruth, by the Court.

A yeoman in the Navy during World War I, Mrs. Dallant said that she met her husband in 1932, when she was a George Washington University student. They were married in Yokohama, Japan. During their married life, she continued, they traveled extensively in Asia and Europe—trips that she has since decided were spying expeditions.

In a letter filed with the Court in August of 1940, Dozenberg denied that he had falsely represented himself to his wife, and asserted that she had brought suit for annulment because of pressure brought to bear on her.

At that time he denied that he was a Communist and asserted that his "activities have been aimed against a potential enemy of the United States, namely Japan."

House Rejects Post-War Economic Plan

Copyright by The Chicago Sun

Legislation designed to carry out President Roosevelt's request for a postwar economic planning was defeated, 249 to 104, in the House yesterday after being attacked as a "boondoggling" venture.

Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago and the Chicago Plan Commission were listed by the House Labor Committee as among those who had indorsed the program to provide a vast after-the-war public works program, planned by the Federal, State and local governments.

Representative Dirksen (Republican), Illinois, a leader of the opposition, agreed that there should be a post-war planning scheme but said the proposed measure was too broad. There should be "guide lines—limitations," he said, else under the proposal plans could be made at Federal expense for "the improvement of fishing and instruction in the use of electric appliances."

Representative Beiter (Democrat), New York, author of the bill, called it "insurance against post-war depression," explaining that it was designed to cushion the shock of the let-down caused by the abrupt end of defense spending.

"In time of war," Beiter said, "we must prepare for peace, or else all we fought for is lost."

The legislation would have authorized the spending of undesignated sums for preparation of complete plans for works to be built when the war ends. The measure, however, would not have authorized the works program itself.

Grants would have been made to cities and other local governments to prepare their plans, the coordination of which would have been in hands of agencies designated by the President. The National Resources Planning Board presumably would have been the main supervising agency.

Among the specific authorizations would have been the making of "examinations, surveys, investigations, legal studies, comprehensive plans and programs, engineering plans and specifications and forms of legal proceedings, as may be necessary to facilitate and expedite the selection, financing and inauguration of public improvements, works and related activities."

Guatemala Offers More Sugar to U. S.

Guatemala City, Guatemala, Feb. 19 (AP).—The Guatemalan sugar consortium declared today this country could increase her sugar exports to the United States by 60 times the present amount if American tariffs were reduced to make such action pay.

The present quota for export to the United States is 350,000 pounds, the consortium said, while 20,000,000 pounds could be made available.

The announcement said that import duties added to production and shipping costs left no margin of profit under present conditions.

40 in House Fight Rivers Bill

A bloc of 42 House members opposed to omnibus features of the billion dollar St. Lawrence waterway, rivers and harbors bill organized for a fight on the measure at a conference late yesterday.

The group, opposing nondefense items in the bill and alleged "pork barrel" projects, named Representative Cole (Democrat), of Maryland, chairman of a special strategy committee, and Representative Ploeser (Republican), of Missouri, secretary.

Announcing the action to reporters following the conference, Representative Beiter (Democrat), of New York, said another conference will be called before the legislation is brought before the House, when a chairman and cochairman will be designated from each State to participate in opposition floor strategy.

President Roosevelt only last week again urged enactment of the omnibus measure, which includes the $277,056,515 St. Lawrence seaway project, long favored by the Administration. The President said it was merely an authorization measure, and only those projects vital to defense would receive appropriation right of way.

To meet House opposition, Chairman Mansfield of the House Rivers and Harbors Committee framed an amendment to defer construction until six months after the war of all projects not related to defense.

Speakers at yesterday's conference questioned the defense value of the St. Lawrence waterway, contending it could not be completed before 1949. Other projects drawing opposition fire included the $197,921,000 Florida ship canal, the 66 million dollar Tennessee-Tombigbee waterway and the 15 million dollar Trinity River, Texas, authorization.

Speakers at the conference included Representative May (Democrat), of Kentucky; Representative Beiter, Representative Ploeser, Representative Faddis (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, and Representative Van Zant (Republican), of Pennsylvania.

"The meeting demonstrated organized opposition to this pork-barrel bill, and the St. Lawrence project in particular, from both parties and in all States," Ploeser told reporters.

"I don't know of a single State where there isn't opposition. The general opinion of the meeting was that this is no time for such wasteful projects."

Second Wife Kills Self In Same Way as First

MRS. RUTH RYAN SANFORD

Mrs. Henry Sanford Gives No Motive For Ending Life

By the Associated Press.

Smithtown, N. Y., Feb. 19.—Mrs. Ruth Ryan Sanford, 24, wife of wealthy, socially prominent Henry Sanford, jr., died today of a bullet wound. Coroner Grover Silliman said she committed suicide.

She was Sanford's second wife. His first wife, Mrs. Rose Davis Sanford, shot and killed herself in May, 1938.

Dr. Frank E. R. McGilvery, who attended the second Mrs. Sanford, said she shot herself under the heart yesterday. He could ascribe no motive.

He quoted her as saying, "I've been thinking about doing this all afternoon."

An emergency operation at Southside Hospital, Bayshore, N. Y., failed to save her.

Investigating officials said that Mrs. Sanford shot herself with a gun from her husband's firearms collection as did the first Mrs. Sanford.

At the time of the shooting her husband was en route to Washington, where his father, Henry, sr., lives.

The Sanfords have a daughter, Susan, 1. Sanford had two children by his previous marriage, a son and a daughter.

At the time of the first Mrs. Sanford's suicide, the family said that illness of the son had caused the mother to be despondent.

Sanford occupies himself with sports and the management of his estate, Brookshot, on Harbor Road, here. A 1933 graduate of Williams College, he is a grandson of the late Prof. Samuel Sanford, former head of the Yale Music School, and a great-grandson of the late Henry Sanford, former president of the Adams Express Co.

Mrs. Sanford was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Ryan, also socially prominent.

Members of the family were unable to ascribe a reason for Mrs. Sanford's act, although they said she had been brooding because her husband was seeking a commission in the Marines. Sanford's father is a retired Army major.

2 Ships Damaged Off Port-of-Spain

(The dispatches made no explanation, but it was assumed that the authorities feared fires from shelling or feared that U-boats might attempt to land a raiding party to wreck the Shell Co., refinery on the island.)

There also was a blackout in Port-of-Spain following the attack on two ships in the Gulf of Paria. The explosions on the ships flung "a great sheet of flame into the sky."

However, both ships remained afloat and no one aboard was injured seriously.

United States Army Headquarters at Port-of-Spain issued the following announcement:

"There were two explosions in the Gulf of Paria anchorage off Port-of-Spain about 11:40 p. m. on the night of Feb. 18. Two vessels were damaged but both remained afloat and their were no casualties.

"It is presumed the explosions were caused by a submarine out the submarine has not been located."

American and British forces based on Trinidad began an immediate search for the attacker.

The sinking of a Panamanian tanker off Curacao marked the third appearance of U-boats in this region, which is within 700 miles of the Panama Canal.

American bombers already were aloft at dawn yesterday when a submarine sent shells crashing into the mammoth oil refinery at St. Nicholas, Aruba. They dropped a heavy load of explosives so quickly as to make the pilots "hopeful" that the U-boat was sunk or damaged.

Chandler Diehl, Associated Press correspondent covering the defenses of Panama and the Caribbean area, was on Aruba when the submarine opened up on the island.

"The new attack," Diehl reported, "was directed only at the refinery objectives. A submarine standing three or four miles off the southeast corner of the island rocketed three flares over the island at about 5:35 a. m., lighting up the targets, and followed with a series of about five shots of about 3-inch size. All of them fell short of the tank farm and refinery and did not explode.

"The bombers swung into action at this point and the submarine made a crash dive.

"One of the U-boat shells hit on land near the advanced positions of the United States troops who are here cooperating with the Dutch in defense of the important oil properties. Another hit the refinery's library building.

"Still another hit a 32-room bachelor quarters building where I spent the night. I was awakened by the crash of a shell which crackled like a gigantic whip as it entered the roof in the east wing, just around the corner from the room I shared with Frank Smith, of the Chicago Times.

"This shell continued on an almost unbelievable course, blasting completely through a room in the west wing, smashing a drainpipe outside and winding up under a automobile whose motor it first caved in."

U. S. Must 'Take' Raids, Stimson Says

war, we can't even produce our way out of it—we've got to fight our way out of it by hard, intelligent fighting."

Stimson answered some critics of the Government who have been urging that the United States take the offensive in the war when asked if he would discuss the progress of the conflict.

"Some members of the public," he declared caustically, "appear to think that the high command of the Army and Navy are the only people in the United States who do not realize the value of taking the offensive.

"I can assure you to the contrary, I think, on any such belief as that. It is elementary that the only way to successfully win the war is by taking a vigorous offensive against the enemy forces, as quickly as we can—and we are doing that.

"We shall seize every opportunity of the counteroffensive, the counterattack and the offense, and we shall try to utilize every opportunity for surprise. But you have got to realize that those principles can't be applied just any minute, any time, anywhere. With the knowledge of the rule, the difficulty is in applying it."

Stimson's warning of possible hit-and-run raids on the Nation's coasts came when he was asked for comment on the Axis U-boat attacks in the Caribbean. He replied that the "probability" of the latter raids was foreseen and American forces placed on the Dutch islands of Aruba and Curacao to combat them.

Hits Thoughtless Pressure

"I want to say this," he added, "we've got to be prepared for attacks of that kind, not only at Aruba, but all along our coasts, and we've got to be prepared for thoughtless pressure from our public to make defensive efforts by stringing out our forces."

The War Secretary cited several instances of this pressure: One, in 1898, when almost every New England port clamored for a warship to protect it from the Spanish fleet; and two, during his first term as Secretary of War in 1911, when a Texas Senator demanded that the Army be spread along the Mexican border for protection against revolutionists.

'The Vanishing Virginian' Too Good to Disappear

New Picture at Loew's Capitol Is Warming Study of Home Life in Nearby Lynchburg; George Murphy Scores Rousing Hit on Stage

IT IS A LIVELY, amusing and generally warming picture of family life in a nearby Virginia city that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has evolved from Rebecca Yancey Williams' factual novel of "The Vanishing Virginian," now on view as chief screen feature for the week at Loew's Capitol Theater.

The shape and structural blueprints of the story, of course, are familiar from long use. Since family biographies vary only in their minor modifications, hazy analogies might be drawn between the present examination of typical American domestic life and the "Daughter" series in which the Lane Sisters were starred, or even some of the "Hardy" excursions into the home of the understanding judge. The principal difference in the instant case is that the hero of the tale, to his close of kin as well as to the audience peering into his private life, is the explosive, legal gentleman of the title—the pater-familias about whom the whole genial and deeply human business revolves. He is a figure of such harmless bombast, such shining civic virtue, deep-rooted attachments and lovable faults that one wishes the title might describe him as "enduring," instead of "vanishing." If he is, indeed, disappearing from the face of the earth, it is only because he is the embodiment of that fading generation that links an antebellum graciousness of living with the turbulence of a harried and hectic present. Those maligned old "horse and buggy days," it seems, possessed qualities of human dignity that cannot be recaptured.

In relating the history of a public servant who served his community for term after term in the face of his family's mild rebellion, "The Vanishing Virginian" finds it possible to touch most of the emotions and strike many moods.. There are episodes of high hilarity, romantic charm, moving pathos and heroic fortitude, all deftly woven together by sturdy threads of those attributes of mind and heart that make up what is known as "Americanism." While Robert Yancey is wrestling with the problems of the office of public prosecutor, and the difficulties of placating his patient and gentle wife, his children have time to grow up, marry and introduce their children to the events of the household; death to stalk the servants' quarters and political disaster to prove that it sometimes can prove a blessing. In addition to its humor and all its staunchen merits, the picture finds opportunity to add the warmth of music to its other qualities of simple charm. The youthful Kathryn Grayson contributes a fair measure of it delightfully; a Negro choir some splendid spirituals, and Mr. Yancey and his children a popular tune or two that are hauntingly nostalgic.

Frank Morgan The Star of the Picture

It would be necessary to hark back as far as "The Mortal Storm" to find Frank Morgan cast in so congenial and so worthy a role as that of this vanishing stalwart of the Old Dominion. His Robert Yancey is a husband and father any wife and family would be proud to have and a political opponent no Lynchburg rival would covet. He imbues the character with tremendous vigor, great good humor, deep feeling and unquenchable spirit. In the role of his wife, Rebecca, Spring Byington is perfectly cast in the sort of role allotted her too seldom. Kathryn Grayson, Natalie Thompson, Juanita Quigley and Scotty Beckett are well met as the Yancey children, with Miss Grayson more than fulfilling the rich promise of "Andy Hardy's Private Secretary." Douglass Newland may embody no immediate threat to Robert Taylor or Tyrone Power, but, nevertheless, is adequate in the role of the young lawyer-suitor. Elizabeth Patterson, Katherine Alexander, Dickie Jones, Leigh Whipper and Louise Beavers, J. M. Kerrigan, Harlan Briggs and numerous others stand foremost among the eminently proficient, if not illustrious, supporting cast.

On the stage at the Capitol this week, one of the most agreeable, unaffected and competent young stars ever to come East from Hollywood headlines the bill. He is George Murphy, Fred Astaire's closest rival among the dancing actors. There is no swank about George. He walks out there like the honest young fellow he is, makes no false pretensions, forgets to be anything but himself and proceeds to panic the house with his anecdotes, songs and nonpareil dances. Except for Fred Sanborn and his xylophone—more familiar to Washington "in the flesh" than Mr. Murphy—he would steal the show. As it is, Mr. Sanborn swipes a bit of it himself with his inimitable comedy and virtuosity on the musical kindling wood. Olson and Shirley, with their extraordinary acrobatic dancing, and Anita Boyer, with her songs, tie for a close second place, and the Rhythm Rockets are at their best in three colorful routines. The Fox Movietone News and usual house features complete a bill that deserved yesterday's capacity crowds.

Early Romance in Ol' Virginny

DOUGLASS NEWLAND AND KATHRYN GRAYSON who provide the juvenile love interest, and right delightfully, too, in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's production of "The Vanishing Virginian," now occupying the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater. Frank Morgan and Spring Byington are the more mature stars, with a thoroughly competent cast in support. The scene of the story is comparatively nearby Lynchburg, Va.

What Is It at RKO-Keith's? Why, It's 'Hellzapoppin'!'

By Richard L. Coe

We think it was what the pioneers used to call a "movie" that we saw yesterday at RKO-Keith's. Certainly that's the form of entertainment the Keith screen has been offering so successfully these many years. But as "Hellzapoppin'" proclaims early in its running, "any resemblance between this and anything else is purely coincidental." So, since we have the habit of pigeonholing, let's allow that this adaptation by Olsen and Johnson of their fabulous "Hellzapoppin'" property is a "movie."

What sort of "movie" "Hellzapoppin'" is this observer baldly refuses to state. Maybe it isn't playing ball to let you down like this—a reviewer's job is to say that so 'n so is a wonderful film and you shouldn't miss it and that this 'n that is a tiresome bore and you should avoid it as the plague. Into neither of these snug categories does "Hellzapoppin'" fall.

So let's avoid all that and say that much of "Hellzapoppin'" made us laugh like a mental delinquent, that its pretty girls are fresh and charming, that its tunes are pleasant if undistinguished and that it is bound to take your mind off the war if only to be amazed that such a thing as "Hellzapoppin'" can even exist.

Film Comics in Cast

For, of course, its parent "Hellzapoppin'," the one which played in theaters where you usually see plays and musical comedies, also was of another world. Thus, the screen epic of Messrs. Olsen and Johnson comes by its depravity legitimately. Martha Raye, Mischa Auer and Hugh Herbert are very much on hand to further the antics of O. and J. and at their more fortunate moments in this "film" they are genuinely funny.

There is, albeit, one thing that keeps the screen "Hellzapoppin'" from being perfect of its nebulous kind. It tries too hard. It breaks its back bending over. It patently thinks itself the funniest thing ever created which is the most dangerous thing humor can be guilty of. Consequently, you occasionally wish the whole pack of poppers would shut up and go away.

Just about every gag you and O. and J. ever thought of is employed. The man looking for Mrs. Jones and the woman looking for Oscar are there. Martha Raye is mancrazy as ever and pounces on that admirable varlet for whose interpretation Mischa Auer is so celebrated. Hugh Herbert plays a fantastic detective-magician. Then, there's fun in a projection booth, with neat little cracks about "Citizen Kane's" Rosebud and Mr. Jordan's disappearing act also on deck.

"Time's" Air Raid Short

For any more of this curious whatizzit, you'll have to find out for yourself, for the surprise element is "Hellzapoppin's" ace in the hole. One word of caution, though: If you thought its stage parent out of your ken of cultural appreciation, obey that instinct and leave Keith's "movie" to those with less classical demands.

Abetting the nonsense on the screen are WMAL'S Kibitzers, who have a few moments of their own in other parts of the theater.

Top short subject at the Fifteenth Street house is the "March of Time" on "When Air Raids Strike." This interesting release draws on Britain's ARP for most of its information, a situation that seems to stress the uncertainty with which we are yet proceeding along these lines. The Londoners' businesslike behavior with incendiaries and the necessity for civilians staying off the streets during air battles are particularly striking aspects of this illuminating short.

Walt Disney gives Donald Duck a workout in getting comfortably into bed and the Pathe news completes the bill.

Palace

A second week, naturally, Washington's sense of discrimination is such that no picture so thoroughly entertaining as "The Woman of the Year" could possibly slip off the Palace screen at the end of a single week's capacity engagement. Especially with Spencer Tracy and Katharine Hepburn in the co-stellar roles.

Perhaps not so rich in characterization and incident as "The Philadelphia Story," Miss Hepburn's first screen vehicle since still is so enormously diverting a comedy-drama that no conscientious amusement-seeker ever will stop to draw contrasts. It is the love idyll of a great woman columnist and a famous sports writer on the same metropolitan journal. Their love life is almost as smooth and tranquil as the Bataan Peninsula. But they work it out—daffily, deliriously and delightfully, with just enough seriousness to balance the whole thing. The supporting cast, with Roscoe Karns, Reginald Owen, Fay Bainter, Minor Watson, Dan Tobin, William Bendix and the rest, is top-hole. The short subjects also are being carried over, with a new newsreel for the old.

—HEDDA HOPPER—

So He Hated Kids!

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 19.—I'm happy that Nunnally Johnson is going to do "The Pied Piper," which is a delightful story. It's about a man who hates children, but as he prepares to leave France just ahead of the occupation, he comes across a child who's alone in the town. He hasn't the heart to abandon him, so takes him along, intending to turn him over to the proper authorities when he gets back to England. But in each town he runs into a similar situation and takes on another small charge or two. By the time he gets back to England, he has eight, who have wormed their way into his affections, so he keeps the whole kit and caboodle of them. Monty Woolley will probably play the part, and he'll be grand—unless "The Man Who Came to Dinner" has bitten his soul with acid so deeply he might revert to type and bite one of the children, thereby giving him hydrophobia! Little Roddy McDowall is already acquiring a French accent for the part of the main child.

When Jean Gabin stars in "The Night the World Shook," which will be his next, the ladies of the country will probably think it's a convulsion of nature and shake, too. Instead, it will just be the new Frenchman.

Joe E. Brown is wanted for a tour of the Caribbean camps as soon as he finishes his present camp tour back East . . . Director Irving Cummings had a letter from Jack Oakie, who's doing Eastern camps, too. Jack says the gags which get the belly laughs are old ones he used years ago. "Don't let them kid you," he wrote, "the corn is still green!"

"Gorgeous Korjus," who came to town, took off 75 pounds, learned to speak English, and I thought was superb in "The Great Waltz," now is wanted for a concert tour by Charles Wagner, the man who managed Jeannette MacDonald and so many other opera stars.

A men's clothing firm wants Boris Morros to let them put out a line of loud shirts to bear his name. In case you've never seen one of Morros' shirts, this will give you an idea. When W. C. Fields met him wearing a brilliant orange number, Bill Said, "That's the first sunset I ever saw with buttons!"

Columbia

"Johnny Eager," M-G-M.'s flamboyant fable of the brash young man who ran a parole into a violent death to teach the sociologically inclined daughter of the D. A. a lesson in love, returns to F Street the further to spread its violent fascinations as chief screen feature for the week at Loew's Columbia Theater. It is as cleverly devised—and probably as unbelievable—as any of the current crop of gangster melodramas that have found their way to public view.

If the picture had nothing else—and it has—Robert Taylor, Lana Turner and Edward Arnold in its leading roles would be enough. Mr. Taylor and Miss Turner are as inflammable a pair as you would care to encounter between the taxicab stand, where he masquerades, and the dog track, where he rules as czar of the hoodlums. Miss Turner found out! Van Heflin, in the unique role of a drunken poet-philosopher, leads a strong supporting cast.

—LEONARD LYONS—

Loose-Leaf Notebook

New York, Feb. 19.

When the critics reviewed Gilbert Miller's "Heart of a City," they singled out, for particular praise, Miss Gertrude Musgrove, a British actress who was making her Broadway debut in this play. She's Alex Korda's sister-in-law, and this is how she came to get the featured role: In a Hollywood swimming pool recently, Miller met two young ladies—Miss Musgrove and Joan Gardner. When he returned to New York and began casting his new play, he remembered that one of those Hollywood girls was ideally suited for the role. He wanted to hire Miss Gardner, thought she was Miss Musgrove—and sent a wire to the latter. She arrived when rehearsals were scheduled to begin. She read the lines, satisfied the producer, and won the job.

Virginia Hill, the madcap heiress who backs night clubs, is opening a Hurricane Club in Mexico City . . . One of the unlisted guests at Litvinoff's reception last week was Gene Tierney, the actress . . . Yale University has invited a number of prominent people who have documents and correspondence which might become of historical value to present them to the university. The documents will be stored in vaults to be opened at whatever future date specified by the doners . . . Sinclair Lewis has presented all his correspondence and Ruth Gordon has been invited to do so . . . . Miss Gordon sent a letter to George Cukor, the movie director: "If you want to get into Yale University, write me a letter."

The other night the six members of the crew of the Army bomber which destroyed the submarine responsible for the sinking of the "China Arrow" were entertained at the Rainbow Room. Their host was Capt. Lynn Farnol, of Mitchel Field . . . When the six uniformed men arrived, they discovered that their host had brought only three girls . . . "But we're six men," they protested . . . "We could only get three girls for you," they were told . . . Lieut. Abernathy, the bomber pilot, turned to his companions and sighed: "What do we have to do to get six girls—sink TWO subs?"

Ernest Hemingway, now at his home in Cuba, is collecting a book of short stories for publication soon . . . Sunday's snowfall in New York was a fortunate event for Damon Runyon. He had arrived from Hollywood the day before to get some Manhattan snow scenes he needs for his new movie. The weather bureau had refused to issue any predictions—and so Runyon depended upon luck and it came his way . . . There will be a battle over the estate of the late August Heckscher—who left his property to his widow. She died a few weeks after he did, leaving a will in which she referred to another testament, written years before and which is missing.

Sinclair Lewis, who has been visiting the various State capitals throughout New England, is getting background material for his new book. The principal character will be a political Elmer Gantry . . . Mrs. Ernest Lundeen, widow of the late Senator Lundeen, has been subpoenaed by the defense in the trial of George Sylvester Viereck . . . William P. Maloney, who is prosecuting that trial, never has lost a case throughout his long career as a prosecutor . . . Dr. Lee C. Rosten, author of "Hollywood," the recent best-seller, will be chief of the movie division of the Office of Facts & Figures and Lowell Mellett's aide in Washington.

Mildred Natwick plays the role of the spiritualist-medium in Noel Coward's "Blithe Spirit." She needed a strange, old-fashioned dress for that role and finally found the one that was most suitable. It was a second-hand dress, which she discovered in a Thrift Shop for $3.50 . . . Miss Natwick has been wearing that dress at every performance, so that now it's falling apart. The management tried to find another one like it in vain. They therefore went to the Brooks Costume Co. to have that $3.50 copied. The cost is $125.

Peter R. Nehemkus, jr., former special counsel to the SEC, is expected to be assigned to the War Production Board . . . Gertrude Stein, now living in France, has written to friends reporting that she has no real food problem.

How Guerrillas Fight, Suffer For Russia

By Walter Kerr

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

One Hundred Miles West of Moscow, Feb. 19.—During the time the German army occupied the agricultural and dairy region around Lotoshino, on the highway from Moscow to Rzhev and Riga, 103 middle-aged men, most of them farmers and all of them heads of families, lived in woods and swamps from where they waged guerrilla warfare against the invaders.

These men knew pretty well what was happening in their home villages while the Germans were there, for stories trickled out to them, but it was only when they returned to their homes, after the Germans had been driven out, that they realized the full extent of the horror and the damage caused by the enemy. Nine hundred and forty-nine men, women and children had been hanged, burned or frozen to death; 4713 houses, of the district's total of 6000, were destroyed.

But in the 99 days these guerrillas fought behind the German lines they extracted some measure of revenge. They killed 207 German soldiers and officers for certain, and perhaps 300 more. They destroyed 20 truckloads of ammunition and 20 other vehicles. They even followed a German plane to its landing field, and burned it.

Organized Before Occupation

Their detachment as guerrilla fighters was organized before the German occupation. Supplies of food, arms and ammunition had been stored beforehand in the woods. On October 12, the day before the Germans came in, the men left their homes. One man, Ivan Soloviev, a 46-year-old worker at the cooperative store, remained behind. Two hours before the Germans arrived he cut the telephone wires in Lohoshino village and then joined his fellow guerrillas in the woods.

At the same time Soloviev's wife and children, a 16-year-old son and two daughters, one 13 and the other 11, left Lotoshino and went to the village of Novoshino, 2 miles to the north. There they took refuge for a brief spell at the home of the wife's mother, Stapanida Desterovna, where this morning I talked with Soloviev.

He told of the guerrilla band, and of what had happened to his family. Novoshino was occupied by the Germans and Soloviev's family fled. They returned to Lotoshino, where for a few nights they lived in ditches and woods. Then, with other families, they found some abandoned houses where they lived for three months, sustaining themselves on frozen potatoes. Even this wretched shelter was taken from them when the Germans retreated. Before leaving, the Germans put the torch to Lotoshino village. But the family survived the experience, which left the 13-year-old girl with a frozen hand.

Soloviev, meanwhile, fought with the guerrillas, who were led by Ivan Simonovich Rozov, head of the district's local industries in peacetime. The band had 12 horses, 4 machine-guns, rifles and grenades. At first they lived in the woods, but when the increasing size of the German forces made this too dangerous they moved to the swamps, where they occupied huts. There they enjoyed comparative safety, for the Germans did not dare leave the roads and the swamps were accessible only by trails.

Used Boots in Relays

In the beginning the guerrillas used horses on their scouting expeditions, but this soon became too dangerous and was abandoned. The men fought and hunted by night. Usually their attacks were made against roads. As the days grew colder their suffering increased. Some were without overcoats and, even with the assistance given by guerrilla outfits at Volokolamsk and Visokovski, the band had been able to obtain only 30 pairs of the warm Russian felt boots. These were used in rotation, with sentries and night marauders getting first claim to their use. Food was limited to cabbage and grain.

The guerrilla work required extreme caution. Fires were lighted only at night, to avoid detection by enemy observation planes. Even at night the chimneys of the swamp dugouts were covered with brush to diffuse the smoke of the fires.

Bag Bus of Officers

One night two partisans set an ambush for a truck. Instead of a truck, however, the Russians found themselves face to face with a bus loaded with German officers. The bus was damaged, and when the Germans tried to extricate themselves the guerrillas fired at them and tossed a few grenades into the bus. A second and a third bus load of German officers came up and rammed into the obstruction on the road. The buses were damaged, but the Germans poured out, forcing the guerrillas to flee.

On another occasion some partisans killed a motorcycle rider. The guerrillas lugged the machine several miles and then tried for hours to start the motor. Failing, they destroyed the machine.

Soloviev said the Germans seldom dared to leave the roads and even shunned the lanes through the forest. Toward the end of the Nazi occupation, a German linesman sent out to repair telephone wires would be accompanied by several guards. The only troops who entered the woods to hunt for the guerrillas were Finnish skiers.

The partisans are now back in their homes, if these escaped the ravages of the Germans. Many are crowded into the houses of neighbors. All are working on the list of German damage.

Reds Drive Northern Jaw Of Pincers Closer to Smolensk

By the Associated Press

Moscow, Feb. 19.—The Red Army pushed more forces into White Russia today and thereby advanced a northern pincers farther behind strategic Smolensk, where one of the strongest German armies in Russia is finding itself increasingly threatened with encirclement.

The Russians already had thrust deep into the Nazi lines south of Smolensk, and some observers expect an early announcement of sweeping victory in this area.

The people of the Soviet Union specifically are awaiting next Monday, the twenty-fourth anniversary of the founding of the Red Army, expecting that a triumphal announcement will be made of a widespread liberation of Soviet territory from German rule. The government for some time has been silent on specific gains being made by the Soviet forces, reporting only general advances.

Noting the deep thrusts the Russians are making both above and below Smolensk, some observers expect this region will figure in the announcement.

Although Red army dispatches reported new penetrations into White Russia, the most westerly point mentioned as captured was Kresty, in the vicinity of Velizh, which is 70 miles northwest of Smolensk and 20 miles short of the White Russian frontier.

Tonight's Soviet communique repeated the phraseology used for some time: "During February 19 our troops waged offensive battles and occupied several inhabited points. On some sectors of the front the enemy made counterattacks which our troops repelled with heavy losses to the Germans. On February 18 we destroyed 16 German planes. Our losses were eight planes."

Free Serbs Crush Fascist Expedition

London, (Friday) Feb. 20 (U.P.).—The "free Jugo-Slav army" operating in the Kosara mauntains of Bosnia has destroyed a "Fascist expedition" of 5000 soldiers and captured quantities of grenade-throwers, machineguns and ammunition, according to intelligence reports reaching here today.

The reports indicated the Jugo-Slav army was operating over a wide area and had started a new offensive against German and Italian forces of occupation in the former Jugo-Slav state. Guerrillas captured a railway station on the line from Triste to Ljubljana, destroyed the station, set fire to 23 oil tanks and killed a number of Italians. Montenegrin guerrillas, on roads between Bilece and Niksic attacked a column of Italian troops, captured four tanks, three cars, 100 guns and many prisoners. Other guerrillas attacked an Italian column near Klobruk and captured two tanks, 21 motorcycles and other materials.

A.B.C. Board Probe Discussion Today

The House District Committee will meet in executive session at 11 a. m. today to act on a proposal for an investigation of the District Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

It is understood that action on the request made last week by Representative Hebert (Democrat), of Louisiana, has been withheld pending information on the A. B. C. Board from the Commissioners.

John L. Lewis' Wife Recovering

Mrs. John L. Lewis, wife of the president of the United Mine Workers' Union, was reported "doing very nicely" yesterday at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, following a brain operation.

Dr. Walter E. Dandy, brain surgeon, performed the operation Wednesday, the Associated Press reported. His office did not disclose details.

The mine leader and his wife live in Alexandria. Lewis maintains an office in the Mine Workers' Building at Fifteenth and I Streets Northwest.

NOTICE

"TO ESSO FUEL OIL CUSTOMERS
In the Atlantic Seaboard Area"

The war is seriously hindering petroleum deliveries to this section. A number of tankers have been sunk. Others have been shifted to the Pacific to strengthen our armed forces there.

The submarine menace results in longer and slower tanker voyages by new routes.

In an attempt to stretch immediately available supplies to the maximum extent, the Petroleum Coordinator has approved an oil industry plan which includes the following restrictions on deliveries:

For All Commercial Use Including War Industry Plants
Deliveries Must Be Limited to 14 Days' Supply.

For Home-Owners and Other Heating Oil Users

A. No deliveries of domestic heating oil can be made in this area until the oil you have on hand is less than one-fifth of tank capacity.

B. When your tank is less than one-fifth full, supply may be replenished up to three-quarters of capacity of tank.

In this area, the supply is low because of lack of transportation. Gasoline and other petroleum products are also seriously affected.

Further curtailment is in prospect. To make further restrictions less severe, you can help now by conserving fuel in the following ways:

—Turn thermostats down at night and when you are away from home.

—Shut off radiators in rooms you are not using.

—Close bedroom doors at night.

—Keep vents and fireplace flues closed when not in use.

We shall all have to work together if the civilian oil supply is to continue through the heating season.

We're doing OUR best to make a little go a long way and keep war production rolling.

Maybe you can't carry a gun—but you can save oil. Won't you start right now?

Oil Is Ammunition—Use It Wisely!

War Board

Lack of a well-defined wage policy and of a union shop policy handicapped the War Labor Board from the start. That has often been said. But, coming from William M. Leiserson, of the National Labor Relations Board, the opinion acquires special emphasis. Mr. Leiserson expressed himself in this strain in a recent address delivered before students of New York's City College.

Organized labor is already demanding sharp wage increases and recognition of the union shop. Mr. Leiserson believes—and, in our opinion rightly—that success or failure of the new board will doubtless be determined by its method of handling these two dominant issues. If the board should decide each case on its merits, as did its predecessor, the Mediation Board, a breakup would inevitably result before long, through refusal either of employers or of union representatives to abide by its eclectic decisions. Moreover, in the absence of definite policies controversies will actually be encouraged as a means of getting cases before the board.

Obviously such important national issues as the closed shop and the method to be followed in adjusting wage payments to changes in living costs should not be left to the determination of a board set up to decide disputes between employers and employes. The definition of policy is the function of Congress, or in time of war a responsibility which may properly be delegated to the President alone.

Mr. Leiserson concludes that "it is preferable both for efficiency reasons and for the sake of national unity, that the policies which are to govern labor relations in war industries should be worked out by mutual agreement and consent so far as possible." However, no such voluntary agreements in regard to major policies appear to be in sight. Consequently, if the War Labor Board is to function successfully, Congress must either lay down rules for its guidance, or else the President must use his influence to bring about a policy accord between industry and labor by voluntary agreement. That is the very logical conclusion reached by Mr. Leiserson after a brilliant analysis of the shortcomings of the present war labor program. We predict that failure to heed his warnings of storms ahead will bring about the speedy downfall of the reconstituted War Labor Board.

Repairing Ships

Whether or not fortuitous, there was excellent timing in the President's denunciation of stories that the damage at Pearl Harbor was greater than reported, and in the Navy Department's release of a news item to support the President. The two items occurred side by side in many newspapers the next morning. Supposedly "destroyed" by the Japanese at Pearl Harbor, the destroyer Shaw, reported the Navy Department, had reached a mainland port for repairs.

The important thing, however, is not such striking substantiation, but the reminder that now we are in the war we have not only to turn out more ships but to repair damages as well. Obviously the shipbuilding program is to some extent dependent on how much time is required by the yards for repairs to ships that have been in action. The more extensive the damage, the slower the business of turning out new ships. For many months American yards have been repairing damaged British vessels and will presumably continue to do so. How such repair activities have affected our yards may not be divulged. But it is perfectly evident that our waging of naval warfare in the Southwest Pacific complicates the repair situation.

The swift advance of the Japanese has already deprived us of repair facilities in the Philippines, at Hongkong, at Singapore, at Amboina. Nor does it seem likely, considering the Japanese pressure, that we can use the repair facilities at Sourabaya much longer. Except for the facilities at Singapore, none of those lost compare with those still available at Pearl Harbor. But Pearl Harbor is some 5000 miles distant from the main war theater in the Southwest Pacific. Moreover, while it has been our boast that we can do just about everything for warships at Pearl Harbor but build them, the surprise attack of the Japanese there will surely tax repair facilities for some time to come.

In this circumstance it will not be surprising if ships damaged at Pearl Harbor are patched up—as was the Shaw—and sent to the mainland for repair. That would leave some of the Pearl Harbor facilities free to take care of vessels limping in from naval engagements to the south and west. It would be a logical makeshift arrangement, though Australian yards which are equipped to repair units of the Australian navy should be of considerable use to us. In any case the intensification of the war at sea inevitably means more repair work for our mainland yards. It is work which will have to be taken in stride as we go about the business of upping new ship production.

Chiang And Gandhi

Portents of revolutionary change rise like peaks in the path of the war across the continents. Such a portent is contained in Chiang Kai-shek's meetings with the Indian leaders. The conferences no doubt will contribute to the downfall of Japan. But that is not the only significant aspect of this event which will impress the Western world. These men arose as leaders in protest against the privileged position of the white men in their countries. The future position of the West in the East is thus involved in the conferences in India.

A bogey used to prey on many Western minds that one day an Asiatic bloc would arise and destroy the West. No more is heard of it. In this war the East is as much divided as the West, and Japan has forever ruined any chance she may have had of Asiatic leadership. But, aside from that, there was never any possibility of such a bloc. Japanese always have been despised by the Chinese as "dwarfmen." Relations between Chinese and Hindus have never been intimate. The countries of the East are less related, indeed, than the countries of the West. One reason is that they have had too many internal differences to be able to think and act as a unit in external matters.

The men who have been conferring in India illustrate these differences perfectly. Chiang Kai-shek is an Old Testament Christian who is wedded to Chinese individualism. Mr. Jinnah is a Mohammedan, a practical politician, and is opposed to the political aspirations of Hindu India. Gandhi, as all the world knows, is a religious ascetic. What kind of independence he wants for India, only Gandhi knows, for at various times he has outlined many varieties. Nehru is a revolutionary with a collectivist slant. Of them all only Nehru seems to have qualified his nationalism in any manner which would admit of a close tie with other Asian countries. "My own picture of the future," he once said, "is a federation which includes China and India, Burma and Ceylon, Afghanistan, and possibly other countries." But the notion that Chiang, the enemy of communism, could ever work permanently with Nehru, who flirts with communism, is fantastic.

These men are joined only by their fear of Japan and their nationalism. They are the voices of a new order for Asia which is rapidly replacing the old—an order that decrees self-determination and full sovereignty. Events have now put weight into those voices. The white man owed his privileged position in Asia as much to prestige as to power. But his prestige has come tumbling off its pedestal in every Asiatic country as a result of the successes of Japan. Thus nationalism will be fomented everywhere in the East. If we can blend these nationalist strivings into a new world order, we shall deserve well of the next generation. The effort deserves a Pacific charter to be put side by side with the Atlantic charter.

Riom Trial

Treachery is of the very essence of the Vichy system and we can anticipate that the men of Vichy will go as far and as fast as they can in making France part of the new order. Indicative of this circumstance is the trial at Riom of French statesmen accused of having led France to defeat. We need hold no brief for Leon Blum, Edouard Daladier, Maurice Gamelin and their codefendants. Their records are far from blameless. But they were paragons of virtue in comparison with the Quislings who are now their jailers and hope to become their executioners. If these men failed to do all that was necessary to bring France to the degree of military preparedness that the situation demanded, they were not alone, and certainly they do not have on their conscience the shame of having sold out to the enemy of civilization and reduced their proud nation to the servile status of a lickspittle forever abasing itself before Hitler.

This is precisely the record of the men of Vichy. To win Hitler's favor they adopted en masse the Nuremberg laws of the Third Reich. At Hitler's behest they fought the British in Syria, but turned Indo-China over to the Japanese without a blow, and thus made possible all the grim developments of the past eleven weeks. The prisoners at Riom are being tried not for what they did or failed to do but for what they are. Their competence may be open to question, but their honor is unscathed. Unlike the men of Vichy they are not traitors. And that, in the eyes of the Vichy government, is their greatest crime. Nothing more shameful than the Riom trial has happened in centuries.

Undemocratic Bill

Attorney General Biddle's so-called war-secrets bill is one of the most drastic that the present Administration has ever sent to Capitol Hill. It might better be labeled "a bill to halt criticism of any Government agency that wishes to conceal its blunders from the public." For it provides stiff fines or imprisonment for any person who might "furnish, communicate, divulge, or publish" information from "any file, instrument, letter, memorandum, book, pamphlet, paper, document, manuscript, map, picture, plan, record, or other writing" declared to be secret or confidential by a governmental agency. The effect might easily be to cut off all information about governmental activities, except that which the various departments and agencies might be willing to release.

The sins of omission in this bill are particularly glaring. Apparently it is designed to become permanent legislation, since it contains nothing to limit its application to the duration of the war. Even in wartime such restrictions upon the freedom of speech and of the press would be wholly unwarranted. Exercise of the power sought in this bill during peacetime would go a long way toward liquidating the democracy we are fighting to protect.

Nor is the bill limited in its application to war agencies. It would penalize the disclosure of information declared to be secret "by any rule or regulation of any department or agency of the United States" after such rules had been published in the Code of Federal Regulations or the Federal Register. Presumably reports of corruption in an agency having nothing to do with the war could be completely withheld from the public until the head of the department could be induced to release the story.

War secrets must necessarily be protected as a matter of national security. There will be no complaint about any restrictions that are necessary to keep vital information from reaching the hands of the enemy. But there can be no justification whatever for an act broad enough to cut off constructive criticism of the conduct of the war and of nonwar activities as well. Fortunately there is no indication that Congress will enact the bill in its present form. Chairman Van Nuys of the Senate Judiciary Committee has concluded, even before hearings have begun, that the measure will have to be rewritten. What is chiefly disturbing about the bill is the fact that a member of the Cabinet would sponsor a potential assault upon democratic practices at a time when the country needs to mobilize all its energy to fight the Japo-Nazi system abroad.

Tax Methods

A great deal of time will be saved and much futile debate avoided if the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee manage to reach a preliminary agreement with the Treasury on a few controversial issues of long standing. With that end in view conferences have been held since January to iron out differences of opinion on certain questions in advance of actual drafting of a new tax bill. For instance, the Treasury experts want to make invested capital the basis for taxation of excess profits, while the experts for the Joint Congressional Committee on Internal Revenue have in the past vigorously and successfully opposed this plan. There are strong arguments to support both sides of the question, but there is no point in endlessly repeating them and needlessly delaying passage of tax legislation.

The proposal to make joint income tax returns by husband and wife mandatory is another moot issue that has aroused a great deal of heated discussion. It, too, is a recommendation that should be debated calmly and be disposed of without further delay. The so-called withholding tax has also given rise to differences of opinion among the experts. In this case a decision cannot be easily reached before the general tax program takes shape. For the arguments favoring a withholding tax on wages and salaries will be much less strong if Congress should decide to levy a general sales tax in preference to sharp increases in direct income taxes.

TO A WAR VICTIM

I used to write of strawberries and cream;
Of moonlit waters, rising trout that "plup;"
Of gossamer wings that flicker on my stream;
Of the soft muzzle of my cocker pup;
Of walks through winter woods, of toddy after;
Of flaming autumn foliage, feathery springs;
Of friends to supper, films and books and laughter;
Of pungent wood smoke, and of all good things.

How can I write of fullness to your dearth?
Of home to you who are homeless, having no place?
How can I write of friends or food or mirth?
Confront your sorrow with a cheerful face,
And share your anguish with a fatuous grin?
How can I end my letter, how begin?

Equal Rights

A recent Gallup Poll shows 78 per cent approval of equal wages for women and men engaged in the same work in industry.

I am curious to see whether, following the war, employers will choose to continue employing women, or to drop them in favor of men. And only on the basis of equal pay for both sexes shall we learn what employers actually think of the relative value of men and women.

For years the so-called "equal rights amendment," which would compel equality of wages for women and men, has been blocked in Congress by, of all people, women's organizations. Behind this opposition is undoubtedly the fear that women can't stand on their own feet, but must make wage and salary concessions to hold their places against masculine competition.

Equality of compensation would make the issue clear-cut. It would force employers who may have hired women as "bargains" to restudy their unit labor costs before discriminating against either sex.

But a warning should be sounded. In many cases, men already receive lower pay, on account of feminine competition for jobs, than they otherwise might receive. It would be unfortunate if the proposed equality were to be obtained by a general reduction of men's compensation to the current levels of women's pay.

Let us raise women's wages to equal those of men similarly engaged, instead of reducing men's wages to equal women's. Then may the best man (or woman) win, and "the devil take the hindermost."

American Bookbinding

In your February 7 edition, Mr. Luigi Criscuolo wrote a letter about conserving paper. I think that he is all wet, and I am writing as a trades-unionist and practical bookbinder.

I believe we should eliminate as much war hysteria as possible. It is not for L. C. or myself to run to Mr. Nelson or anybody suggesting some out-of-date method used in Europe. They are 50 years behind the times of up-to-date printing and bookbinding, and Mr. Nelson is very well advised as to what we should conserve.

I would suggest that we let our buyers of printing and binding decide on what type of work they want and not try and force our publishers to eliminate this and that to tear down the standard of living and wages to which Americans are used.

Our international office has been informed that there are paper and supplies to go around for the present. Until such time as we are forced to curtail the use of paper and supplies let us carry on in our good old American way and have less hysteria and suggestions that we eliminate types of printing and binding. Baseball In Wartime

While practically all of us agree that baseball is an excelling stimulus, providing refreshment of strength and spirit to the men and women engaged in an all-out program of war industries, it is not essential that any man of military age or fitness be excused from active service in the armed forces to provide this sport.

The youth of America—all of it—plays this game, and the schools and semipro teams are capable of providing an exhibition as thrilling and satisfying as is necessary in these crucial times.

Perhaps my interpretation of the Constitution is wrong—that Freedom, Equality and Justice are for ALL—yet I fail to find any passage that provides discrimination against the youth who is not a professional baseball player.

Wants To Be Practical

R. L. Sherrick is exactly right in his letter which you published this morning. The criticism we the people have received from supposed leaders, that we have failed to realize the seriousness of our situation, is just yapping, the mouthing of currently-popular phrases originated by other more impressive speakers.

What are we supposed to do, jump up and down and scream "this is terrible?" Where is there one responsible Federal official who will tell us something practical to do to help win the war?

I have an idea that may not be practical, but I'd like the answer from someone who knows. In Washington, I know of many like myself, who hold "desk" jobs, and who have, likewise, a degree of manual skill. We would be glad to spend after-work hours in some productive work, as our contribution to winning the war. For example, we could easily be taught a simple operation in the process of manufacturing some war munition. Working alongside a skilled man on a night shift, we could actually produce something. In cities like Detroit, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Los Angeles, there must be many thousands like us who could add many thousands of man-hours a day to the production of real weapons.

I can't get interested in home defense. To me, it is too far from practicality. I can go to meetings, make motions, form committees and file reports with the best of them, but that's just waste of electricity and time. I'd rather be a private in a Citizen's Army of the Wrench and Screw on Nut No. 44 in Operation No. 21.

Could this be arranged?

Fulfillment Of Prophecy

Relentless, tormenting fear grips the world today. Nations are dazed, confused and beaten down. The whole world lives and moves in an atmosphere of uncertainty and crisis. The nerves of countless millions are cracking under the terrific strain and men are going mad. Here and there and everywhere the searching questions are asked: Is there no remedy? Where shall we turn, and to whom shall we look in this tragic hour?

The prophecies of the Bible and they alone give a correct view and clear meaning of today's world situation. In this dark and perilous hour God, through His prophets, points out the one only inevitable solution. (2 Peter 1:19-21.)

Christ Himself, speaking of the closing scenes of earth's history and of His second advent, warns His people to watch for a time when there would be "distress of nations, with perplexity . . . men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth" (Luke 21:25-27). We are today witnessing the literal fulfillment of these prophetic words. J. M. BOYCE.

Advice To Women

Here is some advice to the women of Washington: If you must be abroad in the unprotected streets of the Capital of the Nation by night, or even by day, carry in your hand a loose paper of cayenne pepper. When the beasts of the jungle threaten you throw in their faces or rub carefully in their eyes the contents of the paper. You can count on immediate and effective results. ONE OF THE SPECIES.

Unnecessary Project

You recently ran an editorial commenting on the complacency of the American public with regards to the war, in which, we understand you took a slap at the Congressional complacency, calling attention to the enormous waste of Government funds on unnecessary projects.

We heard the editorial mentioned by a news commentator on the radio, as did several other folks hereabout. It hit a responsive chord down here in this section of Dixie—such a responsive chord that we would like to have a copy of the editorial with permission to reproduce it in our papers.

This past week Government representatives were here proposing to build 25 $2000 homes in the country for farmers who would deed the Government an acre of ground. No down payments were required, and the farmer would be permitted to occupy the house at a yearly rental of only $73. Or he could buy the property at about the same rate of pay per year, with 60 years to pay.

Such stuff should be stopped, together with other projects that are costing us millions of dollars.

OCD Proposals

Now that the tumult and the shouting are dying, may a volunteer civilian defense worker be allowed to express the hope that in some not too distant future the OCD may attain the following goals of achievement:

Audible air raid sirens.

In the District of Columbia, sufficient cooperation between District Commissioners and public utilities to ensure that street lamps shall be extinguished during blackouts.

Equipment for fighting incendiary bombs made available at low cost to everybody in this country.

Some form of shelter against high explosives provided free, or at low cost, for everybody in this country.

Gas masks distributed to everybody in target cities or areas.

A plan for evacuating children, the infirm and the aged from target cities or areas, worked out in such detail that evacuation could take place at short notice.

Finally, that instructions for fighting incendiary bombs and chemical warfare gases should reach every home in this country.

Conduit Road

We need more streets with identifying and geographical names, such as Conduit Road, Canal Road, Foxhall Road and Cathedral Avenue, so that people can find their way about the city without a guide. To name all the streets in Washington after MacArthur would not help the situation in the Philippines one bit, and it would not only be a waste of time, but a silly and empty gesture. This is no time for flattery. Surely Congress can find something constructive and worth while to do without going off half-cocked on such a cockeye measure as changing the name of a thoroughfare during such an emergency as exists today. Let Conduit Road alone!

Is there any assurance from the taxicab associations that the drivers will use curb parking spaces and stop cruising? They should do this as a conservation measure to save tires, gas and wear and tear. Of necessity they will have to keep moving during morning and evening rush hours. PRACTICAL.

The Post Impressionist

Singapore

Four years ago almost to the day I arrived in Singapore. The great naval base had been formally dedicated with the American Navy participating in the opening ceremonies. The two most formidable navies in the world had made this occasion the most impressive display in naval history. Japan would never dare! Up at Raffles Hotel, Victorian in its atmosphere, appearance and appointments, meticulously clad English gentlemen sipping cool "stengahs" nodding approvingly over their Straits Settlements Times. Quiet English ladies enjoyed their tiffin and tea more than they had for many a moon. Someone even suggested that dancing in the staid ballroom might be prolonged until 1 a. m.

Back in the days when there was such a thing as travel, everyone who steamed into the harbor of Singapore was in for a letdown. Singapore's reputation as a sink of iniquity had long been established and exaggerated through the efforts of fiction writers and Hollywood. Instead of a murky harbor thick with hundreds of craft of every nationality and of every description, our ship slid into a bright shining harbor alongside other sleek luxury liners. After leaving the pier we were whisked up a broad asphalt avenue lined with six-story buildings and neat, well kept shops with attractively displayed goods mostly from the United States. Spick and span describes the business section of Singapore all the way out to the suburbs.

More of the pleasant, easy life of the English was shown in a drive out to Tanglin, a suburb where the parks, exclusive clubs and residential sections of Singapore are located. Tanglin is much like Beverly Hills with palatial homes, wide spreading lawns and beautiful gardens kept by Malayans who make top-notch gardeners. We got to the Cricket Club in time to watch the tropical night drop suddenly over the harbor. The picturesque sails of the quaint fishing vessels the waving palm and bamboo trees stood out against the darkening sky. Night comes with amazing swiftness to this corner of the globe and every minute of dusk is precious. It is the only time when the sports-loving Englishman can indulge in golf, cricket, tennis or badminton, as it is too hot earlier in the day.

The jungle, too, fell short of Hollywood standards; not a tiger or panther to be seen, only a few harmless monkeys frisked about. There is an indescribable beauty about the scenery of Singapore Island which more than makes up for what it lacks in Hollywood appointments. With vapor continually oozing from the rich black earth, you feel as if you were in some enormous hot house. The deep blue-green foliage forms a breath-taking background for the multi-colored orchids and other exotic Eastern flowers. At the base of a gigantic fern-like tree exquisite water lilies of every color of the rainbow lie in dark still pools. Fragile wistaria climbs abundantly over anything it can cling to.

No trip to Singapore is complete without a tour of a rubber plantation. The plantations are clean, well-kept forests of tall rubber trees with leaves and foliage near the tops of the trees. The labor involved in producing crude rubber is comparatively light and agreeable and the natives much prefer a job on a rubber plantation to working in the tin mines.

I had been in Singapore nearly a week before I got a glimpse of the Singapore hallowed by Hollywood and fiction. In the native quarter is packed two-thirds of the population of Singapore, mostly Chinese. Old men with beards down to their knees stood in the open doorways listening to the monotonous Eastern music bellowing from an open window. Ten to a room, the Orientals live in unspeakable squalor in their brightly painted frame houses. The atmosphere is a formidable barrier to a tour of the "badlands" of Singapore, thick with the stench of human beings, of filthy clothing and the curious foods fried at little stands along the streets.

Down the dark twisting alleys in the secluded Oriental dens lurk the plots for a hundred thrillers. The bearded, stalwart Sikh policeman, familiar to every visitor of Singapore, is scarce in these parts. Besides the Chinese, men of every race in every sort of garment form a continuous procession down the narrow streets. Here is the great melting pot of the East with Chinese, Japanese, Filipinos, Malayans, Hindus, Arabs, Javanese etc. Such a medley exists that when the census was taken not so many years ago, the officials found some people whose language and race they were unable to indentify.

Exactly how and when Singapore was founded is somewhat obscure due to the fact that many of the records regarding the founding of the settlement have been destroyed. However, it is generally agreed that Sir Stamford Raffles, handsome former Governor of Java, knew about the island off Johore where the British had already gained territorial concessions. About the time Raffles was hunting about for a suitable trading post to compensate the East India Co. for the loss of Java, the Sultan of Johore died leaving two sons. The elder son was absent and the younger brother usurped the throne. Raffles was quick to rally disgruntled chieftains to the support of the elder brother, who was brought back to Johore. The rightful heir was duly set upon the throne and the younger brother deposed. The grateful young Sultan rewarded Raffles with the Island of Singapore, asking only a few thousand pounds in return.

Raffles was a man of generous nature and high principles and in addition he had a keen understanding of Orientals. He was the first Westerner to recognize the importance of Japan. Describing the Japanese, he wrote: "They are a people considerably advanced in science, highly acquisitive and full of penetration." Raffles' appraisal of the Japanese character, written over one hundred years ago, was never more terrifyingly true!

Amateur Sleuthing

By Ernest Lindley

Dies Committee Makes Errors

ROOTING OUT spies, fifth columnists and subversive activities is one of the more difficult problems of the Government in wartime. It is decidedly a job for experts. Ordinary citizens may see or hear things which arouse their suspicions and sometimes pass on useful tips. But well-operated organizations of professionals are needed to run these down, and sober professional judgment is needed even more to evaluate the facts.

LINDLEY

Up to now, this war is relatively free of the amateur groups which undertook in 1917 and 1918 to expose espionage and disloyalty. There is even less excuse for them now than in World War I because we have well-staffed Government agencies, chief of which is the FBI, to do the job. At best, there are sure to be mistakes of commission as well as omission. Many local citizens will suffer because of German or other alien background.

But it is only necessary to look at the Congressional Record to see that amateur bungling has not been eliminated. Take, for example, the attack on five employes of the Federal Communications Commission, of whom the most important is Goodwin Watson, a Columbia University psychologist who is chief analyst of foreign radio propaganda. He did not apply for the job—which pays less than he earns from teaching. He was chosen by the FCC after extensive research, and was most highly recommended. On the basis of material assembled by the Dies Committee, the House Appropriations Committee has prohibited use of FCC funds for next year to pay his salary. The material consists chiefly of excerpts from articles and speeches, and a list of organizations with which Watson was connected at one time or another.

SIMILAR MATERIAL was presented by the Dies Committee concerning four minor employes, including William E. Dodd, son of the late United States Ambassador to Berlin. I know none of these five.

One charge against Watson is that he wrote a statement on anti-Semitism for a booklet published by the League of American Writers: "We Hold These Truths." Among other contributors to the same booklet were: Vice President Wallace, Associate Justice Robert H. Jackson, of the Supreme Court; William Green, president of the A. F. of L.; Thomas E. Dewey, and Lewis E. Lawes, former warden of Sing Sing Prison.

The members of the American Committee for Democracy and Intellectual Freedom include: Frank Kingdon, president of the University of Newark; Frank P. Graham, president of the University of North Carolina; Marion Park, president of Bryn Mawr; two physicists who have won the Nobel Prize: Prof. Robert A. Millikan, of the California Institute of Technology, and Prof. Harold C. Urey, of Columbia University, and Prof. Harlow Shapley, noted Harvard astronomist. Watson is accused of having been a sponsor of a citizens' rally for this committee on April 13, 1940. Other sponsors included Fannie Hurst and Prof. Henry Pratt Fairchild, of New York University. The speakers included a university dean, a Presbyterian minister, and Newbold Morris, Republican president of the New York City Council.

ANOTHER ORGANIZATION listed by Dies as Communist is the Council Against Intolerance in America. One of its cochairmen is W. Warren Barbour, Republican Senator from New Jersey, and the other two are, or were, George Gordon Battle, a leading New York attorney, and William Allen White. The numerous members of the council include: Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia; Senator Bennett C. Clark, of Missouri; Alfred E. Smith, Father Maurice S. Sheehy, of Catholic University; Grover Whalen, William Green, president of the A. F. of L.; Gov. Herbert H. Lehman of New York; Thomas E. Dewey, Gov. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts, and Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox.

One count against young Dodd is that he spoke at a mass rally of the Nonsectarian and Anti-Nazi League in Carnegie Hall in January, 1938. The speaker was his father, the late Ambassador to Germany; and others announced for the occasion (the record does not show whether they were there) included Representative Hamilton Fish, jr.

Young Dodd is indicted for having signed a letter to the President urging that the Neutrality Act be amended so as to make it inapplicable to Spain. The Dodd who signed turns out to have been his father. Among others who signed the same letter was Henry L. Stimson, former Secretary of State, now Secretary of War.

YOUNG DODD is accused of having been a sponsor of the American Committee for Nonparticipation in Japanese Aggression. Again it was his father, the late Ambassador. The honorary chairman of this organization was Henry L. Stimson, now Secretary of War, and the honorary vice chairmen at various times included Henry I. Harriman, former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce; A. Lawrence Lowell, president-emeritus of Harvard, and Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, former commander-in-chief of the United States Asiatic Fleet.

Another employe of the FCC is accused of having been a member of the Marian Anderson Citizens Committee, created to sponsor a Lincoln's Birthday concert by Marian Anderson in the Lincoln Memorial. Among the sponsors of the concert were Chief Justice and Mrs. Charles E. Hughes, Leopold Stokowski, Walter Damrosch, Senator Charles McNary of Oregon, Republican leader of the Senate, and Senator Bennett C. Clark.

The list could be extended. Everyone knows that there were American citizens who favored aid to the Spanish Republic and to China, and were against the Nazis and the Japanese long ago. (It's too bad there weren't more). There were organizations to which both Communists and loyal Americans subscribed—some Communist-inspired, others not. The Nazi-Soviet pact of 1939 separated the loyal Americans from the Communists.

The samples of Dies evidence given above speak for themselves. Read in the best light they are clumsy bungling—and this is better light than Dies, on his record, deserves.

Great Strides In Aviation Predicted By Airlines Chief

By the Associated Press

Boston, Feb. 19.—Post-war developments in aviation will be so far reaching that the so-called fantasies of Jules Verne will seem conservative in comparison, C. R. Smith, president of American Airlines, Inc., said today.

Envisioning transatlantic plane service from Chicago and possibly Boston, in addition to New York, he said in an address prepared for a Chamber of Commerce luncheon:

"It will be easy enough to construct an airplane to transport 100 persons; it is not beyond the realm of probability that aircraft will be constructed capable of transporting many tons of cargo and several hundred persons.

"The hazard of landing under conditions of reduced visibility will be eliminated. The pilot will be able to guide and land his craft under zero-zero conditions, with adequate visual freedom.

"Most of the crossings to Europe will be accomplished at high altitude and at cruising speeds in excess of 300 miles an hour. Ten to 12 flights per day from New York to European ports will be scheduled within five years after the termination of the war."

He said the aviation industry at present was primarily concerned with winning the war, but that planning should begin at once for "the years of peace to follow."

Thinking in terms of a globe, rather than a flat map, Smith said, would reveal the possibilities of inland cities participating in international air travel.

"It seems to me to be quite evident," he said, "that the Middle Western, the Northwestern and a substantial part of the Pacific seaboard sections of our country can be advantageously served in international air transportation directly through the Chicago gateway."

American Communist

IT IS PLAIN that our Government wants to gentle the feelings of the Soviet Government on the subject of Communism. Even old Judge Hatton Sumners, of Dallas, one of our truly wise Congressmen, recently appealed to his colleagues to use "horse sense" and reject a little aggravating rider offered by Martin Dies which reiterated the standard American opinion of our domestic Communist element and the American Communist party. Judge Sumners held that this was an unnecessary offense to a proud and mighty ally and there was even that in his manner which suggested a fear that Joseph Stalin might pull out of the war and leave us flat if we didn't mind our manners. President Roosevelt later vetoed some routine measure, possibly the same one, in the interests of harmonious relations with our stoutest military and industrial ally and I have discovered in Joe Davies' report of his mission to Moscow and implied appeal to his countrymen to have done with red-baiting, lest we alienate a comrade in arms whom he deeply admires for qualities which all Americans must envy in the present hour. They are unified as we are not, apparently more efficient in industrial management and operation, and so much better soldiers that comparisons are painful and humiliating.

But does this mean that Stalin and the Russians are fighting this war because they like us? I am willing to believe that they do like the American people better than they like the Germans, who are their natural enemies, but Davies, himself, gives no reason to believe that the Russians would fire a single rifle bullet in any other interest than their own.

THEY ARE the most practical patriots of all, fighting for Russia only, and it is inconceivable that they would prolong their war a single hour beyond some point at which they decided that a truce or peace would best serve the interests of Soviet Russia. Of course, this does not mean that they would refuse to create a diversion against the Germans to relieve pressure on us or the British, all other things being equal, because when nations team up in war, very often one of the Allies loyally makes a bloody effort which cannot possibly show an independent military profit, just to draw the common enemy away from a distressed sector of the common front.

Davies puts it that the Russians can afford to feel kindly toward us and vice versa, because we have no designs on anything of theirs and they covet nothing of ours. In the first half of that proposition he is right, but I remember that during the period when this was an imperialist bloc, the American Communists were muttering that Alaska should by rights be Russian because the Czar who made the sale had no right to dispose of the property of the Russian people.

But I agree that none of us should needlessly antagonize Russia and that we all should appreciate the vast, if incidental, benefit that we have received from the astonishing bravery, tenacity and military skill of their fighters and the foresight and adaptability of their industries. I mark the fact that the benefit to us, which may mean the saving of countless American lives through the sacrifice of countless Russian patriots, is purely incidental, because all the testimony shows that Russia is fighting for Russia first and only.

ALL AUTHORITIES write of Russia's magnificent patriotism, but, having done that, cross themselves up when they suggest that Russia would quit fighting before her own interests were secure, merely because some Americans had resisted efforts to substitute Communism for Americanism here.

Purely gratuitous jibes at Communism, as such, should be avoided in the interest of better sympathy between the two countries in this war. But the American Communist party, by its own contention and by the terms of the basic treaty between our country and Russia, is not a Russian organization. It professes to be wholly American and absolutely independent of Moscow and if that is so, it is a strictly domestic affair of ours. We, on our part, certainly would not think of cutting out of the war before our cause was won, merely because the Moscow government took firm, quick steps to efface some element which, in the midst of war and under cover of Russia's sympathy with us, tried to disestablish Communism there.

THE TESTIMONY from Russia begins to convince me that the Russian Communist and the American are no more alike than a genuine lieutenant commander of the United States Navy and one of the same rank who has won his commission in the heavy seas of Broadway and Hollywood.

The Russian Communist is a brave idealist and magnificent patriot, the American a misanthropic failure who profanes a political faith, sacred to the Russian, to justify licentious conduct, and a traitor to his own country. The Russians must despise him as much as the Americans do.

Washington Morale

By Mark Sullivan

People Resent Lack Of It

WHEN OFFICIAL Washington talks about morale, it is the morale of the people they mean. (Rarely do they give thought to their own morale). About the morale of the country, they receive disquieting reports.

SULLIVAN

In the House the other day a Representative described something that happened in the Middle West. A newspaper in a medium-sized city was selling defense stamps through its carriers who call at subscribers' homes. Some two weeks ago sales fell off. The newspaper instructed its carriers to make inquiries tactfully designed to find the reason people were buying fewer defense stamps. The principal reason turned out to be a public mood of resentment. The causes of the resentment were two. One was the action of Congress in making pensions available to its members, with the furore which accompanied that incident. The other was the simultaneous furore about the Office of Civilian Defense using public funds to employ a girl dancer, and other persons not convincingly adapted to the practical function of supplying defenses against air raids.

This and other signs of the public mood had their effect. The girl dancer and some of the other irrelevant frills of OCD are out—that organization seemingly is getting down to the practical business of air shelters, wardens and gas masks. And apparently Congress is about to reverse its action on pensions.

BUT IS THIS mood of the people to be regarded as lack of morale on their part? Is it not rather a sign of resentment among the people against lack of morale on the part of Washington? In either event, reduction in the buying of defense bonds, if maintained for any time, would be at once deplorable and futile. If the people do not buy defense bonds, they will have to do something else, possibly more costly in the end. This war is going to be fought, and is going to be paid for. So far as it is not paid for by defense bonds, it must be paid for by taxes, or by ultimate inflation.

Official Washington troubles itself much about morale among the people, has devices for finding the state of public feeling. Suppose, now, the public were to trouble itself about the morale of official Washington, were to authorize someone, properly equipped, to make a report on the Washington state of mind, on the psychological aspect of a government at war.

SUCH A REPORT would say, I think, that in the War Department morale is beyond question. In the Navy Department the same—if the Navy suffered initial disaster, that increases the Navy's determination to equip itself well and quickly for the task it has. If morale means single-hearted concentration upon the exclusive purpose of defeating the country's enemies, then the Army and Navy have morale in the highest degree.

To a large extent, the same can be said, at this time, of the organization for producing war materials now symbolized as the War Production Board, with its far-reaching contacts. WPB, since it was given a single head, Mr. Donald Nelson, has a single purpose—maximum production of planes, tanks and other materials of war. If there are persons within WPB who still harbor some collateral purpose having to do with domestic matters, such persons are now under the authority of Mr. Nelson. By the charter of power he received from President Roosevelt, Mr. Nelson is boss, as long as Mr. Roosevelt sustains him. And no one doubts that Mr. Nelson's exclusive purpose is to produce war goods.

IF WE LOOK in the area of Government outside the Army and Navy and WPB, we do not find so completely assuring a condition. The ordinary peacetime departments of Government are largely manned by persons who took hold nine years ago. So also, of course, are the various alphabetical agencies set up since 1933. The personnel who man these departments came in with a conscious purpose, almost a fanatic purpose. What their purpose was need not be defined with any attempt at exactness—one of them, Dr. Rexford Tugwell, once called it "make America over." This purpose they held to with the tenacity of zealots.

We can hardly feel sure that with the coming of war, all the zealots and reformers were psychologically able to give up their former purpose, and now devote themselves to the exclusive purpose of war. That was the deeper cause of the trouble in OCD. The purpose of that organization was war, defense against air raids. But some who had power in OCD wished to add to it functions which, however acceptable in peacetime, were in wartime an intolerable distraction. The same conflict between peace-time and wartime purposes faces the agencies set up to handle labor disputes.

Even if all the personnel of Government departments were able to forgo peacetime purposes they had, and were able to achieve wartime morale, there would remain the antagonisms they excited from the beginning. As it was put by Mr. Stanley High, familiar with inner Washington, writing last September: "The suspicions and antagonisms which, for fair or foul reasons, attached to the New Deal are being attached to the incomprehensibly gigantic enterprise of defense. Many of the New Deal's most controversial figures, large and small, and many of its most hotly contested projects, have found shelter behind the defense front."

The Gallup Poll

Federal Plan for Annual Census Indicates Growing Recognition of Scientific Sampling

By Dr. George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Feb. 19.—A step of far-reaching importance in Governmental practices is being proposed by the Bureau of the Census in Washington.

It is a plan for an annual census of population, labor, force and housing based on sampling principles commonly used in polls of public opinion. The plan, if carried through, will enable the Bureau to report total population and other census data every year, instead of every ten years, with virtually the same degree of accuracy—possibly even with greater accuracy—and at a small part of the cost of the ten-year census.

November 2 Enumeration

The plan is being discussed by officials of the Department of Commerce with a view to submitting a request for funds to the Bureau of the Budget. A specific date, November 2 of this year, has already been tentatively proposed as the day on which the enumeration will take place.

Many people recognize that the usefulness of the 1940 census is already impaired in many respects owing to the shifts of population brought about by conversion of industry to a war basis and other economic dislocations. It is also widely recognized that an annual census conducted by the sampling or cross-section method can actually be just as accurate as the regular ten-year census, and can produce a wide variety of up-to-date information at a fraction of the cost of the regular census which attempts to count everybody in the country.

High Accuracy Possible

The census of 1940 was made by approximately 30,000 field enumerators, many of whom had no previous training for the job of counting the population. Under the new sampling census plan, enumerators will be hand-picked for their skill and intelligence, and can be expected to do a better job than the average enumerator in the regular ten-year census.

No sampling poll or census can, of course, be completely accurate, but as a matter of fact, no decennial census of the whole population is ever completely accurate either.

The Institute found, for example, in a special survey, that the 1940 census was 99 per cent accurate—that approximately 1 per cent of the population had been missed by the enumerators.

Samples 5 Per Cent of Total

The new sampling census plan proposes to estimate the population by enumerating 5 per cent of the total, which would mean approximately 1,650,000 families. Expectations of the range of probable error in the results run from as low as .4 per cent to 1 or 2 per cent.

Dr. Philip M. Hauser, assistant chief statistician for population of the Bureau of the Census, says:

"It can be demonstrated that for a city having one million or more inhabitants with a normal amount of migration, the total population based on a 5 per cent sample can, on the average, be estimated with an error of less than four-tenths per cent, and with an error that will very rarely be as great as 1 or 2 per cent. Populations of smaller cities can be estimated with proportionately greater error."

Halifax to Get Canon Law Degree

Philadelphia, Feb. 19 (AP).—The Pennsylvania diocese of the Protestant Episcopal Church announced today the Divinity School here will confer an honorary degree of Doctor of Canon Law on Lord Halifax, British Ambassador to the United States, at a special convocation February 26.

Lord Halifax is to be honored, the diocese said, for "his outstanding Christian statesmanship." His father, the late Lord Halifax, was active in the church.

Antilabor Drive Seen

C. I. O. Accuses

By Ben Gilbert

Post Staff Writer

LEON HENDERSON, Price Administrator; William E. Leiserson, member of the National Labor Relations Board, and the four steel companies comprising "Little Steel" were accused yesterday of participating in a "premeditated publicity campaign" to prejudice the War Labor Board against the C. I. O. Steel Workers Organizing Committee by Philip Murray, president of the C. I. O.

A special panel of the War Labor Board soon will begin fact-finding hearings on cases involving the S. W. O. C. and the steel companies. The union is demanding a closed shop covering 182,000 steel workers, a check-off system, and $1-a-day wage increases.

Murray incorporated his charge in a letter to William H. Davis, chairman of the War Labor Board which Murray made public 24 hours after the four steel companies released statements in New York denouncing reports that the board was considering a compromise "maintenance of union membership clause" in the steel cases and branded such a proposal as mere "camouflage" for the closed shop which they opposed.

ISSUANCE of the statements revealed the "basic anti-union hatreds" of the steel companies, Murray wrote, and "smacked of conspiracy."

Activities of Government officials which Murray listed as following a similar "set pattern designed to prejudice the board's mind against the S. W. O. C." were the following:

1. An appearance by Henderson before the board at which he is reported to have called the steel workers $1-a-day pay demand "inflationary."

2. A Chicago speech by J. K. Galbraith, an aide to Henderson, in which he said that workers already have "too much money."

3. A New York speech by Leiserson Wednesday in which he predicted that the steel case might kill the War Labor Board and urged that Congress decide the closed shop issue.

MURRAY POINTED out that the steel companies, Bethlehem, Youngstown, Inland and Republic, issued their statement after they read reports that Davis favored the compromise proposal. The letter absolved Davis of responsibility in circulating the report, but nevertheless called it to his attention for the record.

A board spokesman declared that the "compromise plan" reports were untrue since Davis never discussed cases in advance of board action. Murray also disavowed the plan as far as the C. I. O. is concerned.

The panel which will start the hearing Tuesday will be composed of Arthur Meyer, chairman of the New York Board of Mediation; Cyrus Ching, vice president of the United States Rubber Co., and Richard T. Frankensteen, C. I. O. aircraft organization director.

The panel will finally report to the board which will act on the case.

THE BOARD indorsed the "maintenance of union membership" clause involving 4000 C. I. O. textile workers employed by Marshall Field & Co., in Spray, N. C. Under it, workers may decline or may not decline to join a union as they wish, but once they have signed up they become bound to maintain their membership or lose their jobs.

The statement by Bethlehem Steel characterized the "maintenance-of-union-membership shop" as merely "just one more confusing name for the same old idea" of a closed shop.

EQUALLY outspoken was Republic's statement which said the "company is opposed to it (the reported compromise) or any other form of closed shop, no matter what it is called."

Youngstown branded the plan as a "scheme of compulsory union membership, and added that the check-off would make the employer a bill collector for the union.

Hull Going South To Recuperate

Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, left Washington yesterday for a Southern resort, where he will recuperate from a slight attack of grippe which had kept him away from the State Department for some ten days.

Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State, will be Acting Secretary of State in his absence.

Rangoon To Burma

By Barnet Nover

The Japanese Tide Flows On

THE JAPANESE tidal wave which has swept all before it in the 11 weeks since Pearl Harbor is now beating relentlessly against the remaining United Nations' strong points in the southwestern Pacific.

NOVER

These strong points are four in number: Bataan Peninsula and the island of Corregidor in the Philippines; the port of Rangoon in Burma; the Island of Java and its great naval base at Sourabaya; the port of Darwin on the northern coast of Australia. All four are under direct Japanese attack.

At Bataan the pressure on the forces so brilliantly led by Gen. Douglas MacArthur has increased considerably since the fall of Singapore. More Japanese troops have been landed at Olongapo, on Subic Bay. More enemy planes are being thrown into the fight against the handful of Filipino and American troops on Bataan. The odds against Gen. MacArthur were always heavy. The tragic fact cannot be glossed over that they may soon become overwhelming.

AN EVEN MORE disturbing result of the fall of Singapore was that it has enabled the Japanese to divert men and material from Malaya to Burma. In consequence, the enemy has been enabled to move forward more rapidly in the direction of Rangoon. That city is now all but lost. At least it has been given up as a port of entry for consignments to China over the Burma Road.

This, in itself, constitutes no mean victory for the Japanese. The Chinese insist that even the loss of the Burma Road will not mean the end of their war effort. We have no reason to doubt this. Yet the loss of the Burma Road would undoubtedly make Chiang Kai-shek's task very much harder. Such alternative routes, as that from Calcutta to China by way of Northern Burma are even longer and more difficult than the Burma Road.

In the meantime the Japanese pincers around Java are steadily being tightened and the port of Darwin has been subjected to two destructive air raids.

JAPANESE strategy from the beginning of the Pacific war has had a double objective.

The first is to deprive the United Nations of their bases in the southwestern Pacific. This objective has been achieved to a remarkable degree and at breathtaking speed. In ten weeks the Allies have lost every point of vantage from Wake Island to Singapore and Palembang.

At the same time, the enemy has ranged far afield in an effort to cut off the Allied supply routes from the United States and Great Britain to Australia, Burma and the Dutch East Indies. The attack on Darwin is part of that effort as are also the Japanese landing on Celebes, Amboina, New Guinea and Borneo.

The point has been made that these Japanese successes have not been achieved without great cost. A large number of Japanese transports and other vessels have been sent to the bottom together with an undetermined number of troops. It is also argued that as a result of Japan's far-ranging operations her lines are being drawn very thin.

THERE IS SOMETHING to be said for both of these contentions. But the fact is that, considering the tremendous gains scored by the enemy, the costs have been relatively slight and the alleged over-extension of their lines constitutes no danger to the Japanese as long as they continue to deprive the United Nations of one foothold after another in the southwestern Pacific.

Japan's strategy has been one of carefully calculated recklessness. Had the United Nations been in a position and a mood to take equally great risks the Japanese venture might by now have ended in disaster. But the Allied policy has been one of excessive caution, of an unwillingness to take great risks.

In part, that has been the product of the serious blows dealt to Allied sea power by the Japanese assault on Pearl Harbor followed soon after by the destruction of the Prince of Wales and the Repulse. In part, also, the Fabian strategy pursued by the United Nations has been the child of the belief that time was on their side and that they could afford to let Japan win the first victories since, in the long run, Japan's productive capacity and staying power were so decidedly inferior to that of her enemies.

THE TROUBLE with that theory is that, as the war has been conducted, the time element has been in Japan's favor. Japan has gained time by winning space and since the territorial gains she has secured may, in the long run, enable her to replenish her not over ample resources of oil and other essentials, her victories have tended to increase her staying power.

Arriving at Sydney last Wednesday, Dr. H. J. van Mook, lieutenant governor-general of the Dutch East Indies, urged the democracies to assume the offensive since a policy of constantly retiring to prepared positions could lead to the loss of the war by the United Nations. He saw the conquest of the Dutch East Indies as the chief aim of Japanese strategy at this time.

Whether the United Nations are today in a position to carry the war to the enemy in the Pacific is not clear. Because they have allowed valuable time to slip by they are now in a very much weaker position than they were before the loss of Singapore. And while reinforcements appear to have reached Java during the last few days it does not appear that these reinforcements will be sufficient to beat back the anticipated Japanese assault. Unless the Allies bestir themselves as they have never done before the tragedy of too little and too late may be reenacted again.

29 From District Area Are Among 2209 Americans Captured by Japs

In the Pacific's far-flung fighting stations, 1009 officers and enlisted men of the United States Navy and Marine Corps and 1200 civilians have fallen into Japanese hands since the war's outbreak at Pearl Harbor December 7, 1941, the Navy Department announced yesterday.

DEVEREUX

It listed the captives, 29 of whom were from Washington and vicinity, in a 144-page news release, the first relating to captures of American fighting men.

Something like relief—though doubts and apprehensions still persisted—was brought to the homes of the captives here through the announcement. The Navy indicated that it was giving the best information at its disposal. All, it said, were "presumed" to be prisoners of war.

"Because of the interruption of communications and the eliminating of contact entirely when the various outposts were overwhelmed, the Navy Department cannot have absolute information of the exact status of all individuals," either in the armed service or among the civilians "who were engaged on public works undertakings," the announcement stated.

Washingtonians and locations of their probable capture were listed, as follows:

Mrs. Devereux Receives News

New York, Feb. 19 (AP).—Mrs. James P. S. Devereux, wife of the Wake Island Marine garrison commander, today received the Navy Department's announcement that her husband is probably a Japanese prisoner with a whispered: "I'm glad he's alive; I just live on hope."

Mrs. Devereux, whose last word from her husband was a letter postmarked December 5, saying, "We are ready for anything," sat on the sofa in the Governors Island quarters of her father, Col. John P. Welch, twisting a handkerchief and struggling to keep back her tears.

The well-thumbed letter lay on a table before her.

"I read and reread it," she said. "I'm glad he's alive. I know he will come back to us. That's the hope I live on. We just go on from day to day, without any plans for the future."

Mrs. Devereux, a small woman, wears her blonde hair in a fluffy, long bob. She was clad in a bright yellow blouse and black skirt. She explained quietly that she devotes most of her time to her small son, Patrick, 8.

"He'. old enough to know what is going on," she said. "He listens to the radio broadcasts like the grown-ups. He's very proud of his father, although, of course, he doesn't understand all it means to be a prisoner. We are all proud; we know James did his best."

Maj. James Patrick Sinnot Devereux, U. S. M. C., Chevy Chase, Md., Wake Island.

Jap Broadcasts Ignored

The Navy designated the captured men simply as among those "who were serving in China and on Pacific island outposts." Under official silence, it had been generally thought that what was left of the heroic garrisons of Wake and Guam had fallen into the enemy's hands.

Reputed broadcasts by American captives from Japan had been ignored. On November 14 the President had announced the ordering of our Marines from China. Where the detachment, if it left at all, was removed to never was made known. There were reports that some got to the Philippines.

In a saga of heroism, approximately 400 Marines repulsed repeated Japanese assaults on Wake Island for two weeks. Guam held out for six days. Midway still holds.

On the hazy happenings in China the list of captures gives little light through its indicating that 37 in the Peiping detachment were taken while 75 from Tientsin were "presumed" to have been made prisoners.

Contrast to Last War

The list of captures was sharp in its contrast to the number of United States Navy men taken prisoner in the first World War, a total of only 15. Among the 15 was Edouard V. M. Isaacs, now a member of Congress as Representative Edouard V. Izac (Democrat), of California. His name was changed legally later, Navy records showed.

He had tried to escape the Germans following his capture when the United States transport Lincoln was sunk near Brest, France, in 1918. Another taken in the first World War was Lieut. Artemus L. Gates, now Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air. His plane had been shot down in combat behind the German lines.

Maj. James P. S. Devereux

None of the many Washington friends of Major Devereux were surprised to learn, when Wake Island fell Christmas Day, that this fighting son of a fighting family was commander of the Marine garrison, which sunk seven Japanese warships and held off the invader for 14 shell-and-bomb showering days.

Born in Cuba, where his soldier father was serving, Devereux was brought up in Chevy Chase, joined the Marines as a private at the age of 20. He saw action in Cuba, Nicaragua, Shanghai and Peiping, for which he was awarded several medals.

He met Mary Welch, daughter of a soldier, at Cavite, Philippines, and married her at Peiping. With 8-year-old Patrick, she's now living at Governor's Island, N. Y.

Slightly built, with thinning hair and small mustache, the 39-year-old Marine officer is a soft spoken, gentle fellow—except when he's fighting. In a communication to the Navy at the height of the furious battle of Wake, Devereux said:

"Send us some more Japs."

Comdr. Leo C. Thyson

Commander Leo C. Thyson, Medical Corps, U. S. N., presumably was captured by the Japanese at his station in Peiping, China, where he was Medical Corps chief of the international settlement. He is a third generation of native Washingtonians.

The commander had been in China since October, 1940, and was intending, just before the Far Eastern situation grew critical, to have his sister, Mrs. William Sloan Harrison, of 1673 Columbia Road Northwest, come out to China to be with him. Mrs. Harrison is the widow of Maj. William Sloan Harrison, U. S. M. C.

The last letter Mrs. Harrison received from him was on November 1, 1941. The Commander has two brothers here, George Thyson, of 1915 Calvert Street Northwest, and Paulus Thyson, of 1445 Park Road Northwest.

Graduating from Western High School, Commander Thyson received his medical degree at George Washington University in 1916. He entered the naval service as an assistant surgeon in the Naval Reserve Force in December, 1916, and became a lieutenant junior grade on Aril 4, 1917. He was commissioned a commander, Medical Corps, on June 30, 1934. He had done a tour of duty at the Navy Department here.

Lieut. James B. Robinson

Among the officers believed to be captured at Wake Island by the Japanese was Lieut. Junior Grade James Burnham Robinson, 32, of Norbeck, Md.

Lieut. Robinson is the son of Vice Admiral Samuel Murray Robinson, director of Procurement and Materials, United States Navy, and Mrs. Robinson. He received his preliminary education at the Friends School in Washington and McDonald Preparatory School, near Baltimore, where he was graduated about 1930. Following his graduation he attended the University of Washington and George Washington University, being graduated in 1935 with the degree of B. S. C. E.

From 1935 until the summer of 1940 Lieut. Robinson was employed as an engineer at the Bethlehem Steel Company, Sparrows Point, Md. Then he was assigned to active duty at Pearl Harbor, where he remained until September, 1941, when he was transferred to the Civil Engineers Corps, U. S. N., at Wake Island.

Sergt. A. J. Paszkiewicz

To Mrs. Andrew J. Paszkiewicz, 2100 Nineteenth Street Northwest, came the word yesterday that her husband, a Marine Corps master technical sergeant cited for bravery on Wake Island, had been captured by the Japanese.

PASZKIEWICZ

Mrs. Paszkiewicz previously had been informed that her husband had suffered shrapnel wounds in both arms and legs during the attack by the Japanese on Wake December 8. Her son, James Lawrence Eason, 21, is a Navy air force pilot and Mrs. Paszkiewicz has had no word from him since he left San Diego, Calif., a month ago.

Sergeant Paszkiewicz was born November 14, 1899, at St. Joseph, Mich., and enlisted in the Marine Corps on December 8, 1922, at Chicago, following one enlistment in the Army. He was graduated from the Free and Kite Balloon School, Lakehurst, N. J., in 1926, and was captain of the Quantico Marine baseball team four years ago. A citation for bravery on Wake Island was awarded him.

Maj. George E. Potter

Right hand man of Maj. Devereux and officer in charge of the 5-inch artillery which dueled with the heavier guns of the attacking Japs. Maj. Potter got to Wake just about in time to get into the fight.

Battle was no new thing for the Annapolis native and Naval Academy graduate of 1927, who is now 36. As proof of his ability in the field he holds the Second Nicaragua Campaign, Yangtze Service and Expeditionary Medals.

Capt. Frank C. Tharin

When word came yesterday that Capt. Frank Cunningham Tharin, U. S. M. C. aviator, was "presumed" to be a captive of the Japanese, his wife, Mrs. Betty G. Tharin and two sons were in California and his father, Frank X. Therin, of 1620 Thirty-third Street Northwest, was in Charleston, S. C.

Capt. Tharin was among the marines on Wake Island.

Capt. Tharin was born in Washington October 23, 1910, and was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1934, with the rank of second lieutenant in the marines. He finished the Marine Corps Basic School, Philadelphia, in 1935, and until 1936 served at sea aboard the U. S. S. Northampton. Then he went to the Naval Air Station, Pensacola, for flight training, while before outbreak of hostilities and served as gunnery officer under Maj. Paul Albert Putnam, U. S. M. C. He was thought to have been one

After service on the West Coast, Tharin was stationed in the Hawaiian area, serving in assistant group operations and as training officer, group intelligence officer and in the post exchange.

He arrived at Wake Island a short of the pilots who flew the planes onto the island.

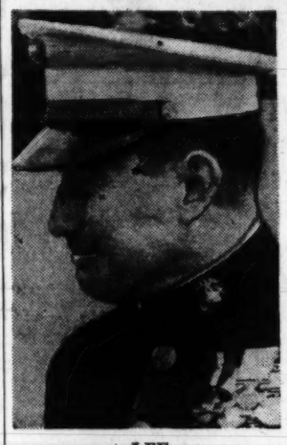
A sister, Mrs. George Elmer, lives in Denver.

Gunner William A. Lee

Chief Marine Gunner William A. Lee, U. S. M. C., Quantico, Va., was with the Marine Corps presumed captured by the Japanese in Peiping, China.

Lee first enlisted in the Marines in 1918 and served until 1935, when he was appointed warrant officer. From 1935 to 1939 he served as assistant platoon leader at Quantico Marine Barracks, when he was detached for duty in the Far East. He was temporarily appointed captain in 1941.

Lee holds the Navy Cross, the Navy Cross Star, the Victory Medal with the French clasp, the second



LEE

Nicaraguan Medal and the Nicaraguan Cross of Valor.

During his service in Nicaragua, Capt. Lee participated in more than 20 battles against superior bandit forces and distinguished himself as a leader of Marine detachments.

Sergt. William J. Hamilton

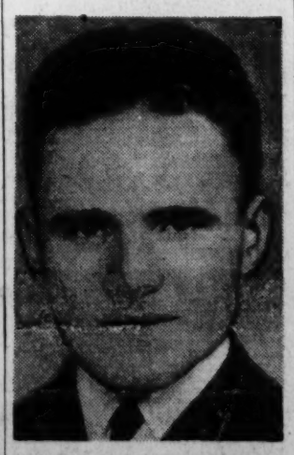
Soldier turned Leatherneck, Technical Sergt. Hamilton was cited in the only report flown out of Wake Island for his "indefatigable labor, ingenuity, skill and technical knowledge" in repairing Wake's tiny air force. Of Hamilton and a fellow Marine, the aviation commander wrote: "It is solely due to their efforts that the squadron is still operating."

Hamilton, 30, is a native of Altoona, Pa., and a graduate of the Navy Radio Material School at Bellevue, D. C.

Lieut. Stephen O'Rourke

The family of Lieut. Stephen O'Rourke, U. S. N., who was reported as captured by the Japanese at Shanghai, reside here at 4215 Third Street Northwest.

O'Rourke, 27, a native of Lowell, Mass., was graduated from the U.



O'ROURKE

S. Naval Academy in 1937. His family has resided here two years and includes two sisters, Margaret O'Rourke, employed at the Securities and Exchange Commission, and Anastasia C. O'Rourke, employed by the Social Securities Board, and his mother.

Lieut. William W. Lewis

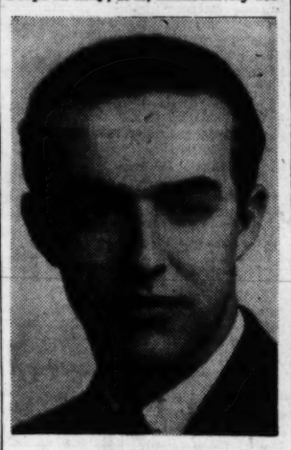
Out of V. M. I. and into the Marines in 1937, Lieutenant Lewis went to Philadelphia, to sea on the cruiser Nashville, to Quantico, San Diego, Hawaii, and finally to Wake but a few days before the Japs.

The 26-year-old officer hails from Culpeper County, Va., is member of a well-known family. His wife, Mary, is living in Honolulu.

Pvt. John W. Kaufman

Private John W. Kaufman, jr., U. S. M. C., the son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Kaufman, 1621 North Abington Street, Arlington, Va., was believed by the Navy Department to be among those captured by the Japanese at Guam Island.

Kaufman enlisted in the Marine Corps in May, 1941, immediately following his graduation from Carlisle Military Academy in South Carolina and in Septemer of 1941 was assigned to active duty with the Marine Corps stationed at Guam Island.

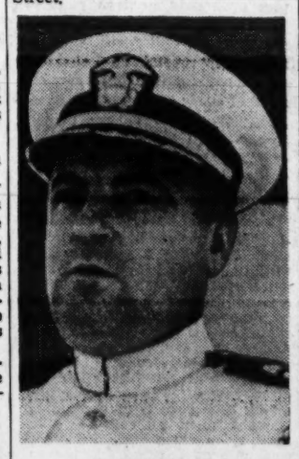


KAUFMAN

Comdr. Donald T. Giles

Commander Donald T. Giles, of Annapolis, 42, naval officer presumed to have been captured by the Japanese at Guam, was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1921.

The same year he married the former Miss Virginia Basil, of Annapolis. They have a 17-year-old son, Donald T. Giles, jr., an Annapolis High School senior. Mrs. Giles is now living with her mother, Mrs. John Basil, at 198 Prince George Street.



GILES

Mrs. Giles said she last saw her husband in April, 1941, at San Francisco, Calif. He was born at Syracuse, N. Y., and attended schools there.

Ensign F. G. Wolfsheimer

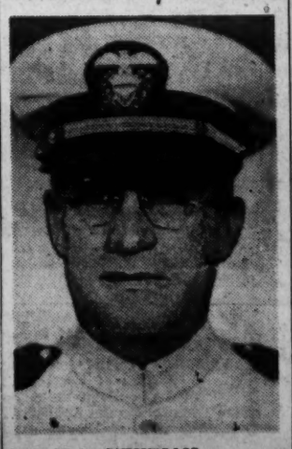
Ensign Frank A. Wolfsheimer, U. S. N., the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wolfsheimer, 3700 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, was among those presumed captured at Peiping.

Ensign Wolfsheimer was born in Baltimore in 1906 and was educated at Baltimore Polytechnic Institute and Cornell University, where he was graduated with a degree in civil engineering. Prior to his transfer to Peiping in the summer of 1941 Wolfsheimer had served as superintendent of industries on Guam Island.

Lieut. Com. S. E. Newman

The wife of Commander Newman, who lives at the Park Towers Apartments, on February 3 learned of his capture by the Japanese. The Navy Reserve officer broadcast a message of "safe arival" from Tokyo.

A veteran of the first World War, Commander Newman was called into active service again last year and landed at Guam just three months before it was taken by the Japs. A native of Texas City, Tex.,



NEWMAN

Sergt. Oliver P. Hagerty, jr.

In the Marines for 15 of his 40 years, Sergt. Hagerty is Baltimore born. Washington was one of his stations of duty, previous to Pacific service. His wife lives at Port Deposit, Md.

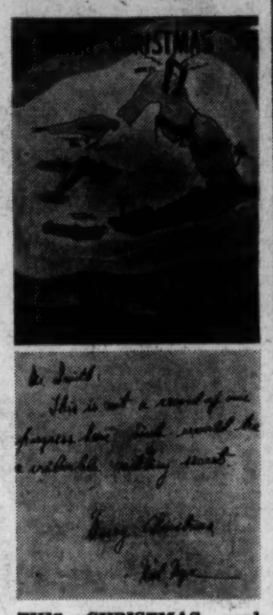
Now It Can Be Told

Youth, Now Prisoner, Wrote Of Life on Wake Before War

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer.



THIS CHRISTMAS card from Ned Nye had its humorous note

A poetry-writing tournament, in which virile civilian workers and marines spent their off-duty hours wrestling with meter and rhyme, enlivened things on Wake Island just before the Japs arrived.

From the pens of the lonely Yanks, inspired in various ways by the coral atoll, came such masterpieces as "Wake Island," "Wacky-Woo," "To Our Mothers," "Wadin' on the Roof," "We've Done Our Hitch in Hell," "A Teetotaler's Dream," and "Nuts to Would-Be Poets."

The story of this versifying and of many other aspects of life on Wake before the Japs took over, was told in letters and papers sent here by a Washington youth who is now a prisoner—Edwin D. (Ned) Nye, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Bert Nye, of 3002 Thirty-second Street Northwest. The elder Nye was president of the Rotary Club last year.

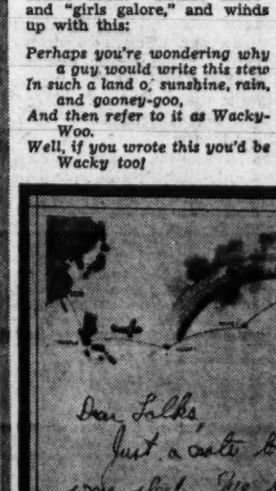
Ned, a graduate of Central High School and Johns Hopkins University, left here last July 16 for the long journey to Wake, where he worked for one of the construction companies that was fortifying the island. A good correspondent, he kept his mother well informed. He told of glorious sunsets fringed with double rainbows; of notables who stopped off at Wake in the Pan-American Clippers, including Kurusu, the Japanese "peace envoy," and of the abiding confidence on Wake that the United States could make "short work" of Japan.

The last letter he dispatched on the clipper plane was dated December 3, four days before the Japs struck. In this he thanked his mother for the mail—letters, magazines and newspapers—she had sent him.

"I even got three copies of The Washington Post," he said. "Thanks . . . "

Ned sent his mother copies of "The Wake Wig-Wag," a mimeographed newspaper published on the island. One issue had an ambitious supplement containing poems written by civilian workers and Marines.

The Wig-Wag editor admitted that some of the poems were—



EDWIN NYE

"well, mediocre." But he said the poems showed "the spirit of Americanism and democracy" that permeated the men on the island; showed that "despite the broiling sun, isolation and many discomforts they can still grin and take it."

And now for some samples. The verse called "Wake Island Wacky-Woo" was written by Anonymous, and it started out:

When you wake up in the mornin' feelin' kinda blue,
You've got a growl for everone and don't know what to do,
You've got it, Brother, or its got you!
The Wake Island Wacky-Woo

Anonymous goes on to rhapsodize about "distant shore" and "girls galore," and winds up with this:

Perhaps you're wondering why a guy would write this stew
In such a land o' sunshine, rain, and gooney-goo,
And then refer to it as Wacky-Woo.
Well, if you wrote this you'd be Wacky too!

Another poet calling himself "Anonymous" must have seen the Wig-Wag supplement before it went to press, because he dashed off this:

There are lots of would-be poets
On this fertile little isle,
But when I read their verses
It surely makes me smile

For their meter it is rotten.
Their phraseology is punk.
If you ask my opinion,
I think they're all the bunk!

C. W. M. wrote a touching bit entitled, "To Our Mothers." In this he laments that he is not the man his mother thinks he is.

Gee, Pal, you know, I'm an awful sham—
If I was only the feller that my mother thinks I am!

A versifier who signed himself "A Marine," wrote "We've Done Our Hitch in Hell." He complained—with his tongue in his cheek, apparently—of killing bugs and snakes that tried to get into his chow, of picking cactus from the seat of his pants, and of a hundred other things.

Later on he pitched in behind Maj. Jimmy Devereaux, made the Japs pay a fearful price for the island, and helped write an epic in America's military annals. But this was the final verse in A Marine's poem:

When the final taps are sounded
as we lay aside our cares,
We will do our final dress parade on those shiny golden stairs.

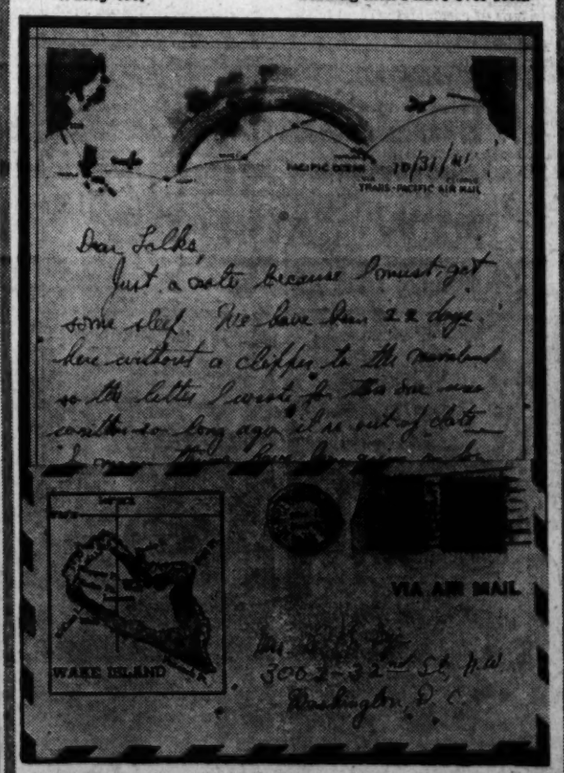
The angels will welcome us, the harps will start to play,
We'll draw a thousand canteen checks and spend them in a day.

It's then we will hear St. Peter tell us loudly, with a yell,
"Take a front seat, boys from Wake,
'Cause you've done your hitch in hell!"

Several of the verses were inspired by the absence of alcoholic beverages on Wake Island. All that the boys could get there was soft drinks.

Ned Nye, no prude, was much impressed by the ability of the men to get along without liquor. In one of his letters home, he said:

"Our morale here is excellent. There are no fights . . . no stealing . . . I have been thinking what a strong argument Wake would make for prohibitionists. Here the men have no liquor, nor its complement, loose women, and they are the healthiest, hardest-working men I have ever seen."



ONE OF NED'S LETTERS sent by clipper from Wake Island to his mother, Mrs. L. B. Nye, 3002 Thirty-second Street Northwest.

Senate Votes To Kill Pension Law by 75 to 5

The pending bill, passed on a voice vote, was a House-approved measure continuing the pay and allowances members of the armed forces missing in battle. The bill now goes back to the House, where the repeal amendment is expected to be substituted for the repealer reported by the Civil Service Committee.

Downey told the Senate that his pension plan would involve a gross outlay of about 1¼ billion dollars, but because the measure would permit the discontinuance of certain Federal benefits now being paid to needy aged persons, the net cost would be "500 or 600 or 700 million dollars."

Figures Are Challenged

Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, leader of the Congressional pensions repeal drive, challenged Downey's figures, maintaining that the plan was certain to take from the Federal Treasury between three and five billion dollars a year, and possibly more than six billions.

The Senate, Byrd warned, "shouldn't pass this Townsend plan in any such hasty manner."

Downey angrily protested that his proposal was "nothing like" the Townsend plan, and, later he and Barkley heatedly argued over the cost estimates. Barkley left the chamber, telephoned the Social Security Board and came back with the report that the plan would cover 15 million persons and cost from 1.8 to 4 billions a year, depending on the manner in which the system might be administered in the various States.

"What good will a pension of this or any other amount do these old people if Japan or Germany get control of this country?" asked Senator McKeller (Democrat), of Tennessee.

George Warns Senate

Red-faced with emotion, Barkley and Senator George (Democrat), of Georgia, pleaded with the Senate to convince the country that Congress, aware of the Nation's peril, is willing to put off expenditures for pensions and other domestic demands for the duration of the war.

"We stand within 60 or 90 days of the commencement of the most momentous Axis drive," warned George. "The crepe will be on the door of one million homes in America and the American people know it."

"In order to get ourselves out of a little hole, we are asked to jump into a big pit—and pull the pit in after us," he said.

"There has been too much complacency in Washington," shouted Senator O'Mahoney (Democrat), of Wyoming. "There is no complacency in the country. The country, only, knows the mortal danger in which democracy is found."

28 Reverse Stand On Pension Bill

By the Associated Press

Twenty-eight Senators who voted last January 19 to provide retirement pay for Congressmen voted yesterday to repeal the pensions.

Most of those who changed their positions frequently took the floor during the last few days to say that an aroused public misunderstood the retirement plan and had unfairly criticized Congress.

But, regardless of the merits of retirement pay for legislative officials, they said, the state of the public mind, however it came about, and the desire for national unity necessitated prompt repeal.

The retirement measure originally passed the Senate 42 to 24. Yesterday's vote to repeal was carried 75 to 5. The 28 who changed their original positions were: Austin (Republican), of Vermont; Bankhead (Democrat), of Alabama; Bilbo (Democrat), of Mississippi; Bone (Democrat), of Washington; Brown (Democrat), of Michigan; Bulow (Democrat), of South Dakota; Bunker (Democrat), of Nevada; Capper (Republican), of Kansas; Caraway (Democrat), of Arkansas; Davis (Republican), of Pennsylvania; Doxey (Democrat), of Mississippi; George (Democrat), of Georgia; Gillette (Democrat), of Iowa; Hayden (Democrat), of Arizona; Hill (Democrat), of Alabama; Holman (Republican), of Oregon; Hughes (Democrat), of Deleware; Kilgore (Democrat), of West Virginia; Lee (Democrat), of Oklahoma; McFarland (Democrat), of Arizona; Maloney (Democrat), of Connecticut; Murray (Democrat), of Montana; Rosier (Democrat), of West Virginia; Smathers (Democrat), of New Jersey; Stewart (Democrat), of Tennessee; Truman (Democrat), of Missouri; Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana; White (Republican), of Maine.

The following Senators who voted for the pensions originally, were absent but were announced as favoring repeal: Russell (Democrat), Georgia; Tunnell (Democrat), of Delaware; Aiken (Republican), of Vermont. Seven others who voted for the pensions last month were absent yesterday and not voting.

British Building Up 'Air-Borne' Invasion Army

London, Feb. 19 (U.P.).—Britain is building an air-borne invasion army and large new armored formations, but before they can go into action the British Isles must be secured against attack, War Secretary David Margesson said today in Commons.

The secretary lashed out at what he called "insidious and false" suggestions in American newspapers that while Britain is willing to accept arms and equipment from any source, "we are not willing to send our soldiers out to fight with them."

Of all the troops in the Middle East, he said, nearly half were from the British Isles.

The organization of air-borne troops, carried in transport planes and gliders, is progressing, he said, and Britain has ready a number of parachute and air-landing units.

Senate Approves Guayule Bill Roosevelt Desired

The Senate passed and sent to the House yesterday legislation to authorize planting of 75,000 acres of guayule rubber shrubs in the Western Hemisphere and experiments in development of the plant as a new source of rubber supply.

The measure was designed to meet President Roosevelt's objections to a similar enactment which he recently vetoed because it confined the proposed operations to the United States.

The new bill would permit operations anywhere in the hemisphere "where the best growth and yields may be expected."

ture is the first deficiency bill of 1942, carrying $100,000,000 for the purchase of air raid and fire fighting equipment for OCD. Congressional action on the measure was completed yesterday.

Judge Justine Wise Polier, who has been helping with the reorganization of Mrs. Roosevelt's community and voluntary participation portion of OCD, will return to New York on March 1 to continue her work as justice of the Domestic Relations Court. Judge Polier is on loan from the court, serving as a $22.22-per-day volunteer consultant.

Very few officials and consultants were left in Mrs. Roosevelt's offices yesterday, so many volunteers have gone home since criticism of OCD began. Mrs. Henry Morgenthau's resignation on January 22 was verified at the office. Mrs. Morgenthau, close friend of Mrs. Roosevelt, came to OCD on a nonpay basis to help out with office details while the First Lady was at work in the field.

Mrs. Roosevelt has a press conference scheduled for Monday morning at the White House, but it is believed her promised OCD resignation will be made to Director James M. Landis and not released as personal news. She has said she will resign this month.

Melvyn Douglas, screen star who heads the OCD Arts Council, will go to Hollywood over the weekend to make a movie—but positively will return, it was declared at national headquarters.

Director Landis, who is busy abolishing OCD units that "have outlived their usefulness," is expected to reveal additional streamlining measures either today or tomorrow.

Shift of the Office of Civilian Defense to the Office of Defense Health and Welfare Services will be announced. Although the major portion of its personnel will remain in Philadelphia—where there is more office space—the executive secretary is Elwood Gieges, prominent Eastern football referee.

Ewing's Associate Testifies at Trial

by the House last year, and taxation of income from State, local and municipal bonds. It was further indicated that the Treasury still does not favor a sales tax, and that any application of a salary withholding tax would be "merely as a method of collecting" increased income taxes on individuals.

Security Tax to Be Separate

George announced definitely that the two billion asked by the President in increased Social Security taxes will not be considered in the coming tax bill, but will be considered later as a separate bill.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, who was not present at last night's tax parley, earlier told reporters that "there are still some important points to be settled" before the Treasury presents its program to Congress.

He said 60 subjects have been taken up at preliminary conferences between the two staffs and agreements reached on most of them. He did not discuss the points in disagreement.

Morgenthau indicated that a point will soon be reached when no more differences can be reconciled.

Treasury Favors Excises

George has contended from the outset that Congress must either turn to a salary withholding tax or a sales tax if it hopes to raise the seven-billion-dollar minimum asked by the President. The Treasury has favored selective excises over a general sales tax. Although it suggested a 15 per cent salary withholding tax last fall, it has not renewed this recommendation. There is strong Congressional opposition to lowering individual income tax exemptions below the $1500 for married persons and $750 for single persons set last year and to revival of the Treasury's former stand for basing excess profits taxes on invested capital.

Meanwhile, Senate Majority Leader Barkley warned the Senate yesterday in the course of Congressional pensions debate "that this isn't going to be the last tax bill."

"In a few weeks we will have to spend session after session trying to raise enough money to pay one-third of the cost of financing the war," Barkley said.

"No one knows how many more tax bills we may have to enact if the war lasts four or five years," he said. "We may have to have two, three or four more."

Ewing Takes Stand to Deny Government Girl's Attack Charge

women had a highball together and chatted for a few minutes, adding that he then went upstairs to attend to a bathroom leak that he had been working on earlier.

When he came back half an hour later, he continued, the door to the main part of the apartment was locked and, assuming that the women had gone to bed, he lay down on a cot in a vacant bedroom across the hall.

He got up once, he related, to investigate a noise at the rear of the 3 a. m. and did not wake up again until about 6 a. m.

Asked if he was intoxicated that evening, Ewing asserted:

"I don't get drunk. The inference that I'm that kind of a person is all wrong."

He asserted that he had seen and talked pleasantly with the girl the next morning, adding that she had asked him to drive her to church. He was unable to, he said, because of work that he was doing.

After being questioned about the circumstances of his arrest, he was asked directly whether he had entered the girl's room that night, whether he had raped her, and whether he had taken a sheet off her bed and washed it out, as she alleges he did.

He denied all of these charges.

Ewing also roundly scored Robert Payne, 21-year-old RFC clerk and another tenant in the building who was out with the girl on the night before the alleged attack.

"I asked Miss Chamberlin to ask that man to move out of that place half a dozen times," he declared vehemently.

He further charged that while fixing the bathroom leak just before 1 a. m. that night he had seen Payne and the complaining witness on the second floor of the building, apparently coming from Payne's room.

He said that he objected to Payne on three counts—that he was often behind in his rent, that he was "always bragging to everybody" that he was about to inherit a million dollars, and that he had given a bottle of wine to a young girl as a present.

Ewing's Wife on Stand

Earlier in the day Ewing's wife and several members of his family took the stand and described the defendant as a loving and "normal" father and husband.

His son, Lowell Ewing, also asserted that the girl involved had taken drinks on several occasions in his presence. When on the stand, the girl said that she did not drink.

First defense witness of the day was Hester Chamberlin, who told approximately the same story of Ewing's movement on the night in question as he later related. She asserted that she had slept in the room through which Ewing was charged with passing to break into the girl's room. She said that no one had passed through the room that night.

She also said that a chain lock, which Ewing is charged with having broken in forcing an entry to the girl's bedroom, had been previously broken so that it would not hold. Under cross-examination, however, she admitted that by fastening the lock in a certain way, it could be made to secure the door.

She stated that the girl had taken a drink with Ewing and herself that night, but under cross-examination admitted telling police that she had never known the girl to take a drink.

She also admitted that she went to Utah to see the girl's parents in mid-November, and had discussed the case with them there. She denied, however, that she had asked them to drop prosecution of Ewing.

The prosecution is expected to offer rebuttal witnesses late today concerning a signed statement Miss Chamberlin is said to have made to police. She is charged with saying in this statement that she had been too drunk the night before to remember what happened.

She asserted in court yesterday, when shown the statement, that additions had been made to it after she had signed it.

Japanese Report Landing on Timor

Tokyo, Friday, Feb. 20—(Radiocast Recorded by U.P., San Francisco).—Imperial headquarters announced at 1:30 p. m. today that Japanese forces had landed on the Portuguese half of Timor Island northwest of the north coast of Australia.

An earlier announcement of the board of information said the government had decided to expel Australian and Dutch troops from the island "in considerations of self defense."

C.I.O. May Ask O'Conor to Aid War Jobless

A request to Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor that a special session of the Maryland Legislature be called to deal with war problems, including increased unemployment compensation benefits for war-conversion jobless, will be considered at the quarterly meeting of the Maryland-District C. I. O. Industrial Union Council, Sidney R. Katz, secretary treasurer, said last night.

A demand for overtime pay for Government workers to enable them to keep step with rising costs of living probably will be made along with a request that C. I. O. organizing drives in the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Co. and Glenn L. Martin Baltimore plants be pushed, Katz said.

Also on the agenda for the meeting will be the relationship of rationing to morale, with a probability that "more widespread rationing" will be requested, particularly with basic commodities and transportation, Katz said.

Low-Salaried Suffer

Because of current shortages, Katz said there was not enough of many basic commodities to go around, thus forcing persons with lower incomes to go without while higher-salaried groups are able to buy up available supplies.

"Rationing is one way of making sure that everyone gets his share of what we have," he stated.

Katz pointed out that Gov. 'Conor had opposed legislation to extend Federal aid to conversion jobless on the grounds that such aid would lead to "federalize" State systems.

"If the Governor thinks it is a State matter, then we are going to pass the ball right back to him and ask him to take steps to provide the necessary aid," Katz declared.

A request that Maryland's present scale of $17 a week maximum benefits for 20 weeks be increased to $24 for 26 weeks, the amount specified in blocked Federal legislation, will probably be made, he said.

Katz said that lack of adequate benefits almost precipitated a mass migration of 1000 skilled rubber workers from Cumberland, Md., to other parts of the State when a rubber plant there was compelled to stop operating because of rationing. Since then, he said, a war contract has been secured for the plant and the men who have stayed can be reemployed.

Other Requests Planned

The fact that a war contract had been secured was used to dissuade many of the workers from migrating and thereby leaving the new war plant with a dangerous labor shortage, he said.

War Jobless Benefits Killed In Committee

to take over State unemployment compensation systems, though this was repeatedly denied by Administration spokesmen.

Yesterday's House action throws back on the States the problem of carrying three million to four million persons estimated as likely to be laid off temporarily from their jobs in 1942, and some 350,000 in the State of Michigan alone.

While many will be temporarily displaced by war conversion of industrial plants, the original bill placed all unemployment in the same category and raised from 32,300,000 to 35,000,000 the number of persons qualified for unemployment benefits.

Displaced workers would have received 60 per cent of their wages but not more than $24 a week, with the Federal Government making up the difference above existing State maximums.

A compromise was attempted by Chairman Robert L. Doughton of the Ways and Means Committee, providing for a 20 per cent Government-subsidized increase over State maximums. Tabling action yesterday came on the Doughton bill, but the Administration plan fell with it.

"If anything else is attempted it will probably go to some other committee," Doughton told reporters.

May Await State Action

While several alternative aid plans have been advanced, for possible consideration by the Appropriations Committee, there were indications that the Administration might wait until States feel the unemployment load and themselves seek assistance. State officials insisted their funds were adequate, but Federal Security Administrator McNutt and War Labor Director Sidney Hillman challenged this and charged State payments were inadequate as well. They said larger payments were needed to hold workers near the scene of converted plants while they are trained to man new machinery.

"There will be widespread distress unless the Federal Government takes appropriate action to cope with the situation, which is directly attributable to the war program," the President said in his message a month ago.

Alternative relief measures, which may now be independently pressed, include proposals:

By Representatives Boland (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, to meet the problem by an increase in WPA appropriations, with authority to employ displaced workers at prevailing wages.

By Representative Rabaut (Democrat), of Michigan, to vote the 300 million dollars directly to the President, who would use discretion in determining benefits and in utilizing facilities of State and Federal agencies.

Martha Ellyn's Platter Chatter

Defense Priorities Change Kitchen Ways; Brings Back Old Time Bean Pot

OLD-FASHIONED bean pots that now have blooming begonias in them will soon be going into a right-about-face. The announcement of the government that baked beans are among those foods not to be packed in cans will certainly mean that cooks will be again trying their talent at making home-baked beans. Baked beans are as American as ice cream and apple pie, so there's little doubt that bean pots will again be part of the kitchen equipment rather than adorning a window ledge a la blooms

Bostonians, from whom all "blue blood" baked beans got their start, insist that their way of baking beans is the authentic way. The beans must be the small New York pea beans, the fat must be salt pork, a bit of molasses for sweetening, but NO tomatoes or ketchup shall annoint the bean heads. But if you have other ideas of the flavoring of beans, by all means use them. Here are a few of the variations that are used in various regions of the country:

Martha Ellyn

Maine and Cape Cod: Place a peeled onion at the bottom of the bean pot.

New Hampshire and Vermont: Use maple sirup or maple sugar in place of molasses. Smart people in that region, for now, come the sugar shortage, they don't have to change their cooking habits.

Connecticut and New York: Add an onion and some tomato ketchup or chili sauce.

Midwestern: A half cup of chopped celery and onion, too, adds that something to baked beans.

Little Red Hen

THE LITTLE red hen took Secretary Wickard seriously last year when he asked that there be a 15 per cent increase in poultry raising. The egg crop, as a result, has mounted high over last year's total of 40 billion eggs. That's a lot of eggs, and although Uncle Sam has been buying vast numbers, yet there are plenty for all to have that "egg a day" that is included in our daily food requirements. That's because eggs are one of the protective foods —rich in vitamins and minerals.

Eggs don't have to be served as the prosaic fried one for breakfast. As long as there are eggs in the refrigerator you can "whip up" an omelet and serve it with salad, fruit and cheese for dessert, and a steaming cup of tea or coffee, and know that you have done yourself noble with either family or friends. Try it the next time you get caught with luncheon guests.

Souffles—those heavenly foods—are fancy enough for company. Remember, there are those who judge a dinner by the dessert. It's about the time of the year when hens will be working overtime, like the rest of the busy defense workers, so eggs are getting more reasonable. There's every reason for featuring a dessert like chocolate souffle. This is a dessert that can be made to serve four and only taxes the sugar bucket one-fourth cup of sugar. Look elsewhere on this page for the recipe for making the souffle.

Chocolate souffle is but one of many delicious concoctions to be made with eggs. Try a snow pudding, made with 1 package orange-flavored gelatin, 1½ cups hot water, ½ cup sherry and 2 egg whites. Serve with custard sauce. One package of the gelatin will serve 6 persons. That's making a reasonable dessert with a twist of the wrist.

The White House Way

MRS. Franklin D. Roosevelt got right into step with the sugar situation. Home makers can take a tip from her sugar saving suggestion. White House dinners are now having fruit salads of many combinations in place of the rich ice creams, cakes, puddings and pies. The rich color combinations of fruits in bowls or molds make a pretty picture, as well as a healthful dessert and a patriotic gesture tossed in.

As a suggestion for a dessert salad, try the combination of orange sections, halved dates and apple slices. A bowl of cheddar cheese permeated with sherry might accompany the fruit. And don't forget the thin, crispy wafers.

Calavos from California teamed with grapefruit from Florida, blended in gelatin, can be eaten unadorned, but not unsung, without benefit of one spot of dressing. That's one time when these two States can't vie for each other's place; they're both tops.

For the Kiddies

CHILDHOOD without candy would be like spring without flowers. But the sugar situation need not keep the kiddies from having their confections. And the kind, too, that can be given to children without the admonition that it is not good for them. Chocolate clusters, made by melting semisweet chocolate and pouring it over oven-popped cereal, is a vitamin-giving confection. Try rice cereal or the new oat cereal that looks like midget doughnuts with chocolate coating. These candies will also be fine to pack and send to the boys in service.

Chocolate Souffle A Happy Ending

Here's a dessert that does its duty by the sugar content. To be eaten with plain cream or with orange marshmallow sauce if you want something especially dramatic for a dessert. The recipe follows:

Chocolate Souffle—Heat 1 square unsweetened chocolate and 1 cup milk in double boiler. When chocolate is melted, blend with rotary egg beater. Combine ¼ cup sugar, flour and ¼ teaspoon salt. Add small amount of chocolate mixture, stirring until smooth. Return to double boiler and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Continue cooking for 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from boiling water and add 1 tablespoon butter and ½ teaspoon vanilla. Let cool slightly. Add 2 egg yolks, beaten until thick and lemon-colored, and mix well. Fold in 2 stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into greased baking dish. Bake in pan of hot water in moderate oven, 350 degrees, for about 30 minutes or until firm. Serve at once with orange marshmallow sauce.

Sauce—Soak 4 marshmallows cut in small pieces in 2 tablespoons orange juice for 15 minutes. Boil ¼ cup sugar and ⅛ cup water to thin syrup, then pour gradually on 1 stiffly beaten egg white, beating constantly until nearly cold. Add the marshmallows. Do not beat much after adding marshmallows. Makes ½ cup sauce.

Health From Vitamins

This cheery tot cherub is surrounded with eggs marked with letters showing the vitamins contained in them. There's little doubt that she has been having an egg a day in her diet, thus giving her that glow of health that comes from proper diet.

This pictorial fruit salad is of the type that Mrs. Roosevelt has suggested for dessert instead of sugar-laden ones. Orange segments, unpeeled apple slices and whole strawberries make this salad with dual virtues—health benefits and patriotic appeal.

These individual baking dishes filled with baked beans, topped with a slice of pineapple and bacon curl, is not the time-honored way of baking beans in the traditional bean pot, but the results can be equally as delicious.

Rapid Cooking of Dried Fruit Adds Considerable to Flavor

COOKING dried fruit by the quick method—no soaking required—yields stewed fruit superior in flavor, texture, and appearance. Many excellent cooks still prefer a modified version of soaking and simmering, but modern methods of processing dried fruits at the packing plants now make overnight soaking and long, slow simmering unnecessary. For best results with each fruit use the directions given below. Count cooking time after water boils, and keep at a brisk boil, adding more water if needed. Unless otherwise specified, add sugar only for last 5 minutes' cooking.

1. Prunes: Rinse, cover with water, and boil 45 minutes to 1 hour. No sugar is needed, but 2 tablespoons for each cup of prunes may be added if desired.

2. Apricots: Rinse, cover with water, and boil 30 to 40 minutes. Allow ¼ to ⅓ cup sugar for each cup of apricots, depending on taste for sweetness.

3. Peaches: Rinse, cover with water, boil 5 minutes, and remove skins. Cover with fresh water and boil 35 to 45 minutes. Allow ¼ cup sugar for each cup of peaches.

4. Figs: Rinse, cover with water, and boil 20 to 30 minutes. Allow 1 tablespoon sugar for each cup of figs, and add for last 15 minutes' cooking.

5. Pears: Rinse, remove cores, cover with water, and boil 25 to 35 minutes. Allow ¼ cup sugar for each cup of pears.

6. Raisins: Rinse. Allow 1 cup water for each cup of raisins, boil 10 minutes, adding ½ tablespoon sugar for each cup fruit.

7. Mixed Dried Fruits: Rinse fruit. Clip cores from pears. Cover generously with water and boil 35 to 45 minutes. Add ¼ cup sugar for each cup of fruit.

Mineral Content—Among the essentials, iron, calcium, phosphorus and potassium are richly present. Raisins are a rich source of iron. Dried apricots, peaches and prunes have been found to be exceeded only by some of the glandular meats as potential blood builders. They do their share in supplying essential iron and in maintaining the alkaline reserve of the body.

Vitamins—Apricots and peaches are an excellent source of vitamins A and C, both of which are markedly retained in dried fruit. The drying process also has the effect of preventing the loss of the dried fruit's vitamin C content during cooking. Prunes are an excellent source of vitamin G (B2), as well as of vitamins B1, C and ½ (B2). Raisins are a good source of vitamin B1, and a fair source of vitamin A.

Natural Sugars—Developed to their highest point. Famed as an economical source of quickly assimilable food-energy.

Laxative Qualities—The smooth bulk and roughage gives them laxative qualities. Prunes have been found to contain certain substances which stimulate intestinal activity. This wholesome quality is retained throughout cooking and baking processes.

With the Government's order restricting canning so that the supply of tin may be used for defense equipment, the homemaker will need to look to other types of processed food. Dried fruits are one of the foods that will no doubt be used extensively. What value are dried fruits in the diet? The following gives their nutritive value:

Cranberry-Orange Relish

A relish that can be made in a jiffy is made from canned cranberry sauce and orange. Try this recipe:

Put 1 orange through food chopper, rind and all. Crush cranberry sauce, using one 17-ounce can jellied cranberry sauce with a fork and blend in the orange. Allow to stand an hour to ripen before serving. Makes about 2 cups of relish.

WHAT IS THIS VITAMIN "C" STARVATION That Millions of Americans Suffer From?

Yes, literally millions of Americans! Government estimates show that from ⅓ to ¾ of all our people . . . rich and poor—suffer from vitamin deficiencies. Probably as high as one person in three is a victim of Vitamin "C" starvation.

WHEN NATURE WARNS!

Vitamin "C" starvation shows itself in many different ways. If you "catch one cold after another", if you feel pain in your joints, if you get black and blue easily, if your gums are soft and irritated, if cuts don't heal quickly, if you feel "old and tired"—then take warning. Consult your doctor immediately. These are all signs that your meals are not giving you even the bare minimum of "C" necessary to good health.

WHY YOU MAY LACK "C"

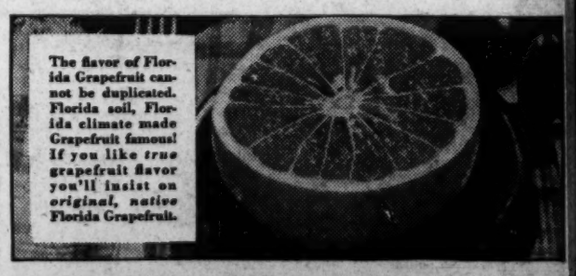
Because only a few foods contain enough of it. Because cooking with soda or boiling kills it. Because alcohol, overwork and colds rob your system of it. Your food budget may be generous, you may "eat your head off" and still be low on "C".

NO STORAGE OF "C"

Your body can't store it up. That's why you must eat foods rich in Vitamin "C" every day!

FLORIDA GRAPEFRUIT IS "LOADED" WITH VITAMIN "C"

Why bother with costly pills? Delicious Florida Grapefruit will furnish ALL the Vitamin "C" you need every day. You get your "C" FREE in the cost of your food. To feel younger, stronger, healthier and more vital, eat FLORIDA GRAPEFRUIT EVERY DAY. So good to eat—so good for you.



The flavor of Florida Grapefruit cannot be duplicated. Florida soil, Florida climate made Grapefruit famous! If you like true grapefruit flavor you'll insist on original, native Florida Grapefruit.

FRESH FLORIDA GRAPEFRUIT

YOUR DAILY PROTECTION AGAINST VITAMIN "C" STARVATION!

Betty Crocker suggests:

SERVE IT HOT! "Hot foods piping hot, and cold foods icy cold." This is the motto of discriminating hostesses. Soup that's beginning to cool is not appetizing. Heat your soup dishes before the hot soup is poured into them. Serve after everyone is seated at the table.

● EASY NOW to make home-cooked soup—delicious vegetable noodle soup. Our new product gives you all your dry ingredients. It's called "Betty Crocker Vegetable Noodle Soup Ingredients." The package contains seven choice vegetables in flake form, lots of rich egg noodles, and herbs and spices. These ingredients are 99% ready to cook! You simply empty the contents of the package into boiling water, add butter, and simmer it for a few minutes.

● TASTY, TOO, is the soup you make this easy way. It's brimming with garden-fresh vegetable flavors! The vegetables are not pre-cooked when you get them. You cook them, yourself, for the first time. The vegetables are "dehydrated". That is, reduced to low moisture content while fresh and crisp. A process that retains the fresh garden flavors. Our cooking staff tests this product. We think it makes delicious soup. Grand for lunch, supper or dinner.

● ECONOMICAL! Each package of the soup ingredients makes six large bowls of soup, and costs only 10c. Won't you try this new product?

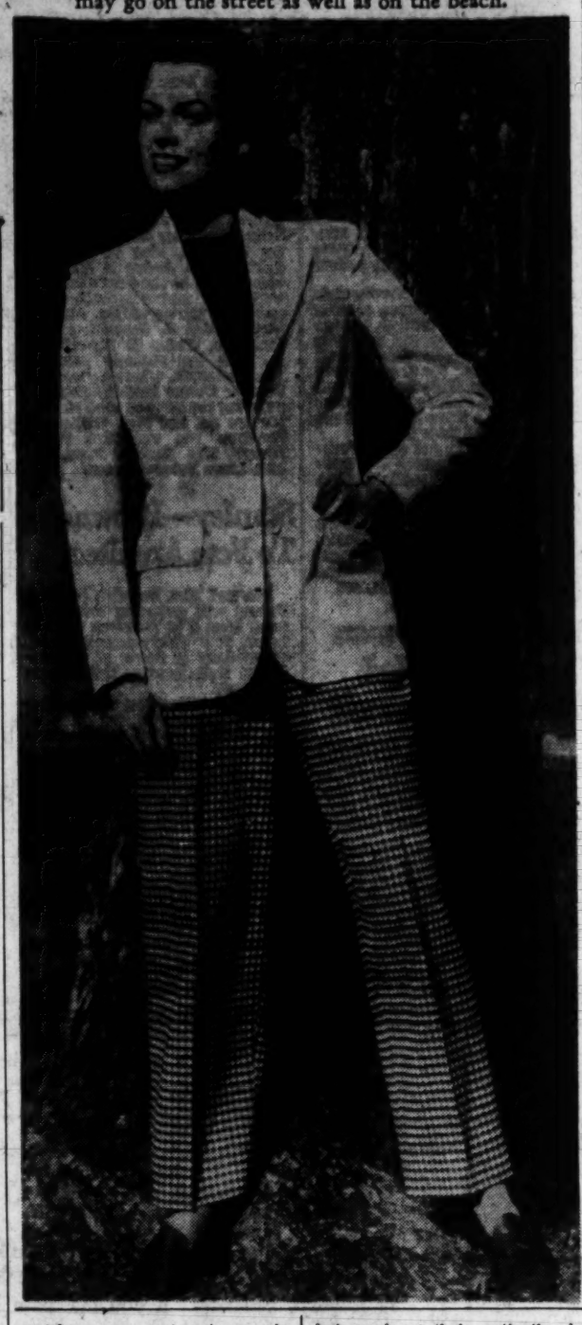
War Activity to Put Women Into Pants, Says Expert; Slacks Movement Grows

Zipperless trousers, low-heeled shoes and practical hats are predicted as daytime costumes for women by Miss Ruth Hutton, left, New York design teacher and fashion prophet. Below, are shown one of the more mannish styles of slacks in all-wool brown and white check. Worn with the all-wool white jacket, they may go on the street as well as on the beach.



But Ruth Hutton, Design Teacher, Warns They Must Fit Well

By Jane Driscoll
The Post Fashion Editor

WOMEN are wearing trousers! That is news in any man's language. Last Sunday women were seen wearing trousers while strolling on Connecticut Avenue and they are regularly seen on F Street. Trousers go shopping in the downtown stores as well as marketing in neighborhood districts.

Slacks for Southern wear and Northern playtime wear have been an accepted fashion for a number of years. Until recently, however, a woman could not show herself publicly in slacks or trousers without arousing comment.

Fashion forecasters have given us fair warning of the trouser trend. Two years ago Elizabeth Hawes, designer, speaking here before the Women's National Press Club, prophesized that women would soon be wearing them. Her remarks invoked so much fury that the feminine audience almost became unruly.

And now Miss Ruth Hutton, fashion design instructor in the Cooper Union Art Schools of New York, adds a final note to the issue. She predicts "The victory-minded woman of the near future will wear zipperless trousers, plain jackets or blouses, low-heeled shoes and more practical hats."

Uniform Skirts Impractical

In view of the fact that trousers are in tune with the times, Miss Hutton continues, "Nearly all the uniforms now worn by women in civilian defense corps include skirts, which are entirely impractical for the work that has to be done. A woman wearing a skirt cannot move rapidly, drive a car easily, straddle a motor in a repair shop or stand close to machinery, which might catch a loose hem."

Miss Hutton further declares, "Femininity is necessarily one of the first casualties of war. If a woman is going to take her place beside men in factories and behind the front, she must dress as men do. She must cover up as far as possible her feminine charms and be an assistant, not a distraction. Skirts are out of place in machine shops and behind the wheels of ambulances, and in the event of an actual air raid, skirts are hardly conducive to a lessening of tension in a crowded shelter."

D. C. Sales Zoom

Miss Hutton's statements are supported by the sales of trousers in local stores. One store finds that virtually all its requests come from women who are working in defense, especially the motor corps division of the Red Cross. Many of these women have not earned their uniforms yet, and must wear trousers. Other requests come from women who are working on neighborhood defense jobs as roof watchers on apartments or air raid wardens.

Salesclerks say many women at home, in fear of being bombed, are buying slacks for convenience. Another buyer points out, however, that slacks are in demand because they represent a way of life—a new kind of living. Trouser wearing is not a disregard for femininity, she believes, but rather a studied casualness—an effort toward functionalism that comes to the surface in wartime.

Buyers for Washington stores report that women of all sizes and ages are buying trousers. For those who are still adverse to pants, Miss Hutton has an answer. She says, "Many women do not like the idea of wearing trousers, but much of their antipathy is due to the fact that one so rarely sees a woman in pants made to fit her. A woman will spend hours trying on suits for size, and yet she will buy the first pair of slacks that is the right color. There are very few women who would not look well in trousers if they would have them tailored to order."

Woolens in Demand

The greatest demand for trousers has been in woolens, especially flannel because it holds up so well. All of which means that the majority of slacks are being worn outside, not only by defense workers, but also by women walking, bicycling and hiking. The request for cotton slacks to be worn indoors is not so great.

Relative Asks Advice for Widowed Mother, Whose Daughter, 18, Was Recently Wed to Youth Who Since Refuses to Have Marriage Announced

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Here is a problem which calls desperately for competent handling. A widowed relative of mine has a daughter, 18, who married a youth of 22 a fortnight ago. The girl's father died when she was 7, and her mother has tried valiantly to be "both parents" to her ever since. For a year before her marriage, the mother worked in an office; but during her married life, she lived in her own home, and was cherished and protected. After her husband's death, she came to Washington to take a job, and since then has maintained a lovely home in one of the best apartment buildings in Washington; has kept the daughter in a boarding school, and made a living for both. This she has accomplished at great personal sacrifice.

The marriage has not yet been announced, owing to the boy's determination to keep it a secret from the world. Even before they were married, the boy insisted that the girl get a job, which she did. As she had never shouldered any responsibility before, her mother thought a job would be good for her. And although disappointed by the manner in which they were married, the mother welcomed her son-in-law as one of the family, with every intention of treating him as nearly as possible as a real son. She had worked in the same building with him and considered him a fine chap. But he is definitely not panning out.

It develops that the girl paid their way to Baltimore to be married. He hasn't given her a cent since they married. They spent last weekend in Baltimore, and on their return he asked her to reimburse him for the trip. He insists that she have a child, even though he expects to be called up for training any day. And although she pleads with him to announce their marriage, he absolutely refuses to do so. The mother first thought, as did the girl, that the branch of service he hopes to enter prohibits married men. But on questioning, they learned that a married man may join if he can show his wife is self-supporting.

Although the boy makes the same salary as the girl's mother, he refuses to provide a place for his wife. He buys no clothes and so far as can be seen, has no expenses except his board. He claims he sends money home; but how much (if any) I do not know. Both his parents are living, and there is only one child, a girl of 16, at home. He has been attending a local college at night; but finished his course January 31.

The mother is debating whether she should talk with him and try to point out the position in which he is placing the girl; or let them work it out themselves. She abhors the idea of "mother-in-law interference;" but she wonders if she is making a mistake and perhaps ruining the girl's life, in standing aside in this matter. The girl is heartbroken. She has always confided in her mother; and told her a week beforehand that they planned to be married. The boy doesn't know this.

Should the mother try to "talk reason" to the boy? Or should she wait until he enters the service and then announce the marriage? And if she should speak to him, what is the proper approach? An immediate reply will be appreciated. Sincerely,
LAURA.

Mother Should Take The Youth in Hand

DEAR LAURA: Before proceeding to bring this situation to order, one would need to know why the girl tolerates her bridegroom's scoundreily behavior. Your hearsay claim that, "He insists on her having a child," is oddly inconsistent with his general attitude, and gives one to wonder if she were already pregnant at the time they got married. The fact that she financed the marriage, which was secretly performed, without ceremony, at a time when it seems the boy would have definitely preferred to remain single, lends credence to the supposition. If this theory applies, then his alleged insistence on her having a baby immediately is a patently "face saving" statement; and his ugly refusal to endorse an announcement of their wedding is simply an expression of his bitter resentment at being "trapped."

In the event they illicitly conceived a child, they may have debated the alternatives of terminating the pregnancy or getting married. And they may have got married without relinquishing hope of terminating the pregnancy. Thus, the boy's "determination to keep the marriage a secret from the world," abrogate the contract, if the prospect of paternity can be obviated.

Should this be the state of affairs, then the girl,—because of her fledgling status,—should tell the whole truth to her mother, at once; whereupon the latter should help her decide whether or not it is to her best interest to perpetuate the relationship. If her welfare or happiness seem dependent upon this "bad bargain" marriage, the mother should immediately exercise her right to announce her daughter's wifely status to the world, through the customary medium of society news columns. It is the traditional prerogative of a bride's parents to announce the fact of her mariage; and no bridegroom (however reluctant) has power to block that action.

If the girl continues to keep her own counsel, humbly deferring to her husband's policy of despicable secrecy and selfishness generally, I believe the mother would be fully justified in aggressively proclaiming her outraged intention to publicize the marriage, whether or no. After all, her social prestige is largely bound up with her daughter's good repute;—and it is not only her right, it is her inalienable responsibility to herself and child, to do everything possible to prevent scandal from attaching to their name. In view of the cloudy record the boy's irresponsible attitude is creating, she is clearly entitled to challenge his conduct, demand an explanation and insist that he behave in a more acceptable way. M. H.

The Acid Test

If honest George were alive today,
I wonder what on earth he'd say,
When asked why his change was a little short,
The morning after he did consort
With uncouth pals where he shouldn't have been,
And after SHE'D warned him they'd "do him in."

Today's Social Notes

(From the Truthtown Torch)

Members of the grande dames' defense cooking class will learn at their next lesson Monday morning at the Plush Sofa Club how to prepare strawberries in a Grand Marnier mousse, according to Potage and Souffle, the chefs in charge of the course. Potage is the chef of Mrs. Wynkoop Bigwigger, and Souffle the chef of Mrs. DeLancey Duffer.

Already members of the class have been taught to prepare breast of chicken with foie gras, eggs Mornay and Poulet Poche with Sauce Supreme, as well as learning the more sophisticated methods of mixing ordinary drinks for cocktail parties.

Mrs. Whiffington Mollusk, exclusive dowager of Adamtown, opened her historic home yesterday afternoon for a benefit musicale to aid the fund for Emergency Aid to Torpedo Boat Victims. This is the first time the Mollusk home has ever been opened to others than those of the chatelaine's exclusive circle of friends. Mrs. Bridgeport Billow, chairman of the benefit, acted as hostess. Mrs. Mollusk, of course, did not appear, but consented to listen to the musicale from behind a large Chinese screen she had picked up in her travels.

Grand Opening

Despite innumerable delays the new modernistic air-raid shelter of Mr. and Mrs. Parvenu Popinjay has been completed. It will be opened tomorrow night with a Washington's Birthday blackout party. Tableaux from the life of George Washington will be staged, among them the famous Crossing of the Delaware.

Buzzie Bellwether, playboy son of Truthtown's ace dowager, who was recently rejected for the draft, will impersonate Washington. Among the "Continental soldiers" will be Theodore Van Tinsel, canape tycoon; Ethelbert Vanderpuffer, retired stockbroker and collector of Ming vases; Chauncey Drone, son of the late radish rose magnate, and Ted Flitterjig, polo star and night club backer.

Resort Item

Palm Beach.—Mrs. DeCoursey Beldame, who recently opened her show place here, The Alhambra, with a staff of 35 servants, has enrolled in a defense class in motor mechanics.

Club Item

Mrs. Randolph Jellicoe has resigned as chairman of the ways and means committee of the Women of Tomorrow because she has been completely unable since the opening of the club season in September to find a date at which all members of her committee could get together. Mrs. Adolph Whipper, president of the club, will appoint a new chairman—and possibly a new committee—in the hope of making a committee meeting possible before the club disbands in June.

The Polka Dot Crowd

"Who's the woman in the blue and brown polka dot blouse?"

"A Mrs. Steppit. Her husband's in defense. And that's her daughter—the girl in the polka dot hat."

"Oh, yes. And then the one in the blue and white polka dot dress?"

"Margo Clipper—you know Mrs. DeVasher Clipper. And the woman by her with the green and white polka dot scarf is Barbara Jitters——"

"I know her. But who is the one with the stunning black and white polkadot bag and shoes to match?"

"Oh, that's that new Mrs. Croesus. They say she simply cornered everything in polka dots before they gave out."

"Can you beat that? Some people have all the luck!"

Capital Whirl

by Hope Ridings Miller

"When are you going to Ireland?" is a question put to Justice Frank Murphy just about every time he steps out of a party these days.

"Haven't heard anything about it," is his usual reply. And, officially speaking, he hasn't . . . Yet the rumors persist that just about any day now, Justice Murphy will be off to Dublin to see his friend and former Trinity College classmate, Prime Minister Eamon De Valera . . . Ever Since the latter let out a hue and cry against the landing of American troops in Eire, several of our leading officials have been of the opinion that a one-man good-will mission to Ireland might be in order.

Justice Murphy

Seems that two or three persons who figure they might fill that bill have presented the idea to the President; and in each instance he has put off persistent and self-appointed candidates by saying in effect that if he sends anybody that person certainly should be Frank Murphy, ranking Catholic in the Government, and also a friend of the Irish Prime Minister . . . Thus far, however, the President hasn't asked anybody to go; and Justice Murphy doesn't expect to be sent . . . So, while the rumor still circulates freely, Justice Murphy parries questions with a smile; says once more he hasn't had any official notification; and that he doesn't appear to be off "any time soon." Invariably he adds, however, "Of course I would do anything the President asks."

Daisy Harriman Resumes Salons

Season in and season out, ever since she returned from her mission to the north, in fact, Daisy Harriman, former U. S. Minister to Norway, has been promising friends she would resume her famous Sunday night salons . . . Now, she's doing just that . . . Once again, invitations are going out to those parties that start as an informal supper and soon develop into an all-out, impromptu forum.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman

Uplands, Mrs. Harriman's Foxhall Road home, is the setting for the current series which, like the so-called "teacup chancelleries" that made grade-A social history back in the final days of the Hoover Administration and the first years of the New Deal, are gathering in a hand-picked group of headliners . . . Remember-wheners recall with great glee that Daisy, who was a loyal Democrat long before it was the line of least resistance, showed no party favoritism in gathering guests for her former salons. In fact, big-league Republicans frequently outnumbered those of her own party . . . That, of course, isn't likely to be the case this season . . . But you can count on it that sooner or later most of the Prevailing People will be among those present . . . For if there's any Washington hostess who can collect more headliners around her Sunday supper table than Daisy Harriman, I don't know who she is.

One Washington hostess who talks over the telephone as little as possible is Mrs. John H. Towers, wife of the Chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics . . . "Anything I have to say by telephone is over and done with as soon as possible," she averred yesterday at a small luncheon at La Salle du Bois . . . Later, however, she told how a bit of quickly negotiated telephone business recently took her so much by surprise she hasn't yet recovered . . . This was swift, and to the point, and over—almost before she had time to get her breath.

"Mrs. Towers?" asked the brisk voice at the other end of the wire . . . "Yes," replied the wife of the rear admiral . . . "I'd like to have a room at your house, and wonder if I could move in some time soon" . . . "A room?" said Mrs. Towers, puzzled. "Who is this?" . . . "Oh, you wouldn't know me," said the other, "but I know who you are, and I know you have a boarding house—because I've seen so many people going in and out of your place lately" . . . And that, Mrs. Towers concluded, is what comes of having a continuous string of house guests . . . But what is one to do?" she asks with reason, when so many friends come to town and can't get rooms at the hotel? Besides," she added with a smile, "I like a lot of company."

Palffy Rental Suit Topic of Chatter

Still a popular subject of tea-table talk is the rental suit that Countess Eleanor Palffy recently brought against Mrs. James F. Holman, in regard to the Georgetown home on which the former took a long-time lease back in 1940 and has since put on the sublet list . . . As is always the case in Washington, friends of each person concerned have been busy taking sides and trying to convince everybody else that her favorite in the foray is entirely in the right . . . Meanwhile, however, Countess Palffy has been so busy with her Red Cross work and plans for forthcoming luncheon engagements, she hasn't had much time to twiddle her thumbs while waiting for a decision to be handed down by the D. C. rent administrator.

Countess Palffy

An accomplished public speaker (as she proved again on the stand when her case came up last Saturday), she has appeared before a number of audiences here and in New York in recent months . . . On Wednesday of next week, she will be on the platform as speaker for a mass meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary . . . March 9, she will be in Rhode Island for the fiftieth anniversary celebration of the Colonial Dames, an organization of which her mother was one of the founders.

"Wonder why Countess Palffy donned a Red Cross uniform the day her rental case was tried?" somebody asked in a mildly critical tone the other day . . . Well, I imagine it was because she has been wearing that uniform for months everywhere she went . . . Certainly, it wasn't put on especially for the occasion . . . "But isn't Countess Palffy a middle-European? Didn't she come over to this country just a couple of years ago? She's not an American, is she?" . . . Those three questions, all from the same person, made me wonder if I could believe my ears . . . I thought practically everybody knew that Eleanor Palffy, though formerly married to a Hungarian, was a native of Rhode Island . . . Here are a few further facts for the record: She is a descendant of Roger Williams; her ancestral home—in which her brother, William Green Roelker, now lives—was built by John Green in 1680. Nathaniel Green, another ancestor, married in the parlor of that house, which stands on a 250-acre tract, and which is still part of her family estate.

Miss Prettyman was graduated from Marjorie Webster School in Washington. Lieut. Pennell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Pennell, of Los Angeles, Calif. He was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1939.

The wedding will be at 2 p. m., March 15, in the Naval Academy Chapel in Annapolis.

Washingtonians' Names Figure In Florida Social Headlines

Washingtonians are making many of the social headlines in Florida these days. Mrs. Donald Woodward was seen recently at the races at Hialeah Park in Miami. Lunching with her were Mr. and Mrs. George N. Ray, of this city, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Green, of New York.

Mrs. Richard M. Cutts, and her daughter, Mrs. John T. Wainwright, were hostesses at the Bath Club luncheon a few days ago. Col. and Mrs. Frank L. Hatch have joined the winter colony at the Pancoast Hotel. They have been joined by their daughter, Miss Cornelia Hatch, who arrived from Springfield, Ill.

Continuing her series of bridge luncheons, Mrs. Edward E. Rapley, of this city, entertained a group at the Bath Club recently, her guests including her sister, Mrs. Charles McKenny, who is visiting her in Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Murray entertained at a dinner at the Biltmore this week honoring Maj. and Mrs. C. H. Crim and their houseguests, Col. and Mrs. Richmond T. Gibson, of this city. David H. Blair attended the luncheon in the Mediterranean Room of the Pancoast Hotel, given by Mr. and Mrs. P. Huber Hanes, of Winston-Salem, honoring Mr. and Mrs. Porter Stedman, also of Winston-Salem. Mrs. Andre E. Rickmers entertained at the Surf Club this week, her guests including Mr. and Mrs. Hervey Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Schoellkopf and their son, Walter H. Schoellkopf, jr., who has recently returned from Bermuda, where he was stationed. Others from Washington enjoying the sun and sand of Florida are Dr. and Mrs. William A. Miss Dawson Is Bride of Lieut. Salladay

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Gray Dawson announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Margaret Gray Dawson to Lieut. David Eugene Salladay, Cavalry, U. S. A. The wedding took place yesterday at 11 a. m. in Christ Church, Rockville, Md.

Dr. N. C. Acton, of College Park, Md., a close friends of the bridegroom, officiated. Miss Elizabeth Milby was the maid of honor and only bridal attendant and Victor Harris was the best man. Only members of the immediate families attended.

Following a wedding luncheon at the Columbia Country Club, the couple left by train for Atlantic City where they will spend a brief honeymoon. Lieut. Salladay will report for active duty at Fort Riley, Kans., on February 27. Mrs. Salladay for the present will make her home with her parents at 3701 Massachusetts Avenue here.

Jayne Ferguson, Donald Tucker Wed

The Capital city may be a crowded, hectic place, but still there's no abatement of that oft-seen phrase, "the couple plan to make their home in Washington." It's the last line in the story of another of last weekend's weddings, that of Miss H. Jayne Ferguson, who was married to Donald O. Tucker on Saturday.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Ferguson, of Chicago, was attired in a black and white costume and wore a corsage of white roses. Her matron of honor was Mrs. LaTrelle Barron, and Joseph Fitzgerald was best man for Mr. Tucker. The latter is the son of Mrs. D. B. Tucker, of Johnson City, Tenn.

Club Roundup

By Genevieve Reynolds

'Tree Lady' Tells Need of Forests, Calls Wood a Most Valuable Weapon

DYNAMIC Margaret March-Mount, director, Women's Forestry of the United States Forest Service, has her own idea of defense. It's trees. Not so popularly talked about now as the Red Cross or A. W. V. S., the tree solution isn't so far fetched as appears at first glance.

Miss March-Mount

And with the men foresters being called to arms, it seems largely up to the women to plant, to tend and conserve the trees. Also, its an important job that children can share, according to Miss March-Mont, who is often called "The Tree Lady."

"While we spend billions for bombs," she said, "Let us encourage the children to invest pennies for pines. Bombs explode, pines grow."

"Wood," explained Miss March-Mount, who was seen recently in Washington wearing her green uniform with jacket pockets so huge that no pocketbook was needed, "is a potent arsenal in time of war. No other material seems to fulfill so many wartime requirements. In Europe, people have learned that to be without wood in time of war is almost as bad as being without bread. That's one essential reason for protecting the American forests from careless fires and sabotage."

The money value of timber burned each year would build a fleet of battleships, pointed out Miss March-Mount. "The German high command," she said, "are telling their people that the second most important resource needed to fight a long war, are the forests. We need to preserve our wood not only for battleships now but for reconstructing the country when peace comes."

In this grim era of bombs versus bread and butter, women must look ahead ot the time when war will cease to impoverish the people, and they may grow all crops on protected soils to feed hungry populations, according to Miss March-Mount. "Then likely there will be a demand for wood for new homes, churches, schools, offices, ships and factories," she said, "in order to restore and eventually surpass conditions that normal folk hold dear."

In discussing the part that club women have played in the past toward conserving the forests, "The Tree Lady" pointed out that the National D. A. R. had planted five million little trees in 36 States and the District of Columbia. The General Federation of Women's Clubs has set as one of its goals a federation forest in every State in the Union.

After spending ten years in the Washington office, Margaret went West to continue her work with the United States Forest Service.

Camp Fire Girls in Takima Koda Unit Are Never Wall Flowers—They Conga

WALL FLOWERS? Not the Camp Fire Girls in the Takima Koda group. Come tomorrow night, these girls will sponsor a dance at the Palisades Field House. Furthermore, a dancing instructor will be on hand to teach those that don't already know—the conga and square dance.

Other groups in the Potomac area are busy with a wide variety of activities. Girls in Mrs. Marvin Simmons' group are completing a Red Cross Afghan. All the groups in Montgomery County have been assisting with the Camp Fire Book Shelf in the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Library, in cooperation with Mrs. William Winkler, a member of the board. The Sacajawea Group, under leadership of Mrs. Frederick A. Kummell, expects to attend special church services for Camp Fire Girls Sunday at Albright Memorial Church, Fourth and Rittenhouse Streets Northwest. Work on the defense project, "Fortifying the Family," is in full swing.

Syrian Club Dance

You're a prize winner! That is, if you're on the spot the orchestra leader designates when the music stops. That is only part of the inducement the Syrian Washingtonian Club has to offer at its sixth annual George Washington's birthday ball tonight at the Wardman Park Hotel. In addition to the two spot dances there will be a Syrian rythmn contest dance during intermission. Boys of Syrian descent in the Army get free tickets—all others in army uniforms get a special reduction.

'All Cuban Program

PAN-AMERICAN GOOD Neighbor Forum whose club motto is "Buen Vecino" (Good Neighbor) will put its theory into practice with an all-Cuban program, Thursday night, February 26, at Western High Auditorium, Thirty-fifth and R Streets Northwest.

Dr. Raoul Herrera-Arrango, Second Secretary of the Cuban Embassy, will be the chief speaker. The program also will include Cuban songs, movie and dances.

Luncheon Postponed

DUE TO crowded calendars (who isn't busy?) the Pan-Hellenic Association of Washington voted to forego its annual luncheon. Instead a tea has been planned for Thursday, February 26, at American University. A series of garden parties to introduce newcomers to Washington will supplant the luncheons, originally planned.

Mrs. E. E. (Helen) Lombard of "Washington Waltz," and Mrs. Justin Miller (May Merrill), author of "First the Blade" will be guest speakers at the Pan-Hellenic tea on Tuesday.

Consumer Training

SEVEN SESSIONS of the consumer training course, under auspices of the consumer interest committee, District Defense Council, gets under way Tuesday, February 24. The meetings will be held at the Consumer Information Center 1101 M Street Northwest, and the Phyllis Wheatley Y. W. C. A. All programs are open to any resident of Washington and will continue through March. On Tuesday, Miss Charlotte Chatfield, Beltsville Experimental Station, will lecture on "Food Values," 3 to 5 o'clock, at 1101 M Street. Thursday she will lecture on "Sources of Food," 7:30 to 9:30 o'clock, at Phyllis Wheatley Y. W. C. A.

Doings of the Day

UNIVERSITY OF NEBRASKA —Washington Alumnae meets for dinner, showing of colored films and election of officers, 6:30 o'clock, Y. W. C. A.; Homer L. Shantz, guest speaker . . . Washington Alumnae chapter of Beta Sigma National Sorority meets with Miss Elizabeth Crow, 5402 Connecticut Avenue . . . opening of CHILDREN'S Museum of Washington at the Villa Rose, 4215 Massachusetts Avenue, 4 to 6 and 8 to 10 o'clock . . . Voteless District of Columbia League of Women Voters, executive board meeting at noon, Brookings Institution.

Guests at Study Club

THE POLITICAL STUDY Club's meeting tomorrow will have as its honor guests Dr. L. S. Rowe, director general of the Pan American Union; Mrs. Harry S. Oberholser, State regent, D. A. R., and Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. Among those pouring tea will be Mrs. Charles R. Leavey, Mrs. Harvey Wiley, Mrs. Clark H. Woodward and Mrs. Sherman Walker.

Mrs. America Five-Feet-Four, But No Venus

By Ida Jean Kain

VENUS was 5 feet 4 inches tall, according to the records, and whatever her weight may have been, her figure was perfectly proportioned. The average Mrs. America is the same height, but she is no carbon copy.

The big difference is in the weight distribution. Even though her curves were on the sumptuous order, the original beauty queen had a waistline that measured 11 inches less than the bust, and that is just about twice as good as most women can claim for their figures.

There is no advantage either to looks or to health in having your waist measure a mere 5 inches or so less than the bust. The slim, supple waist is healthy.

To Firm Waist

Our daily defense dozen should, by all means, include a trio of exercises to firm your waist and trim it down. You can't be fit otherwise. You will find this set very effective:

1. Stand sideways to a wall with feet slightly away from the wall, one arm overhead. Push this hand up the wall slowly, stretching every muscle fiber along that side as you push and pull slim through the midriff. Relax and repeat six times. Then reverse sides and reach up with the other hand.

2. For this one, stand in a doorway with your side pressed against the doorframe, hands grasping the frame slightly overhead. Keep your knees straight and arc your body out toward the other side of the door. The movement should be concentrated on that sideward arc and the hips should be kept tucked under, abdomen pulled up, so that you are in good alignment. All the pull should be on those muscles along the outer arc. Rest and repeat five times, then turn around and try it on the other side. You can put your entire weight into this exercise and it is one that really takes the inches off your waistline.

Door Exercise

3. This is also performed with the aid of the door. Swing the door about half open, stand sideward to it, and reach up and grasp the top of the door at the corner. Stretch thoroughly through the midriff, then, very slowly, bring knee on other side up to the chest. Lower and repeat six times. Then rest and perform on other side. This stretcher not only pulls your waistline slim, but also tones your abdominal girdle.

It is really surprising how much a little exercise can improve your figure, especially when you are working on your waist. You can easily lose an inch in two weeks. Keep a record and tick off the inches week by week. If you don't put the changes down in black and white, you may wonder whether you're not just imagining you have lost.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

War Agency Revamping Up to President Alone

The President must take the lead in Government reorganization. He alone has complete authority to revamp war agencies under the re-enacted Overman Act. And no use has been made of it since it became law.

It's a widely held belief among Federal officials that many agencies must be reorganized before they can be converted to the war effort and if the most effective service is to be had by the Government from its employes.

It's interesting to recall, for example, that a year ago the House Appropriations Committee recommended that the enforcement of the Wage and Hour Act, Walsh-Healy Act and the child labor provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act be "placed in one organization under one head."

The committee went on to explain that three different bureaus within the Labor Department—Wage and Hour, Division of Public Contracts, and the Children's Bureau—each had inspectors in the field visiting the same factories while the three enforcing jobs could be done easily by a single staff.

In fact, some time ago, a Labor Department spokesman said Labor Secretary Perkins suggested a plan for the merger of Wage and Hour with her Division of Public Contracts. The proposal, however, appears to have been blocked and the spokesman attributes it to "political reasons."

It's also a fact that several months ago an agreement was worked out whereby the 1000 Wage and Hour inspectors were to check on factories with war contracts to see that they were complying with OPM's priority orders. Wage and Hour officials proposed the arrangement and some of them are openly disappointed at the little use war officials have made of their experienced and trained staff.

At the moment Leon Henderson's OPA is using 500 Wage and Hour inspectors to check up on rubber supplies and weeks ago they made an aluminum survey for OPM. Meantime, OPA and War Production Board, formerly OPM, are building up field staffs of enforcing officers.

Another Suggestion

Just this week the House Appropriations Committee passed on another suggestion to the President. The committee noted that the Maritime Commission is building hundreds of ships and that it has its own group of inspectors. Yet the vessels are inspected for "safety and seaworthiness" by inspectors of the Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation. The committee believes that "considerable economies" will result if maritime inspectors were given the authority to examine commission vessels for "safety and seaworthiness."

The committee isn't alone in its belief that the Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation, a unit in the Commerce Department, could be made more useful. About 18 months ago, it's reported, the Secretaries of Treasury and Navy and the chairman of the Maritime Committee sent a letter to the President urging that the bureau be scrapped and its work divided between the Coast Guard and the Maritime Commission. The bureau insists it doesn't duplicate work of any agency.

Now for the too many defense housing agencies. Administrative experts, coordinators, liaison officers and others with high-sounding titles have been trying to figure out what to do with them ah. Months ago the President brought his close friend and adviser, Judge Samuel I. Rosenman, down here from a New York court bench and put him on the job where so many had failed before.

It's reported that Rosenman made the obvious recommendation—that the housing agencies be merged—but nothing has been done despite appeals from Congress and the public. Some believe the President may act shortly, however, as Rosenman is now a White House guest.

Only the President can act on these and many more suggestions on Government reorganization unless he delegates the authority to one of his assistants.

Meantime, four Federal agencies here continue to work on a Government-as-usual basis.

These agencies—the Labor Department, Employes Compensation Commission, Securities and Exchange Commsision, and the Railroad Retirement Board—have remained on the standard 39-hour work week despite the fact that every other agency here has its employes on either a 44 or 48-hour week.

The President has ordered his Budget Bureau to restudy personnel and fiscal needs of the agencies that have lengthened employe hours and the four agencies, it was learned, will have their budgets slashed as if they were on 44-hour weeks which, of course, will force them to go on longer work weeks.

Col. Bolles Appeals For Litter Bearers

Col. Lemuel Bolles, director of the District Defense Council, yesterday issued a special appeal for volunteers willing to become litter bearers. Only men will be accepted. Litter bearer units will be attached to emergency medical casualty stations set up under direction of Dr. John A. [illegible]

The Mail Must Go On

The postman will ring twice Monday—holiday or no. Postmaster General Walker ruled yesterday that in order to keep the war effort going postal deliveries will be made on that date, although it is legally a holiday—Washington's Birthday falling on Sunday.

Play No Favorites

Boston, Feb. 19 (INS).—Gov. Leverett Saltonstall tonight had concrete evidence that the Massachusetts Tire Rationing Board, which he appointed, is 100 per cent conscientious.

The Governor himself was turned down today on his application for tires, and so was Mayor Maurice J. Tobin of Boston.

More Funds Seen Needed For Housing

50 Million Grant Looms Insufficient; Private Enterprise Bid Is Rejected

By Charles Mercer
Post Staff Writer

The Senate Education and Labor Committee will continue hearings today on the House-passed 50-million-dollar war housing bill for the District area with these possibilities manifestly underscored in the minds of committee members:

Nearly 20 million dollars of the amount should go for expansion of existing public factilities, including additions to private local hospitals.

Existing needs far surpass the work which the fund will enable to be completed, and more Federal aid may have to be sought in the future.

Private Enterprise Rejected

The committee yesterday turned down the bid of private enterprise to do the building job necessary to house 85,000 Federal war workers coming to the Nation's Capital during this year. At the same time Senator Taft (Republican), of Ohio, rapped at Federal agencies which failed to cooperate in giving a concerted recommendation to the committee on how the amount is to be earmarked.

Commissioner of Public Buildings W. E. Reynolds outlined his proposal for expenditures of the 50 million dollars, to which he said more must eventually be added, as follows:

1. Expansion of roads, waterworks, sewers, sewage disposal facilities—$11,169,000.
2. Construction of the "equivalent" of five schools—$1,800,000.
3. Extension of present hospital facilities to accommodate 200 additional beds—$609,000.
4. Recreation facilities—$300,000.
5. Construction of permanent apartment buildings—$9,450,000.
6. Construction of single and duplex permanent dwellings—$11,655,000.
7. Construction of temporary dormitories—$6,270,000.
8. Setting up of cafeterias for use of dormitory dwellers—$1,408,000.
9. Purchase of land—$3,274,000.
10. Community services—$2,767,000.
11. Construction of commercial facilities such as stores and physicians' offices in the event private enterprise was unwilling to make capital investments—$3,500,000.

To Care For 12,000

Reynolds declared that the housing involved would care for an estimated 12,000 persons. Sixty thousand more, of the expected 85,000 workers expected here in the next year, will be accommodated in housing plans of private enterprises, the Alley Dwelling Authority and RFC funds through the Defense Housing Corporation. This leaves about 13,000 yet to be prepared for.

Committee Chairman Thomas (Democrat), of Utah, and other committee members found their chief objection to Reynolds' figures lying in the fact he had not planned for better hospital facilities.

He replied that his figures are based on the population influx and not on existing District needs.

"I'd be inclined to make the utilities the most important item at about 20 million dollars, and work out the housing on that basis," said Senator Taft.

Senator Thomas emphasized that "It's better to do a good and thorough job on the public works involved now."

At the morning session of the all-day committee hearing, James Brunot, of the defense, health and welfare service of the Federal Security Agency, declared that Washington's community facilities will cost at least 18 million dollars.

Among his estimates—differing widely from Reynolds'—was the figure of $8,500,000 for 2100 hospital beds.

Puts Need at 18 Millions

Commissioner Guy Mason also placed community needs at a cost of 18 millions at least, declaring:

"The District has reached the point of exhaustion as far as revenues are concerned. There is obvious need for a great deal of housing. With additional housing must go along additional schools, sewers, hospitals and police and fire protection."

Both he and Chairman McCarran of the Senate District Committee advocated a program expanding hospital facilities by 1867 beds. Senator McCarran spoke on behalf of both the House and Senate District Committees which indorsed the plan at a joint session Wednesday.

Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, urged the committee to give consideration to necessary school accommodations.

Senator La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, declared, "it is as important to get this community in a position for war as it is to provide tanks and guns."

John Ihlder, executive officer of the Alley Dwelling Authority, told the committee temporary, demountable houses should be considered only "if they can be erected more rapidly, and if they are needed as a cushion to prevent an oversupply of dwellings."

He pointed out that demountable houses must have servicing facilities constructed and if they are removed the facilities will be "a total loss."

Herbert U. Nelson, vice president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, made a strong plea to give the entire housing job to private enterprise. He also proposed a national housing czar to serve in the housing field in a capacity similar to Donald Nelson's as head of the War Production Board.

Urges Temporary Structures

He urged construction of only temporary buildings. Declaring that local firms could put up the needed homes in a few weeks, he declared, "If public enterprise continues to build housing, private enterprise can't compete."

"I don't think your point holds at all," replied Senator Thomas, referring to his request for temporary buildings. The chairman cited the experences of the Government following the last war when the Government lost a great deal of money on temporary structures.

"Every cent will be gotten out of permanent housing," said Senator Taft. "I'm very much afraid if the Government did nothing in the District nothing would get done. Private enterprise couldn't get the building done fast enough."

James C. Wilkes of the Washington Home Builders Association echoed Nelson's appeal to let private builders do the job.

Victory Sidelights

Bolles Deplores War Lethargy Among Washington Residents

With the exception of a relatively small group enlisted for civilian defense work, Washingtonians are "suffering from the same degree of lethargy, of lack of interest, that is the rule over the country as a whole," Col. Lemuel Bolles said yesterday.

The executive director of civilian defense for the metropolitan area addressed Catholic clergymen at St. Gabriel's School, Grant Circle.

Citizens accustomed to rely on police, firemen and the military for protection "must learn to do certain things for themselves," he declared. "This is not playing marbles," he said, stressing that the Capital is within a target area.

The Rev. William J. Sweeney, representative of the Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, Archbishop of Baltimore and Washington, in civilian defense matters, pointed out that approval had been obtained for the Catholic Ladies of Charity to set up emergency feeding stations in Catholic parishes in event of an emergency. The meeting yesterday was to acquaint priests with the over-all picture of civilian defense efforts here.

COI Representative To Speak on 'Rumors'

Douglass Miller, of the Office of the Coordinator of Information, will speak to the voluntary participation committee of the District Defense Council this morning at 10 o'clock, at the District Building.

His subject will be "Rumors and How to Deal With Them," with "What Not to Say" as a subdivision. Conrad Van Hyning heads the voluntary participation committee.

Dupont Circle Area Class Begins Today

Red Cross Instructress Ruth Parmele, of Zone 6, Dupont Circle Area, of Civilian Defense, today starts her third Red Cross class for beginners at 1720 Sixteenth Street Northwest. Classes will be conducted from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m. each Monday and Friday for four weeks.

Zone Warden Edmund M. O'Sullivan has asked all sector and building wardens to assemble at Ross School, R Street between Seventeenth Street and New Hampshire Avenue tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. Assistant Zone Warden Frank Brooke will address the wardens on operation of sector posts. Sector Warden Frank B. Sullivan will give instruction in gasses and bombs

D. C. Defense Council Offered Air Services

Although there will be no civil air patrol unit formed under the District Defense Council, the council has been offered the services of the national headquarters squadron now being organized.

The squadron will be available for such jobs as blackout observation and the transportation of personnel and materials, Reed G. Landis, aviation aide to the Office of Civilian Defense, wrote Col. Lemuel Bolles, District defense director.

Messengers Organize In Dupont Circle Area

Michael Styles, 16-year-old volunteer, has assumed the responsibility for recruiting messengers for the Dupont Circle Defense Area, and already has his first patrol of 20 boys in training.

A meeting of all boys within five minutes walking distance of any sector post in the area has been called by Michael for tonight at 8 o'clock at Columbus University, 1323 Eighteenth Street Northwest.

Classes in bombing and gas attack procedure are being planned for the messengers, who will be the "first line of communications after the air-raid alarm." To properly man the Dupont area, Michael needs 900 recruits, he said yesterday.

Machinist Crushed To Death Between Two Railroad Cars

Daniel Henderson, 53, machinist at the Washington Terminal, was crushed to death between two railroad cars yesterday at the Ivy City repair shop near Fourth and T Streets Northeast.

He was wedged between a baggage car and a coach which were being switched under the direction of Yard Master Lewis Stokes, of 2016 Jackson Street Northeast.

Police reported that the engineer of the switching engine was George Scott, of 1212 Crittenden Street Northeast, and the conductor was Lester Bell, of 128 Cave Hill Avenue, Benning, D. C.

How Henderson became wedged between the cars had not been determined last night. The body was ordered to the District Morgue by the coroner pending complete investigation.

Henderson lived at 2804 Twenty-sixth Street Northeast with his wife, Mrs. Clara Henderson.

February Shows Consumption Gain Of 4000 Bottles Over January

Washington's 1-cent milk program for underprivileged children, inaugurated January 5 after an extended campaign by The Post in its behalf, is working out "so splendidly" that it is being expanded.

Harry M. Gardner, who disburses District payments for the penny half-pints, reported yesterday that an average daily distribution of more than 34,000 bottles will be achieved during February. When the program was started six weeks ago, the daily average was slightly under 30,000.

Meantime, a public hearing, whose final outcome may have a direct bearing on the low-cost milk plan, was coming to a close in the United States Chamber of Commerce Building. Concluding testimony was taken on proposed amendments to the Federal milk marketing order for the Washington area, one of which would raise the producer price 1 cent a quart.

Would Jeopardize Program

However, on milk which is utilized in the penny program, dairy farmers are asking an increase of approximately 2½ cents a quart. Should this be granted, it would necessitate such a large increase in the Federal subsidy which makes the penny half-pints possible as to jeopardize the program's future, its supporters fear.

According to Gardner, 583,746 of the low-cost bottles were distributed among pupils of 64 schools and patrons of seven settlement houses in January. The bill to the District Government totaled $5774, at the rate of one cent a bottle, the difference in cost being borne by the Surplus Marketing Administration, Agriculture Department.

The over-all distribution figure for January included 6300 bottles delivered to the seven settlement houses, which pay their own bills.

Asserting that the program is working exceptionally well, Gardner said nine more settlement houses and three more public schools have applied for participation. Their eligibility is now being studied.

Farmer Claims Losses

For a school or settlement house to be eligible it must be shown that at least 65 per cent of its enrollment are children receiving public relief or from families on relief, on WPA, receiving private charity or classified in the lowest third income bracket.

Advocates and opponents of the price increase and other proposed amendments were given until March 2 to file briefs. Any changes in the marketing order would become effective on May 1.

When the price hearing closed yesterday representatives of five Washington dairies had expressed objections to producer demands for an increase.

One of the last farmers to take the stand was Mason F. Smith, of Herndon, Va., who presented detailed figures purporting to show that he was selling his milk on the Washington market at a loss.

"We simply must get more money," he declared, adding: "If I went home tonight and told the wife I was going to sell the cows (41), she'd be the happiest woman in the world."

Three Alarm Fire Drives 12 to Street

A three-alarm fire at 2 o'clock this morning drove 12 persons to the sub-freezing street in their nightclothes from their apartments at 1722 H Streets Northwest. All reached safety without injury.

The gray stone three-story building is occupied by three apartments on the top floor; the Elliott Addressing Machine Co. and the Weinbaum Dental Supply Co. below. Firemen fought the blaze for more than an hour.

21 D. C. Students Awarded Medals at Patriotic Rites

ESSAY CONTEST WINNER—Grethen Ritter, 11, a Nativity School pupil, receives American Legion medal from Joseph H. Walker, vice commander of Fort Stevens Post

Marking the joint celebration of the birthdays of Washington and Lincoln 21 Washington public school students were awarded certificates and medals for outstanding patriotic and educational achievement, by the American Legion Fort Stevens Post No. 32, last night.

At the eighth annual patriotic assembly, sponsored by the Legion post at Roosevelt High School the students receiving the special awards and the schools they represented were: Fredda Lipschitch, Barnard; Anita Adler, Brightwood; Lee Ann Plane, Keene; Grethen Ritter, Nativity; Doris Suddeth, Petworth; Milton House, Rudolph; Jeanne Turner, Saint Gabriel's; Bobbie Watts, Shepherd; Juanita Nelson, Takoma; Myra Minovitz, Truesdell; Marlowe Anderson, West; Wallace Weiss, Whittier, and Rosare Stewart, Military Road.

Stuart Given and Bernice Bittner, Roosevelt High School; Sidney Eichner and Beverly Sperling, McFarland Junior High School; Robert Anderson and Adele Reese, Coolidge High School, and Joseph Miller and Mary Eppley, Paul Junior High School.

The principal speakers at the patriotic meeting, presided over by Joseph A. Walker, chairman of the Americanism Committee, were Representative John C. Kunkel (Republican), of Pennsylvania and Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the District Board of Education.

Coroner's Jury Will Probe Two Traffic Fatalities

D. C. traffic deaths this year..... 20
Deaths this date last year..... 15
District total last year..... 95

A coroner's jury this morning will investigate two recent District traffic fatalities— the nineteenth and twentieth this year.

Latest of the local car deaths is that of James Wallace, Negro, 45, of 1340 Eleventh Street Southeast, who died at Casualty Hospital Wednesday night. He was struck by a cement truck at Eighth and G Streets Southeast, January 17. Carl W. Quackenbush, 39, of 2213 Hall Place Northwest, said by police to be the driver of the truck, will appear at the hearing.

Second inquest will probe the death of J. Raymond Catrow, 47, of 1124 Twenty-fifth Street Northwest, a pedestrian, who was struck by a streetcar at Thirteenth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest, last Sunday. He died at Emergency Hospital Tuesday. The streetcar motorman, John Smith, 45, of 1313 Thirty-fifth Street Northwest, has been summoned to appear before the jury.

Bolles to Broadcast On 'Danger of Apathy'

"Danger of Apathy" will be the subject of a radio speech over Station WWDC this afternoon at 3:15 o'clock by Col. Lemuel Bolles, director of the District Defense Council. Assisting him with the program will be J. Bernard McDonnell and Harold P. Godwin.

Dr. Walsh Opens His 18th Lecture Series Tonight

The Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., vice president of Georgetown University, will open his eighteenth annual public lecture course tonight in Memorial Continental Hall. His ten addresses will cover the general subject, "America Faces Total War," and the first one will discuss, "The Meaning of Total War."

The lectures will be at 8:30 p. m. each Friday night, except Easter week and the week of the National D. A. R. Congress in April.

Two Shifts Urged For U. S. Bureaus

Business Federation Tells How to Save Space and Prevent Traffic Congestion

The Federation of Businessmen's Associations last night proposed that Government bureaus go on two shifts to conserve space.

Louis I. Obergh said that two shifts would simultaneously relieve the space shortage and traffic congestion—two major District problems. A third problem—housing—could be solved if restrictions on private builders were removed, Obergh said.

A committee, with Nathan Goodman as chairman, was appointed to study the problems arising out of decentralization of Federal agencies, after a motion was offered opposing the decentralization.

Pick-up Service Praised

The federation also adopted a resolution praising the District Public Utilities Commission for its "taxi-jitney" experiment. The resolution urged taxi groups not now participating in the experiment to apply for authority to do so.

Appropriation of funds for a people's counsel on the P. U. C. was asked in a third resolution. Advocates pointed out that the post of people's counsel is authorized by law, although funds for the post have been omitted in recent years. Need for such an official to guard the interest of the public is more important now than ever before because of the great amount of defense activity involving public utilities, they said.

Back Boys, Girls Clubs

Other resolutions adopted pledge the federation's support to the Police Boys Club and the Girls Club.

Renah F. Camalier, counsel of the Senate District Committee, urged the businessmen to give war workers in Washington "their money's worth," because the city's future reputation will depend upon the treatment given the out-of-towners.

"Go down the line for the community and let our united front be an inspiration for the entire country," he said.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, former superintendent of the Metropolitan Police Department and head of the Boys Club, outlined the history of the Boys Club movement in Washington and said that it had done a great deal toward reducing juvenile delinquency.

Snatchers Get $28

Miss Dorothy R. Holmes, 35-year-old Government employe, was robbed of $28 last night by two men as she stood at a bus stop near her home, she reported to police. One of the men pointed a gun at her, the other grabbed her pocketbook and then both of them ran to a car

Victory Board To Discuss Labor Supply

The questions of wages and of providing for war industry's manpower requirements will be the principal concerns of the second session of Labor's Victory Board, scheduled for today at the White House, it was said authoritatively last night.

The President will receive a report from A. F. of L. and C. I. O. members of the board outlining the two labor organizations, views on industrial training, priorities unemployment, and Selective Service procedure.

The board which is composed of three representatives of each labor organization, Sidney Hillman, labor director of the War Production Board; Mrs. Anna Rosenberg, the group's secretary, and the President, met two weeks ago and asked the labor members to evolve a uniform policy on the two questions.

Hold Secret Talks

Since then a number of secret conferences has been held by the labor leaders. It is understood that a definite program has been evolved.

It is presumed that the union officials will insist that provision be made to pay increased unemployment compensation benefits to those made unemployed by priorities regulations and conversion of industrial resources to war needs, while the factories are retooling.

Yesterday the House Ways and Means Committee turned down an Administration-sponsored measure to pay the increased benefits through the State unemployment compensation systems because of the vigorous opposition of the States. However, the labor leaders have stated that they do not care who handles the funds.

Alternative Plan

One alternative plan which is expected to be considered today is to have the WPA pay the jobless men to attend classes where they may receive the training required by wartime jobs. Another proposal is that the money be granted to the States outright.

The unionists are also expected to ask that wage levels be allowed to keep pace with the rising cost of living. At the last session a memorandum from Price Administrator Leon Henderson opposing wage increases at this time as inflationary was read by the President to the labor members and evoked a prolonged discussion.

Mardi Gras Festival Time in Rio

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

GAIETY SOUTH OF THE BORDER—War, which canceled the Mardi Gras celebration this week in New Orleans, fails to cause postponement of the festivity in Brazil. Wearing colorful costumes, residents of Rio de Janeiro dance in a street of that South American city. Rio's festival lasts four days

Action Expected Today on Mall Parking Issue

The controversial issue as to whether parking of automobiles in the Mall shall be permitted may come to a head today.

Meeting this morning, the National Capital Park and Planning Commission is expected to reaffirm its opposition to the plan, which is supported by Commissioner J. Russell Young and Representative Everett M. Dirksen, ranking minority member of the House District Committee.

Disapproval by the planners would not necessarily kill the scheme, however. Many of the temporary office buildings now under construction occupy sites which were not indorsed by the planning agency.

Proponents of utilization of the mile-long expanse of roadways and greensward betwen the Capitol and Washington Monument say it would relieve the bus and streetcar load, conserve tires, provide a centrally located parking area and, if each user fulfilled a pledge to carry at least two passengers to and from work, materially reduce rush hour congestion by lowering the number of passenger cars on the streets.

Opening sessions yesterday of the planning body's monthly meeting produced only routine action.

Norman C. Brown, associate land purchasing officer, reported acquisition of three small land parcels, aggregating $25,000, for the George Washington Memorial Parkway; a small strip of land "to round out holdings of the Georgetown Branch Library, and miscellaneous property for the Watts Run and Anacostia projects.

Brown and John Nolen, jr., director of planning, submitted a report on sewerage and public utilities in those sections of the city where defense housing is projected but they declined to make public their findings.

The planners discussed, as they did last month, preliminary designs for a parkway connecting the South Capitol Street Bridge (still unbuilt) with the new Federal office buildings in Suitland, Md.

Taking an afternoon field trip, they inspected the proposed route of the Suitland parkway and went through those sections of the new War Department Building which are nearest completion.

"The commissioners were higly pleased with progress made," said Secretary Thomas S. Settle.

'Winning the Peace' Lenten Sermon Topic at Epiphany

The Christians' threefold task in "winning the peace" that follows the war was outlined yesterday by the Rev. Dr. Hulbert A. Woolfall, rector of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, St. Louis, Mo.

He addressed 1,000 worshipers at Lenten noonday services at Epiphany Episcopal Church, 1317 G Street Northwest, one of several special Lenten programs throughout the city.

In the first place, said Dr. Woolfall, we must today have the basic conviction that, in spite of the gloomy outlook, that "God has in no way abdicated from the contemporary scene." We must strengthen our belief in his essential nature and character, he said.

We also must carry the conviction that there is an essential unity underlying mankind, he continued, and added that such a conviction is something to which Christians cannot be oblivious.

There also must be a Christian conviction that we in America have a responsibility for the tragedy of the present hour, and that we have a deep need forynational repentance, stated Dr. Woolfall. He preaches again today at 12:05 p m.

Among those at the service was the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington and close friend of Dr. Woolfall. The Very Rev. ZeBarney T. Phillips, now Dean of Washington, was once rector of the church which Dr. Woolfall now serves.

Southest Protestant churches yesterday sponsored noonday services at the Penn Theater, 650 Pennsylvania Avenue Southeast, with the Rev. A. P. Wilson, retiring pastor of Columbia Heights Christian Church, as speaker. The Rev. A. F. T. Raum, pastor of First Methodist Church, will preach today at 12 a. m.

Special Lenten programs were centered at Wesley Methodist Church, Fourteenth and Lawrence Streets Northeast, and other churches.

Meanwhile, officials of Epiphany Episcopal Church announced that a special series of laymen's Lenten programs will begin today at 5 p. m., and continue at that hour each Friday during Lent. Today's speaker will be Charles F. Wilson, prominent lawyer, and chancellor of the Washington Diocese of the Episcopal Church.

The Washington Cathedral, through the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, has extended an invitation to the public to study Christianity as portrayed in Christian art, through a series of Saturday Lenten lectures entitled "The Christian Symbolism of Washington Cathedral."

Speaker for the series, scheduled for 2 p. m. beginning today, will be Ogle R. Singleton, member of the District bar and secretary of the nchurches shrduetaoicmfwyETAOhicese.

Mountain Trek Films To Be Shown Tonight

Modern pioneering in a high mountain wilderness will be shown in natural-color motion pictures to members of the National Geographic Society at Constitution Hall tonight, when Ruth and William Albee tell the story of their 150-mile hike over the Sierra Nevada of California.

With packs on their backs, they started southward from Yosemite National Park, accompanied by their two children Billy and Jo-Evelyn, to emerge two months later at Sequoia National Park.

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

THE GREAT CARDINI, master of the "now-you-see-it, now-you-don't" science, will open at the Troika tonight. His previous Washington appearances have always been in theaters. At the Troika, we understand, he'll adapt his rare trickery to the intimate club atmosphere, perhaps invite some audience participation. Think of being Cardini's assistant! . . . Piquant Terry Lawlor and graceful Enrico and Novello are remaining on at Troika.

Charlie Rock, head man of the Hi Hat's new Mirthmakers, was last in Washington when he played at President Herbert Hoover's inaugural ball with Paul Specht's Band.

PORTRAIT DOLLS. The little marionettes whose dance introduces Haukane and Lonya at the Shoreham, are exact duplicates of H. and L., not only in features and costume, but even in miniature jewelry. The idea of the dance is that the marionettes suddenly grow into real people via a "magic powder" . . . Army comedy arrives at the Shoreham next Monday in "Sergeant Green Presents Private Dooley."

HILARIOUS DANCE NOVELTIES will soon be introduced in the Cosmos Room by Maestro Joseph Sudy. They'll include "Put Your Little Foot Out," a sort of ring-around-rosy with fancy gestures, and "Ten Pretty Girls," wherein everyone makes believe they're a dancing chorus. Joe says the steps are as easy as the conga, involve even more of a general romp. This fun in footwork will probably be started at tomorrow afternoon's cocktail session.

Sunday afternoon tea dancing to Tony Pastor's music in the Victory Room is an ideal way of starting the week. At last Sunday's party we saw Maestros Dick Koons (Mayflower Lounge), and Ralph Hawkins (Crossroads), and many other star musicians among the dancing young folks.

JUNIOR PARTYING. Little Dick Lam, jr., and his baby sister, Elaine, attractive children of Manager Dick Lam, of the Lotus, had a great time watching the love bird circus at the Lotus luncheon show, topped off their party by buying defense stamps from a pretty dancer . . . 10-year-old Beatrice Nakkashian, daughter of Host Martin, of the Madrillon, was a picture of little girl dignity when she lunched at the Madrillon with 8-year-old George Nazarian, son of the Oriental rug expert.

EXCITEMENT IN RHYTHM. When Del Rio's Gracie Barrie twists the title to "I Got it Good and That Ain't Bad" while Dick Stabile's Band caroms the rhythm all around the place . . . That to-do with cap pistols and shouts in El Patio when Frank Victor's crew puts on "She Lived Next Door to the Firehouse" . . . The "Caravan" special in the Neptune Room when Drummer Milton Bruck discards coat and tie, gives the tympani the wackiest whacking you'll ever hear . . . The vitaminized answers of Layton Bailey's Metronome Room Band to "Do You Wake Up With That Run-Down Feeling?" new song by Grace Shannon . . . That genuine Bojangles tap-stepping by Atta Blake in Paul Young's Revue . . . The unique rumba rhythm in Cafe Caprice with Don Carper leading from the vibraphone and tossing in a suggestion of hula . . . The hotter'n-hot rumba rhythm in the Copocabana with Rodrigo soothing the maracas to a wicked whisper . . . "Old Chriss," newest jive number, being rehearsed by Jack Shaffer, of the Casino Royal. He's going to pop it in the floor show as soon as he gets a Christopher Columbus rig with plumes, tights and a ruff.

Jack Houser, who's been with the Hamilton Hotel for nine years in various departments, has been named as the new maitre d'hotel of the big hostelry. It's a very popular appointment.

WHEN CHERRY BLOSSOMS BLOOM in 1943, the tide of Allied Nations victory will start to sweep to an invincible crest, says Leo, sage seer of Mayfair, who's been correct on many historic prognostications. He names June 21, 1944, as a "Day of History."

HONEYED MELODY. Ida Clarke's organ solo of "Cancel the Flowers," in the Lounge Riviera . . . Bob Pace's fine vocaling of Cole Porter's new "You Are Everything I Love," in the King Cole Room . . . Sid Willoughby's nostalgic novachording of gay nineties tunes in Burt's Trans-Lux . . . The beautiful "Goodbye, My Russian Village," sung by Vava Bajon in the Balalaika Revue . . . The melodies of the "Deep South," played at the Viking by Paul Perkins' Bayou Band . . . Russ Cullen's tenoring of "This Love of Mine," in the Pall Mall Room . . . That rare, full version of "The Emperor" waltz (we think it's Strauss' loveliest) being played by the Heintz Brothers and Jane Marlow in Restaurant "823."

Nell Deacon is winding up her seven-month engagement at Kavakos Grill as singing mistress of ceremonies, a great record for either a lad or lass emcee. Kavakas' "floor show weekend" starts again tonight.

FOR SUBURBAN DANCING PLEASURE. Crowds at the Nightingale are as big as those around the draft boards the other day. Jack Maggio's dance music is an adept mixture of sweet and swing, with plenty of diverting novelties as an added dividend . . . Down at the Log Tavern you'll find ingratiating rhythm by the Charlie Parrish band, an outfit whose popularity is increasing every week.

Many Physicians Will Take Part In G.W.'s Clinic

Many of the outstanding physicians associated with the Army, the Navy, and various Government agencies and private institutions will take part in the George Washington University School of Medicine's post graduate clinic today. A large part of the sessions will be devoted to a symposium on war medicine.

This morning members will go to Gallinger Hospital conference room for grand ward rounds, with Dr. Walter A. Bloedorn, dean of the School of Medicine, presiding.

The clinic will be completed with the sixteenth annual banquet of the George Washington University Medical Society tomorrow evening at the Mayflower Hotel.

Army Uniforms Tell U. S. History

An exhibit of American Army uniforms, from the days of the Continental Army to the present, has been placed on display in the Eleventh and F Streets window of Woodward & Lothrop department store. The exhibit will continue through Monday.

The uniforms represent 165 years of American military history and show the six major changes in the uniforms of American soldiers, the red and blue of 1776, white trousers of 1812, powder blue of 1861, first khaki of 1898, puttees of 1917, and the trim khaki outfit of today.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Without Shirley Povich

(While Shirley Povich is on vacation various members of the staff will write his column.)

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

WHITTLESEY

A Washington sports editor is strictly on the spot in this overflowing city, home for an indefinite period of uncounted thousands of temporary workers from the far corners of the Nation.

When the bulky fellow who edits The Post sports pages comes to work he not only must cater to the sports craving of the G. W. and Georgetown rooters, the Nat fans, the Turner's, Riverside and Uline followers and so on, but he must keep in mind the sports affairs of the entire country. For cosmopolitan Washington wants to know these things.

News of the war-torn world, of course, is mandatory reading for every newspaper purchaser. But with even Joe Palooka in the Army the sports page affords a few moments temporary relief from the troubles of the hour. On the sports pages in this city, where native Washingtonians are in a great minority, must be news of Maine and Miami, of Notre Dame, the Southwest, California and leagues and conferences from coast to coast.

A Washington sports editor must attempt to please, as much as his various news series will accommodate, people who want home-town news. This point was brought clearly to this department after several months' residence in one of the suburb's many developments, a particular unit where the doors are always open to neighbors. Over a can of beer these friends digest the topics of the day, and sports is bound to enter to the conversation.

Meet the Second-Floor Families

The young families who occupy this particular apartment are average Washington workers, who spend their money (and maybe the rest of their lives) here but still have an eye to doings back home. Take the second floor, for instance, for your average sports page readers, as they take The Post sports news apart to us.

From right to left you have the Thomas L. McKevitts. He is a Notre Dame graduate and a native of upper Michigan. A young Department of Justice attorney, an occasional, and duffer golfer, McKevitt has a smile for us every day Notre Dame gets a good play in the sports section. He was one of the leaders of the Notre Dame-Navy football game rally last fall and after the Irish beat the Middies in Baltimore it was open house all night in apartment 281.

Next door the Charles J. Connollys reside. He's better known as Chubb. A patent attorney, Chubb proudly displays a diploma from Xavier University in Cincinnati, a school Georgetown will long remember. If you're looking for the inside story on why Xavier beat Georgetown, 14-6, last fall in one of the major upsets of the season you may look no further.

Chubb entertained scouts from X. U. every weekend the Hoyas played in town, but that was not his biggest coup. The week leading up to the game in Cincinnati, Chubb carefully took all clippings from Washington newspapers. (One belittled the Xaverians every day) and air-mail-specialed them to Coach Clem Crowe, who pasted them on the bulletin boards, marked must reading for the team.

Now as you enter the Connolly apartment, a Washington newspaper headline, "Hoyas Face Xavier in Pushover Final," greet you. Directly underneath, in larger type from a Cincy paper, is Xavier Humbles Georgetown, 14-6." Does Mrs. Connolly object? She loves it.

An Easterner and an Englishman

Chubb is a rabid baseball fan. When a lawyer in his home town, he saw 70 of the Reds 77 home games one year and last summer he adopted the Nats and took in 30 games. He was brought up near a lot where the Reds would mingle with the kids after dinner and has followed the team since that time.

Second from left you will see John J. Reidy on the doorplate. John is a salesman from Stamford, Conn., and a New York U. grad. He is a southpaw golfer and another sports fanatic. When N. Y. U. was considering disbanding football for the duration, John rushed upstairs one morning and wanted to know why our sports page carried only three paragraphs. That was banner line news to him.

Completing the quartet of second-floor dwellers are the William Walkers. He is a blond Englishman, only a fair sports fan—except for golf. Bill, a commercial artist, could talk Bobby Jones and par, birdies and eagles, for days. He subscribes to all golf magazines and, whenever he can spare time from a drawing he's out hitting them not far but straight in his favorite pastime. Bill loves the sports pages for their golf contents.

When Connolly and McKevitt get together nothing can compare with sports from Cincinnati, Notre Dame and points West. They evinced particular delight in the beatings the George Washington basket ball team took at the hands of Oklahoma, the Aggies, and Indiana, because that went to prove that Eastern basket ball could not compare with the wild West.

Thus, unlike most big cities where the sports editors have a comparably small number of out-of-towners to please, the Washington bosses have to think of thousands of families like the above four, who eagerly await clippings from home.

On the Line

New York, Feb. 19.—Colored prizefighters were handled so atrociously down through the years, and forced into so many fights in which they were "handcuffed," that it is refreshing to see the effect that the one great exception to that rule—Joe Louis—has had on those who are following him.

CONSIDINE

Ray Robinson, for instance. The chances are that if he had been born 20 or more years sooner, under similar circumstances, his hopes of gaining the welterweight title would have been nil. As it happens, he was born in 1922, had little schooling, and had to get out with a shoeshine box on his back when his father suddenly left Harlem.

But he came along at a time in the fight game when the example of Joe Louis' fair and competent treatment had become the enviable yardstick in such matters. He went through the mill of high class amateur boxing, with good doctors, good handlers and fine equipment, and when he emerged into the pro game he had, in Curt Horrmann, a manager who, like Black and Roxborough, was not in the game to bleed a fistic chattel pale.

Robinson has been matched astutely as a pro. He has won all 27 of his fights until now he looms over the modestly innocuous champion of the division, Freddie Cochrane, as Louis once loomed over plodding Jim Braddock when Jim was champion.

Horrmann is a tall, gaunt, moody man who left behind him a life of play-boying a few years ago. His family is wealthy enough to keep him in crepes suzette for life. His interest in Robinson, therefore, is about as close to academic as can be found in managers. He wants the boy to be not only champion, which is just about certain; he wants him to be a champion who will be remembered with the Walkers and Brittons. To achieve that goal, Horrmann pulled himself through a hopeless case of double pneumonia after doctors had despaired of his life. His reward for that lung battle has been the red-hot success of the ring's most dynamic young fighter.

The Manager Is a Right Citizen

Colored fighters of the past—some great ones, too—trained under conditions that would have caused horses to picket. They ate what was tossed to them and had nothing to look forward to except the grind of losing to local and often hopelessly inept favorites, and making it look close.

At Greenwood Lake, N. Y., Horrmann (who boxed his way back to health) held a daily clinic for his fighter, ceaselessly going over his timing, blocking, slipping of punches, different styles of attack and every other facet of polished boxing. In camp were a dietician, a trainer, an assistant trainer, a tutor-secretary, and excellent and expensive sparring partners, one of them a 1938 Golden Gloves champion, another a victor over young Kid McCoy, another a 160-pounder nearly as clever as Maxie Berger, another a lightning-fast 122-pounder—to school Robinson in speed.

The Robinson who steps into the ring tomorrow night against Berger, in a 12-round fight which enriches and gives new life to the great battle against infantile paralysis, will be the polished product of superb handling. In another era he might already be on his way back to his shoeshine box.

The Saga of Koiby Higbe

There used to be a song called "Mamma Goes Where Papa Goes, or Papa Don't Go At All." And though Mrs. Koiby Higbe was only a cunning lass of three or four when it was written, she hasn't forgotten the words.

Papa didn't go to Havana yesterday because Larry MacPhail, the wretch, has nixed the presence of all wives on training trips. Larry's own bizarre slapsticking at Clearwater a couple of years ago may have played some part in this ban. But perhaps not, because several other clubs won't let the players' ever-loving cutie-pies come close to their spring camps.

When Higbe first refused to get into one of the crates that lugged the players to the Pearl of the Antilles it was thought by some that he—like Blimp Phelps—was afraid to travel in a venerable job of

Sam West, Bolton Are Released

Kennedy, Rookie Pitcher, Is Signed; Nats Due to Report Monday at Orlando

Manager Bucky Harris and four pitchers will leave Union Station tomorrow night for Orlando, Fla., where the battery candidates of the Washington Nationals will report Monday in the first day of spring training.

Rookie Hurler William Kennedy, who won eight and lost nine for Charlotte last year, signed his contract yesterday and will be among the group, which includes Sid Hudson, Arnold Anderson and William Zinser, a rookie from Greenville. Richard Hahn, a catcher with Charlotte and Greenville last year, may join the party.

Secretary E. B. Eynon, jr., announced yesterday the unconditional release of Sammy West, the 38-year-old outfielder who served as a fifth gardener and pinch hitter last year. The release was expected, as the names of both West and Cliff Bolton, an occasional pinch hitter and bull pen catcher, were mising from the roster.

West played with Washington from 1927 through 1932, when he was traded with Carl Reynolds and Lloyd Brown to the St. Louis Browns for Goose Goslin, Fred Schulte and Walter Stewart. He came back to Washington in 1939 in a straight player trade for Mel Almada.

West played only 57 games in 1940 and last year warmed the bench for weeks at a time. He enjoyed his best seasons in 1931—when he batted .333 for the Nats—and 1937, when he batted .328 for the Browns.

Lions' Late Spurt Beats Bisons, 2-0

By the Associated Press

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 19.—The Washington Lions downed the Buffalo Bisons, 2-0, tonight in an American Hockey League game before 3682 spectators for their second victory in as many nights.

Polly Drouin, Lion center, broke a scoreless tie with seven minutes remaining when he drilled home George Mantha's rebound. Tiny Thompson, Bison coach, took out Goalie Claude Bourque with 52 seconds left to send six forwards onto the ice. Lou Trudel shot from midice at 19:48, the puck sliding into the unoccupied cage.

The Bisons had a wide edge in the play, outshooting the visitors three-to-one, but Bert Gardiner, in the nets for the Lions, played brilliantly.

Not a penalty was called during the game.

Although Butch Keeling didn't send anyone to the box, he had a few opportunities, notably when Tony Graboski and Chuck Shannon tangled at the boards in the first period, and Murdo McKay playing an encore during the second. Keeling regarded these episodes tolerantly, and the game kept moving at a fast clip.

Bourque's best save of the proceedings came late in the first heat, when he made a southpaw stab of a blazing drive that had "goal" written all over it. Gardner went to his knees at 19:55 to take McKay's blast on his chest.

Up and Over Goes Bethesdan in Scrap With Blair

Terrors Win Handily Over C. U., 48 to 35

Western Maryland ran up a 10-point lead on Catholic University in the first few minutes of their Mason-Dixon Conference game last night in the C. U. gymnasium, and toyed with the Cards from that point, to hang up a 48-to-35 victory.

The Terrors climbed into a tie for fourth place in the conference with six victories and four defeats, and the loss left C. U.'s record at seven-all in the league play. The game was only four points off the pace of the previous game, which Western Won, 50 to 33.

The Terror regulars snapped out of an early 3-to-3 deadlock to take a nine-point lead at the end of 10 minutes of play, with Ed Mogowski doing most of the work. The reserves took over and were in command, 23 to 14, at halftime.

Dick Scanlan, the C. U. scoring ace and high point man in the conference, dropped in two field goals in quick succession at the start of the second half, and Mike Cherello's foul brought it to 23 to 19, but Hoot Gibson entered the game at this point for the Terrors, and put the game out of reach with a personal scoring spree, making it 31 to 21.

Frank Suffern, who tossed in a half-dozen field goals, Mogawski and Gibson scored 41 of the winners' points. Scanlan boosted his average with 13 points, while Mike Cherello, Card captain, played one of his best games and finished with 12 points. Fred Rice was limited to a single foul shot.

Smacko, Famous Ft. Myer Show Horse, Present to Kay

By Anne Hagner

The most surprised man at Camp Lee, Va., this morning will be Lieut. Alvin Kay, young Medical Corps officer who, until he reads this, will not know that he is the new owner of Smacko, one of the finest open jumping horses in the East.

Smacko, until yesterday owned by Maj. Charles B. McClelland, jr., of Fort Myer, is a gift to Lieut. Kay from his mother, Mrs. M. L. Kay, of the District.

Maj. McClelland discovered what he considered as a likely show prospect in the ranks of totally unschooled remount horses four years ago and proceeded to make the gelding into one of the most consistent fencers ever seen locally.

Because he is being transferred to a Southern camp tomorrow, Maj. McClelland had to leave his famous mount behind and Mrs. Kay, knowing the enthusiasm of her horse-minded son, decided to purchase him as a surprise.

Smacko Moved

Smacko moved yesterday from his Fort Myer quarters to North End Stable near Silver Spring, where he will be ridden and shown by Gardner Hallman, well known local horseman. Lieut. Kay, up from Camp Lee about three weekends each month, will take over whenever he has leave from his Army duties and in addition will have his good-looking 4-year-old Lucky Fellow at North End early in the spring.

Smacko, a bay son of McDonno, has been a blue ribbon winner at Madison Square Garden's National Horse Show for the last two years, and during the past season was jumper champion at Warrenton, Va., the Columbus show in Chevy Chase, and Front Royal.

With Lucky Fellow in hunter classes and Smacko in the open division, the Kay colors are expected to be outstanding in local shows this year.

Duke Wins In Tuneup For G.W. Game

Duke protected its unbeaten record in the Southern Conference by handing Wake Forest a 58-51 beating last night in the latter's gym in the Blue Devils' last game before meeting George Washington tomorrow night at Riverside Stadium.

The victory over the Deacons, which clinched a sixth North Carolina State title for Coach Eddie Cameron's boys in the last 14 years, was their twelfth conference victory of the year, against no defeats.

The triumph left Duke's record against all opposition this season at 16 victories against one defeat, as in outside competition they won over Tennessee's Sugar Bowl champions, Rider, Navy, Georgetown of Kentucky and lost to Temple in Philadelphia.

George Washington lost a previous game to the Devils, 38-37, in Durham in a game which the Colonials were well below par, according to Coach Bill Reinhart.

Tomorrow night's battle may set a new college basketball attendance record for the season, according to pregame interest. The Riverside crowds have been well below last season, with the 4000 at the G. W.-Georgetown game the largest thus far.

Blair Beaten By Bethesda; All Is Quiet

Student bodies of Bethesda-Chevy Chase and Montgomery Blair High Schools, whose horseplay caused cancellation of the first basketball meeting of the year between the Montgomery County rivals, kept their promise of peace last night as the teams finally came to grips for the mythical championship.

Bethesda, as anticipated, came out on top in a slow clash at Maryland University's court, handing the Silver Spring five a 46-22 beating. Approximately 2500 enthusiastic fans watched the game, the first in several years which has gone off without student or player fisticuffs.

Blair made a contest of it for one half, largely through a succession of set-up shots the Barons missed, but it fell quickly back as the second half began. Its sophomore lineup was no match for the experienced forces of Bethesda.

Through the efforts of Johnny O'Connor, Blair was on the short end of only a 6-5 count after one quarter. Bob Weir took over the losers' scoring in the second period, but couldn't keep up with the Barons' combination of Carll Jullien, Dick Poerstel and Al Sherline. The eventual winners led, 16-11, at the half.

Then came the deluge. Before the middle of the third quarter the Barons had boosted their edge to 25-13, and at the end it was 34-17. Despite the substitution of a new Bethesda team in the final period, Blair was still outscored, 12-5.

Poerstel, Bethesda's captain, nosed out O'Connor by one point for scoring honor with 11. Harry Phillips, Sherline and Jullien also worked well for the winners. The triumph was Bethesda's twelfth in 19 games, and the loss Blair's tenth in 15 games.

Fenske, Mile Record Holder, Now Teaches Physical Training to U. S. Army Flyers

Sight Deficiency Keeps Chuck From Being a Flyer

By the Associated Press

Randolph Field, Tex., Feb. 19.—Charles (Chuck) Fenske, who made history on the Nation's tracks, can't fly for Uncle Sam but he can do the next best thing—keep the boys who can in top condition.

Fenske has checked in as a member of the physical training staff of the Gulf Coast Air Corps training center at Randolph Field.

He has just gained a couple of physical education degrees that qualify him for the job of helping thousands of Army fledglings build their muscles.

Fenske, who is coholder of the world's indoor mile record with Glenn Cunningham and boasts a flock of other world and national marks, couldn't become an air pilot because of a sight deficiency.

Chuck isn't through with track competition by any means. Right now he's working into shape for the National A. A. U. meet to be held in Dallas in July and other big tests the War Department will permit him to make. He gets in training sessions daily.

Last week Fenske won a silver trophy without taking a single turn around a track.

Chuck was in a bunk at Fort Shelby, Miss., where he was a sergeant in the 135th Medical Regiment, listening to a radio report of the Millrose Games at Madison Square Garden, New York.

Les MacMitchell won the Wanamaker mile but didn't break Fenske's record set in 1940. So the cup automatically became the property of Fenske, since it is awarded every three years to the holder of the best mark.

Brooklyn Pilot Quiet About Higbe

Wyatt and Walker Holdouts; Lippy Studying Pitching Problem Most

By the Associated Press

Havana, Feb. 19.—The Brooklyn Dodgers opened their spring training today and right away Manager Leo Durocher confided in booming words "they're the kind of a ball club I been looking for."

This all-out—if it was—observation came after Durocher demanded:

"Didn't you see the way they got into that one-hour practice? Why, they didn't wait for somebody to tell them to run. They did it themselves. It's guys like that it takes to win.

"They got the kind of spirit that gets them in there scrapping. I'll miss some of the boys, particularly Wasdell. He was that kind of a player, and I'd never traded him if I didn't have to." He was talking about the deal with Pittsburgh that brought Arky Vaughan to the Dodgers.

But he admitted that sometimes the fighting spirit got out of hand. "I'm going to try," he said, "to get Johnny Rizzo to stop storming at the people—to let the public alone. I don't care how much he storms at the players, or me, but the public—that's different."

Interested in Pitchers

Durocher confessed he was going to do a lot of "looking at the pitchers," which brought up the painful matter of the absence of Hurlers Kirby Higbe and Whitlow Wyatt, who are not in camp. It was a ban against players' wives in camp that kept Higbe in Miami.

Wyatt is a holdout, as is also Outfielder Fred (Dixie) Walker. Durocher had "no word" about them.

The Dodgers' scarcity of left-handed pitchers made chances look good for Robert Chipman, 22, a southpaw from the Atlanta club. However, the two newcomers with the best chances of sticking are Eddie Head and Chester Kehn, from the Dodgers' Montreal farm. Durocher said some people thought Head didn't improve much at Montreal, "but the guy won 18 ball games and you can't laugh that off."

C. U. Cancels Ring Matches Next Week

Catholic University's director of athletics, Eddie La Fond, announced last night that his Cardinals have canceled their boxing matches next week with Murray State Teachers, scheduled Monday, in Kentucky, and with Southwestern Louisiana Institute, set for Thursday there.

La Fond reported that a speedup of the engineering course at C. U., in which graduations will be held three weeks earlier because of the war, prompted him to wire both schools, asking cancellation of the matches.

The trip would have taken some of his fighters out of school for ten days, and La Fond thought it unwise as it wouldn't allow his fighters sufficient time to catch up on their studies.

Catholic University has won only one match this season, an intra-city clash with Columbus.

Junior Golden Glove Boys to Be Banqueted

The Junior Golden Glovers will be tendered a banquet Tuesday night at 7:30 at the Eastern Branch of the Boys Club, Seventeenth Street and Massachusetts Avenue Southeast, it was announced by Charlie Reynolds, director of the club, last night.

Maryland Ring Team to Compete In Easterns

The University of Maryland boxers will compete in the Eastern intercollegiate meet to be held at the University of Virginia March 6 and 7.

Jack Faber, acting director of athletics, said the boxers would go to Charlottesville for the intercollegiates in place of the Southern Conference Boxing Tournament, scheduled for the same dates but canceled.

N. Y. Clubs Give 600,000 Passes

New York, Feb. 19 (AP).—New York's three major league baseball clubs will donate approximately 600,000 free tickets to service men during the 1942 season, it was announced tonight by Mrs. Julius Ochs Adler, co-chairman of the New York City defense recreation committee.

A joint statement by Ed Barrow, of the Yankees, Horace Stoneham of the Giants and Larry MacPhail of the Brooklyn Dodgers disclosed that they had designed the defense recreation committee as the sole organization through which passes will be distributed.

The Yanks will give 5000 for each home game, the Giants 3000 daily except Sundays and holidays, and the Dodgers 1500 for each contest except those on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

Grey Wing, $45.70 Shot, Captures Day's Feature at Hialeah

First Fiddle, HeavyChoice, Runs Third

Redthorn Finishes Second; 7731 Fans See Program, Run Over Sloppy Track

By the Associated Press

Hialeah Park, Fla., Feb. 19.—The Sunny South Purse, a mile and a furlong event which attracted Flamingo Stakes hopefuls to the post here today, provided a double upset. Grey Wing, scoring a "wake-up" in the Cedar Farms silks, won by a length and a half to pay $45.70. Mrs. E. Mulrenan's First Fiddle, recently second to American Wolf in the Bahamas Handicap, finished third as the standout favorite. J. J. McIntyre's Redthorn split the long shot and public choice, beating the latter by a head.

The event was decided over a sloppy track and was witnessed by 7731 fans. Most of them thought First Fiddle rated being a $1.25 to $1 shot, knowing that he had raced well in the mud. On the other hand, only a comparative few dared to back Grey Wing. The latter had dull recent form, and in his last outing, after unseating his rider and running away a mile, was pulled up before the race was completed.

All in today's feature except Layaway and Five-o-Eight are named for the rich Flamingo.

Ted Atkinson broke Grey Wing in front and the combination remained in command for the entire journey. The victor held a daylight advantage, as much as three lengths at one time, while First Fiddle did the chasing. Grey Wing won well in hand, making the smart time of 1:50 4-5. Redthorn nipped First Fiddle just as they reached the wire. The others finished many lengths out of it.

Duseks Take 2-Man Rassle Match at Arena

Maurice La Chappelle and Ace Freeman finally lost a two-man team rassle bout. This ain't happened since anybody can remember, and it makes that old "man bites dog" gag fade to a pale pink in news value.

The disaster occurred in the feature spot at Joe Turner's show last night, and it took two of the Dusek clan, Rudy and Emil, to score the upset. The match was a two-out-of-three falls affair, instead of the customary one fall to a finish, and the Duseks took the first fall, dropped the second and then captured the third.

The brawl was built to the 2000 customers' specifications, and included attacks on Referee Casey Berger, bodies hurtled over the ropes and onto the floor, and a mess of real blood from Rudy Dusek's battered beak.

The Duseks started rough, but the smooth team play of La Chappelle and Freeman more than offset their early efforts. In fact, Rudy and Emil hampered themselves when they got into a little brotherly dispute as to who was doing the most work. While this banter was being exchanged, the Toy Bulldogs were energetically batting the daylights out of the Duseks. La Chappelle got a headlock on Emil and rammed him into Rudy's ample middle, causing that gentleman to abruptly seat himself.

Finally, Rudy, the senior member of the brothers Dusek, slipped a cobra clutch on La Chappelle to take the first fall in ten minutes.

La Chappelle and Freeman took the second fall after a torrid five minutes that saw both Duseks tossed into the fans' laps. During this session, one of the spectators, a chubby gent with a cue-ball dome, took a hand by attacking the Duseks from outside the ropes. He took a couple of vain tugs at their legs until they cooled his ardor with a bit of choice speech.

In the semifinal bout, Gino Garibaldi took a dubious decision over Yvon Robert, the big Canadian grappler. This happened after 16 minutes of action, and Yvon was awful mad about the whole thing, feeling that he had been the victim of some international skullduggery.

Cowboy Luttrall defeated Milo Steinborn in 15 minutes with a figure-four headlock, and Frank Judson and Art LeGrand drew in the opener.—OSCAR ELDER.

Weight-Lifters Lift Tomorrow

A meet under auspices of the A. A. U. weight-lifting committee will be staged at the Dulin Gym, 1206 Twenty-third Street Northwest, tomorrow night. The public is invited free of charge.

Featured will be Keith Kallio, 1941 heavyweight champion, and Bob Stange, "Mr. Washington." John Dulin, of the A. A. U., announced that the meet is primarily being staged to stimulate interest in the sport. Because of many boys going into the services, there is a shortage of talent now.

There will be three Olympic lifts and added exhibitions in deadweight lifting.

Selection at Hialeah

Dear Al:

Instead of writing about Guy Fawkes being stabled at a riding academy I should have picked the horse. The New Orleans invader stepped his best yesterday at the first asking. Looks as if Preston Burch, the Washington owner-trainer, has given up on the 3-year-old filly, Horn, which I have been touting. Horn is one of some 25 horses to be auctioned today in the Hialeah paddock. Tragic Ending, a stake winner, will be another to go under the hammer. The Brookmeade Stable, owned by Mrs. Dodge Sloane, shipped in three juveniles from Columbia, S. C., and we may hear from them. Their names are Pomayya, Very Snooty and Royal Army. Every time I say a horse was named after Art Brown the plug seems to improve rapidly. For instance, American Wolf now is rated a bright prospect for the $25,000 Flamingo Stakes. Then again, Big Talk stepped home a winner the first time I mentioned the WOL windbag along with him. The racing writers are giving a testimonial dinner for Joseph E. Widener at the Royal Palm Club next Tuesday. The tax is ten bucks a plate with the Red Cross and other war funds taking the profits. Hialeah's long meeting was two-thirds completed with the running of yesterday's program. Warren Mehrtens, the crack young rider who is staging a merry battle with Basil James for the jockey championship at this track, loses his 5 pounds apprentice allowance at the end of tomorrow's program, but appears ready to carry on as a journeyman saddle artist. Matt J. Daiger, secretary and general manager of Pimlico, has been visiting in Florida. Among the horses working briskly hereabouts are Dispose, winner of last year's Bahamas and Flamingo, and Chiquita Mia, Charlie Howard's good filly. How many days until Bowie? BILL.

First race—BLACK GRIP appears best of the juveniles gathered for the day's opening dash. Alfred Robertson will do the booting and I'm going to string along. FLYING JOHN is a good-looker and may be close. BUT OF NEWS for the show end.

Second race—MUSKRAT could be the right one in this rather open event for 3-year-olds. KEEKEE has shown little of late but loves the track and could awaken. ALL WHIMS for the minor money.

Third race—CHARITABLE gets my call in this sprint and needs only the right handling. GREY WOLF and JUSTICE M. are ready for the best and probably will fill out the money bracket.

Fourth race—PICTOR has come to form in good style and figures to whip these. The Howard entry of PORTER'S CAP and MIOLAND are name horses but may be in need of racing at this stage. SIR MARLBORO set a turf course mark last out.

Fifth race — POMIVA probably will have a drying-out track today and that will enhance the chances of this one. DOUBT NOT has speed and is a threat. KANSAS CITY for the minor money.

Sixth race—BRENNER PASS is tossed in this with a light assignment and should do a lot of running. I'm going to string along. FIRST LORD was a recent winner and is dangerous. ETERNAL PEACE for the show.

Seventh race—ANONYMOUS finds conditions that suit in this distance event and I see no reason for mistakes. JOHN HUNNICUTT and MICHIGAN SUN to complete the money picture.

Eighth race—DISSEMBLER may surprise in the day's finale. Meets only fair routers and I'm going to be there if this one gets home. VEILED PROPHET and DANCING LIGHT for the place and show.

Best bet—POMIVA.

LichtmanBears Face 3 Foes On Weekend

The Lichtman Washington Bears, local colored pro quintet, are set to prove themselves "iron men" over this weekend, with a schedule that would make a Spartan quake. With 13 consecutive wins behind them the locals are out to run 3 more victories in double time.

Saturday night they meet the Conoco Oilers (formerly the Pittsburgh Pirates) in Hagerstown, followed Sunday by a battle on their home court, starting again at 3:30 in the afternoon, with the same Smoky City outfit. Sunday night they hop to Baltimore, where they clash with the Baltimore "Mets."

Advance sales indicate the Oilers will draw a capacity at Turner's Arena, the Pittsburgh cagers listing a strong line-up this year comprising Moe Becker, Walt Miller and other Duquesne University court aces. The past four games have packed the hall for the locals, the World Pro champion Detroit Eagles game last week breaking this season's basketball attendance records with over 2000 passing the turnstiles.

Porter's Cap, Mioland and Pictor Clash

By the Associated Press

Miami, Fla., Feb. 19.—Three thoroughbreds with total winnings of more than $400,000—Mioland, Porter's Cap and Pictor—and two other horses will match strides at Hialeah Park tomorrow with the winner's share of a $1500 purse as the immediate goal.

C. B. Howard's Mioland and Porter's Cap and W. L. Brann's Pictor were entered in the 1⅛ miles Opa Locka Purse as part of their training program for the $50,000 Widener March 7. Howard and Brann, however, will be far more interested in seeing whether their stars are rounding into form than in the relatively minor purse involved.

Sir Marlboro, which won the $5000 Miami Beach Handicap on the turf and later equaled the 1 1-16 miles grass record of 1:44 2-5, and City Talk will complete the five-horse field.

It will be the Hialeah debut for Mioland and Porter's Cap, which like Pictor were brought here from California when tracks there closed because of the war.

Pictor has run once here, finishing second to Cape Cod in the Abraham Lincoln Purse February 12.

Mioland has won $224,450, Porter's Cap $105,705, and Pictor, $82,585.

Mioland will carry the top impost of 124 pounds, two more than Porter's Cap and four more than Pictor. Sir Marlboro was assigned 112 pounds and City Talk 103.

Ranger in Hospital

In the past few days, we've heard many favorable comments among the fishing fraternity regarding Maryland's State Game and Fish Commission's wholesale action in changing laws governing fresh water fishing in Maryland.

Among these anglers are many hunters and dog lovers, who are also pleased to learn of the Commission's inclination to ease-up on the granting of permits to hold field trials over liberated pen-raised birds after April 1 which was set as a deadline.

The setting aside of a section of Beaver Creek, and the Savage River, for fly-fishing only, along with the reduced creel limit, holds many interesting posibilities. Also the changing of the phraseology of an old regulation that never had any right to be in the book. This old regulation was impossible to enforce, without a warden actually removing your trout or bass from the hook, returning them to the water and keeping an actual count. The new law only requires the angler to count the fish in his creel, as take or creel limit.

The average angler of today is learning how to remove a fish from the hook, without harming it, to ensure it's safety when returned to the waters. Further, the day of the big creel is over, in fact many do not carry a creel, satisfied with one or two good fish to take home.

The cooperation given to authorities of both State and Federal Governments by the average angler is fairly good, and constantly improving. Sportsmen like many other groups, kick, gripe and write a lot when some regulation or law does not suit them, regarding their favorite sport—which is as it should be. However, when something is done in their favor, they are more apt just to set back and glow with that very smug feeling of self satisfaction.

The Maryland State Game and Fish Commission is to be commended for its wise action, and should receive the whole-hearted public support they deserve.

Fish suffer little if any pain when they are hooked, according to scientists, because there are very few nerves about the jaw which could cause that sensation.

Some trout have been known to be hooked two or three times in the same day, the fisherman using the same type of bait. Fish, no doubt, have a sensation of discomfort, but not as great as that of the higher animals.

For the first time in the past eight months, water is running over the spillway of the reservoir on upper Fishing Creek. Rains of the past week raised the water from an estimated 15 million gallons to its capacity of 77 million. It is said that with the opening of the fishing season that this reservoir may be closed to all fishing. In the past fishing was only permitted at the head of the reservoir near the inlet.

Attendants at the Maine Fish and Game exhibit at the Boston Sportsmen's Show report that visitors are evincing a lively interest in the approaching fishing season in Maine. If conditions continue as they are, however, it will be quite an early season this year. The ice is not nearly as thick now as it was this time last year.

For the past few years the opening has been "April Fool's" day so far as fishing went because the lakes have not cleared of ice until then. Maine's fishing season opens when the ice is out whatever time that may be.

A new pond of something over 12 acres has been discovered in Maine. This body of water, not indicated on any existing map, was found by two wardens making a game survey deep in township five, range four, in the wilderness of Baxter State Park, Mount Katahdin region.

The men said this pond is "alive" with large native trout that never have seen an angler. However the isolated position of the pond and the difficulty to be encountered in reaching it will stave off any rush in its direction.

Maryland's first and only State Forester, Fred W. Besley, will retire from his post on March 1. A testimonial dinner in his honor, will be held at the Southern Hotel, Saturday night at 6:30. This dinner will be under the auspices of the Maryland State Game and Protective Association.

Fred, a native of Falls Church Virginia, in point of service is one of Maryland's oldest State employes and he is dean of American Foresters. As State Forester he has developed Maryland's forests and parks virtually from nothing to a department now controlling thousands of acres of forests, woodland tracts and parks.

He holds an honorary degree of doctor of science from University of Maryland, where he conducts a course in forestry. He will continue the course until June.

Lou Ambers Enlists In Coast Guard

New York, Feb. 19. (AP).—Luigi d'Ambrosia—Lou Ambers, of the fight game—enlisted in the United States Coast Guard today and was given a rating of boatswain's mate, first class, because of special qualifications.

It was said the former world lightweight champion would go through routine training in seamanship and then probably would be made one of the Coast Guard physical training directors.

Lou is married and has two children. He is 28.

Paul Courteau Back, Eagles Face Olympics

"Punch 'Em Paul" Courteau, flying center of the Washington Eagles, returns to the line-up of the champions under probation tonight when they engage the Boston Olympics in an Eastern Hockey League game at Riverside Stadium, 8:30 o'clock.

At a meeting of Eastern Hockey League officials in conjunction with Owner S. G. Leoffler, sr., and Coach Redvers Mackenzie of the Eagles yesterday, Courteau was placed under a $50 peace bond and barred from future participation against Atlantic City for the remainder of the season as the result of a one-man blitzkrieg staged by the Flying Frenchman at Atlantic City last weekend.

Referee Jack Watt, who sentenced Courteau to a misconduct and match penalty, accompanied President Tom Lockhart and Secretary-Treasurer Phil Thompson here to testify in the Courteau incident.

Eagles Post Fine

For a time it appeared that the fiery Courteau might be suspended for the season, but matters were satisfactorily arranged after the Flying Frenchman had been severely reprimanded by Lockhart, and the Eagles agreed to post a $50 fine which automatically will be forfeited to the Eastern League if "Punch 'Em Paul" causes further trouble.

The trouble started last Saturday night after Courteau had warred with Referee Watt and, in protest of a penalty called against him, emptied a long line of paper cups containing water into the laps of Atlantic City players with a swing of his stick, which accidentally struck an employe of the auditorium on the bridge of his nose, removing his glasses. When an auditorium official attempted to quiet Courteau, it was claimed, the fiery Frenchman responded with a shove or a punch.

Set for Olympics

Although Courteau promised to be good for the remainder of the season when an armistice was effected, he added—with a show of characteristic spirit—that he will be all out to defeat the Olympics at Riverside tonight.

Although Baltimore has been automatically eliminated from the United States championship playoffs next month and Washington is virtually assured of a guaranteed spot, the Orioles currently are but three points removed from the fourth-place Washington Eagles, and the Eagles are more than anxious to turn back the revised Olympics tonight and gain a clean-cut hold on fourth place.

The Bostonians, who lost four of their key men when raided by their parent club, the Boston Bruins, recently, will be strengthened in the nets tonight following the return to action of Goalie Vic Volich, who recently appeared before his draft board in Hibbing, Minn.

Open Meeting Tonight for Va. Sportsmen

A public meeting to discuss legislation vital to the interest of Virginia sportsmen will be held tonight at the Masonic Hall, Cherrydale, Va., starting at 8 o'clock. The open gathering is being sponsored by the Arlington-Fairfax Chapter of the Izaak Walton League of America.

Gov. Colgate Darden has delayed further action on a bill that calls for changes in the present set-up governing fishing in the State after meeting with sportsmen groups. The bill has passed the House and the Governor has agreed to hold it up until February 25. The legislation calls for a five-man commission to succeed the unwieldy present ruling body. An amendment has been proposed to appoint a one-man commission with full administration powers. At tonight's meeting, sportsmen will be given opportunity to air their views and desires.

Western and Roosevelt Favored in Playoffs Tonight

Victors Play Tomorrow in Titular Fray

Raiders vs. Central; Riders vs. Wilson; Tech Gym Scene Of Series Finales

After one of the most breath-taking series in history, the 1941-42 public high school basketball goes into its final, critical stage tonight when Western-Central and Wilson-Roosevelt games mark the opening of the championship playoff at Tech gym, the first game at 7:30.

Tonight's battling will decide the opponents for tomorrow night's title game at the same site, and thus all four clubs will go all-out for victory. The favorites by a hairsbreadth will be Western and Roosevelt, the latter largely because it has won the last two interhigh crowns.

Of the four school's represented in tonight's hostilities, Central is the only dark horse. With only one letterman, Teddy Thomaides, the Vikings roared through the series with four victories and three defeats, replacing Eastern in the crucial round of four.

Completing the Central lineup as it seeks to upset Western's torrid five will be Capt. Hank Lawler and Johnny Gibbons, guards; Bob Hill at center, and either Bill Kelly or Jimmy Mess at the other forward. The Raiders will depend on a two-letterman five consisting of Jimmy Karas and Don Cross, guards; Swanson Moore, center, and Charley Stephanson and Bernie Gittleson, forwards.

Wilson Experienced

Wilson, the youngest school in the playoff, moves up against the veteran forces of Roosevelt with an equally experienced team composed of Capt. Freddy Vinson and John Coffey, forwards; Don Hillock, center, and Buddy Lemerise and Stan Patton, guards. Additional hope was given the Tigers yesterday when Billy Jawish, the scrappy guard who seriously injured his knee two weeks ago, turned up for practice for the first time. Coach Tony Kupka may use him if necessary, though very briefly.

Roosevelt will depend on this lineup for its third title in a row: Charley Howard, center; Tom Robertson and Dick Koester, guards, and Frank Redinger and either Bunny Citrenbaum or Sam DeShazo, forwards.

TODAY'S SCHEDULE

Western vs. Central, at Tech, 7:30.
Roosevelt vs. Wilson, at Tech, 8:30.
Landon at Georgetown Prep, 3:30.
Hyattsville at Mount Rainier, 3:30.
St. Alban's at St. Paul (Baltimore).
Maryland Park at Woodward, 3:15.
Washington-Lee at Petersburg (Va.).
G. W. High at J. Marshall (Richmond).
Fairfax at Fredericksburg (Va.).

Detroit Routs Black Hawks By 6-1 Score

By the United Press

Detroit, Feb. 19.—Doing all their scoring in the last two periods, the Detroit Red Wings tonight routed the Chicago Black Hawks, 6 to 1, in a National Hockey League game before 6026 fans at Olympia Rink.

The teams battled on even terms during a fast opening period, but Detroit stepped out with three quick goals to take a second period lead. The Wings scored first when Don Grosso batted in a rebound after Sid Abel's shot bounced off Goalie Sam Lo Presti's stick. Eddie Wares got an assist on the goal.

Bruins Bow, 6 to 4

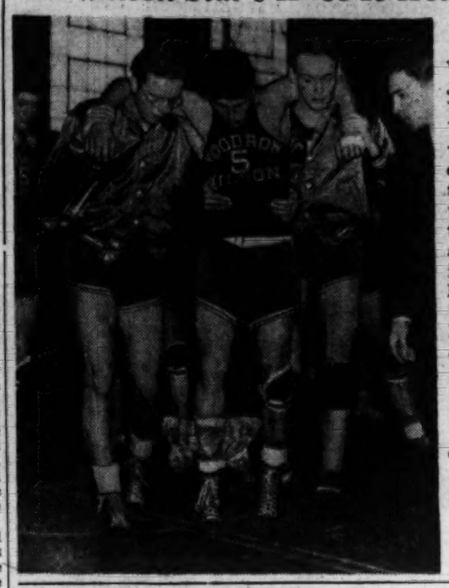
New York, Feb. 19 (AP).—The wobbling Boston Bruins, still fitting new cogs into their damaged machine, tonight failed three times to hold a lead and finally were beaten, 6-4, in a National Hockey League game by the Brooklyn Americans on three third-period goals.

Cathedral Girls Beat Holy Cross in 2 Games

The National Cathedral School for Girls captured a double basketball victory yesterday as one Cathedral team turned back the Holy Cross Acedamy Whites, 29-16, on the losers' floor and another team defeated the Holy Cross Purples, 39-21, on the Cathedral court.

In the game at Holy Cross, Barbara Cooke tallied 10 points for Cathedral. In the other clash Miss Eksila totaled 14 points for the winners. Frances Engler led the losers with 13 points.

Wilson Star's Knee Is Healed



When Billy Jawish, Woodrow Wilson forward, was carried from the floor by teammates two weeks ago his team's interhigh title hopes faded. Yesterday, however, Jawish rejoined the club and may see action in tonight's opening of the championship play-off at Tech

Cuban Contract Is Written In Spanish—MacPhail Pays

Brooklyn Boss Forced to Have Pact Translated With Cost of $8.50

By Judson Bailey
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, Feb. 19.—The Dodgers are in Cuba, but some stories about them have straggled behind, like these. . . . All communication from Cuban officials concerning the training plans came in Spanish and Larry MacPhail had to pay $8.50 to have the government's contract translated before he would sign it. . . . For a couple of weeks before he left town MacPhail made the rounds of New York antique shops buying early American furniture for his Maryland farm. . . . Secretary John McDonald said the Dodgers wouldn't go hungry in Havana this year because they would have (Assistant Secretary Babe) Hamberger and (Catcher Herman) Franks with them. . . . Peewee Reese and Pete Reiser, the Dodger chums, came to town early to be ready to head South with the Brooklyn contingent this week, then changed their minds and flew back to their Midwestern homes to see their gals once more.

Although Mel Ott gave up his plans for installing the "honor system" on the New York Giants, Manager Hans Lobert has announced that he will have it in effect for the Phils, simply asking voluntary compliance with training rules. . . . Manager Jim Dykes and Coach Bing Miller, of the White Sox, who used to holler bloody murder at each other when Bing was a coach for the Detroit Tigers, should make Comiskey Park the noisiest in the big leagues now that they are on the same team. . . . The world champion New York Yankees always issue one of the most modest spring training rosters in baseball, making no mention of records or other achievemets such as other clubs list.

The action of Connie Mack's sons in firing Al Horwits one day after Connie had hired him as publicity director of the Philadelphia Athletics exposed the secret that the 77-year-old president and manager of the A's has turned over every share of his stock in the club to the "boys:" . . . The Pacific Coast League has raised the service charge on tickets for service men a nickel to 30 cents, including tax, principally because the ball park at San Diego seats only 10,000 persons and there are many times that number of soldiers and sailors in the vicinity.

D. & H. Courtmen Rout Pepco, 42-13

Delaware & Hudson's stellar cagers hung up the most decisive victory in the D. C. Recreation League last night, grinding Pepco's five under a 42-13 count in the feature at Eastern gym. The winners were paced by John Lumpkin and Bob Custer, each of whom tallied 12 points.

Other games at the same site went to Postoffice Department, 43-17, over Maryland Sport Club, and to City Postoffice by 24-15 over Boyles.

At Roosevelt the Bureau of Aeronautics five doubled the count on the Aggies, 40-20; Bellman Heating smashed Q. M. G., 49-27, and the Sons of Pericles tripped Capital Transit, 30-27. Results at Central favored Air Corps, 31-25, over Raleigh; Calvary Methodist, 24-13, over War Department, and AGO, 40-16, over Air Corps.

Guggino Due To Drill Here For Wright

Carl (Red) Guggino, veteran lightweight boxer, who again meets Oscar Wright, local colored fighter, Monday night at Turner's Arena, is scheduled to work out here tomorrow in preparation for the ten-round bout.

Guggino, who suffered three straight knockouts before gaining an eight-round decision over Wright a few weeks ago, defeated Joey Peralto, conqueror of Featherweight Champion Chalky Wright, last Friday in Miami.

The veteran lightweight now that he's back into winning ways, is aiming for a shot against Bob Montgomery, clever Philadelphian.

Wright, who needed a fight under his belt when he was decisioned by Guggino, figures to give Red a better scrap Monday. He's been holding daily drills at the Twelfth Street Y. M. C. A., and Manager Charlie Harris is looking forward to an upset victory.

The following supporting card will prevail: Jabo Kenner vs. Sam Slatko, heavyweights, 10 rounds; Gus Mirman vs. Powerhouse Johnson, heavyweights, 4 rounds; Pete Latzo vs. Eddie Kane, 4 rounds, and Roscoe Perry vs. Sammy Daniels, featherweights, 6 rounds.

Villar and Walker Meet in Baltimore

Claudio Villar, colorful Spanish heavyweight fighter, faces Buddy Walker, of Columbus, Ohio, Monday night in a 10-rounder in Baltimore. The match marks the first for Villar since his excellent, but losing stand to Bob Pastor here last month.

The winner of the Villar-Walker match will meet Red Burman, probably two weeks hence. Burman last week decisioned Johnny Skor, a fellow Baltimorean.

Whirlaway to Open Campaign at Pimlico

Santa Anita, Calif., Feb. 19 (INS).—Whirlaway, sidetracked from winter racing by the war, will be ready for new track triumphs in the spring, Ben Jones, his trainer, said tonight.

Left idle by the wartime order that closed Santa Anita, the top horse of 1941 has shown fine form in regular early morning workouts. Jones said Whirly will start his spring campaign at Pimlico.

Anacostia High Hands St. John's 30-27 Defeat

St. John's High suffered its most stinging defeat of the season yesterday when Anacostia, winner of only three of its 14 previous starts, grabbed a 30-27 triumph in a rough encounter at the Johnnie gym.

The Indians were ahead all the way except for a few seconds in the final period when St. John's held a 26-25 edge. A 15-3 margin was boasted by the invaders after one period, they still held a slim 18-15 advantage at halftime, and going into the final session their lead was 25-20.

In losing their seventh decision in 19 games the Johnnies sorely missed the height and scoring of George Hughes, their husky forward who is ill. Chuck Dudley, another star, was unable to score a field goal, though he registered six points from the foul line.

High scoring honors went to Paul Benner, Anacostia's clever forward who amassed 13 points as well as leading the winner's floor game.

St. Vincent, N. C. in Games Here Tonight

North Carolina will be favored to insure a bid to the Southern Conference Championships tonight when the White Phantoms meet Maryland at College Park at 8 o'clock in the feature of two home and two away games for the District college basketball teams.

The Tarheels have won seven and lost four in the conference to date and will clinch a berth in the Raleigh play-offs if they beat the Terps. The visitors move to Annapolis Saturday to meet Navy.

The Terps have won 2 and lost 6 in the conference and have lost 13 for the season. They stand only an outside chance of upsetting the favored Tarheels.

Columbus Plays

The other home game of the night will find Columbus host to the little-known St. Vincent Club, of Latrobe, Pa., at Eastern High at 8:15 o'clock. The Explorers will be after their fifth victory in a row. Columbus leaves immediately after the game for Huntington, W. Va., where they meet Marshall College tomorrow night.

St. Vincent beat out St. Mary's, 46-33, last night in Emmitsburg.

Georgetown will be off on another brief trip with the first stopover at Scranton, Pa., tonight where the Hoyas meet the Scranton club and then move to New Haven tomorrow night to meet Yale.

Scranton probably is the best small-town college basketball stronghold in the State and the coal miners usually come up with good ball clubs. This year they have been traveling at a little better than .500 pace and will be out to stop Georgetown's bid for its eighth victory in 16 games.

Eagles Travel

American University will take its four-game winning streak and a bid for a top berth in the Mason Dixon Conference to Ashland, Va., tonight where the Cassellmen meet Randolph Macon in a league test. The Tigers and Eagles are tied for second place wtih four victories and two defeats each. A. U. beat them, 56-48, up here but on the Ashland floor Randolph Macon will be at least an even choice.

Zunic to Aid 'Y' at Court Celebration

Several interesting sidelights to today's Woodward Prep-Maryland Park cage clash which will be a portion of the Y. M. C. A.'s celebration of the Golden Jubilee of basketball were announced yesterday.

One feature will be the appearance of Matt Zunic, George Washington U. captain and high scorer. He will toss out the first ball and officiate at the presentation of gold balls to the competing teams. At halftime an abbreviated game between the "Y" seniors and faculty members will simulate the brand of ball played when the sport was originated by Dr. James Naismith 50 years ago.

The program will start at 3:15 at the "Y" boys' gym.

The fifth annual Y. M. C. A. Gymnastic Show starts tonight at 8 o'clock in the "Y" gym, 1736 G Street Northwest. The two-hour show will be followed by two hours of public dancing, music being furnished by "The Bostonians."

Feature attractions will include elementary and advanced gymnatics, marching, dancing, comedy, music, rope skipping and twirling, and a variety of other entertainment.

The program is under the direction of W. E. Hutzell, associate physical director at the Y. M. C. A., who is assisted by Frank Scanlin, chairman of the Gym Night committee, and a group of subcommittee chairmen, including Joe Maxey, properties; Janet Mattie and Pearl Benn, programs; Anna Altschul, costumes; Ernest Gaither, lights, and Bob Sterne, grand entry and finale.

17 Novice Bouts On A.A.U. Card Here Tonight

Seventeen novice bouts will usher in the thirteenth annual District A. A. U. boxing tournament, oldest fistic fixture on the city's sports calendar, tonight at Turner's Arena and if pre-tourney dope stands up it will be a hot beginning. The first bout is scheduled for 8 o'clock.

Meanwhile, the decision to extend the limit for registration in the senior division until next Wednesday has been greeted with the unanimous approval of all club coaches. Al Farrell, Police Boys Club coach, last night, sent in the entry of Charley Maimone, 160-pound Golden Gloves champion, and intimated that more will be forthcoming.

Charley's chief complaint heretofore has been the lack of competition, but he's stepping into a hotbed of trouble this time, what with eight topnotch scrappers aiming for the title. Maimone moved up into the light heavyweight ranks last winter to keep busy and got in over his head, bowing to Jackie Cranford in the final round.

A finalist in the 160-pound class last year was Nick Latsios, who lost to Lou Bass, and who is dropping back to his normal weight of 147 pounds this time. Nick was Golden Gloves champion last year and lost a hairline duke to Reds Vernon in the title round of the 1942 tourna ment. He wants a return shot at Reds, but Vernon's entry has not yet been filed.

Wesley Bowls 437 Set; Cab Team Scores

Big Elmer Wesley southpawed his way to top position in the Brookland Merchants meet last night when he chalked up a 159 single and record 437 set to pave the way for his Diamond Cab boys to win a pair over Pioneer Laundry. Hal Nicholas led an odd-game win for Yuengling's Beer over Dougherty's Auction with near-highs of 157-400. University Delicatessen and De Perini tied for high set with 1736 each, with the former winning additional honors with top game of 611. DePerini won three from Brookland Hardware while Washington Oil Burner was staying in first place by a double victory over Hite's Shell.

SILVER SPRING

Hazel Swett was the heroine of the Silver Spring Ladies' League last night, coming through with a splendid game of 165 that chalked up a new season record for the loop. Following it was a 385 set, Mrs. Swett helped her Seven-Up team to highs of 541 and a record team set of 1547 and two games from Silver Beauty Salon as well.

TAKOMA

Jack Rabbitt, Cornhuskers team in the Louis Memorial Church League at Takoma, celebrated the return from his honeymoon by leading the loop with a 146 single and 400 set that also sparked his mates to team highs of 564-1596.

Hockey Between Army and R.M.C. To Be Renewed

By the Associated Press

Kingston, Ontario, Feb. 19.—Suspended for two years because of the war, the annual hockey matches between the Royal Military College and West Point will be renewed March 7 when the Canadian cadets visit the United States Military Academy.

The teams met annually for 17 years before West Point scored its first victory. That was the last time they met, 1939. The approaching game will be the last until after the war because the cadet courses at R. M. C. have been suspended for the duration and the college will be devoted to advanced training of Canadian officers.

Flester Reelected Industrial Head

For the fourteenth year in succession, E. W. (Bill) Flester, local sportsgoods salesman, was elected president of The Washington Post-Industrial Baseball League for the coming season at the circuit's organization meeting last night.

Tom O'Donnell will again act as vice president and Charlie Burg will take over the secretary post of R. Gradzansky.

Six teams will again compete in the city's toughest weekday league, the only change in the lineup being Village Motors' replacement of Reliance Insurance. Other competitors are the champion Heurich Brewers, Cameo Furniture, O'Donnell Sea Grill, H. & J. Construction and Little Tavern.

League play will start May 2, it was decided, with all teams seeing action on the Ellipse.

Bogart, D. C. Golf Champ, Joins Navy

RALPH BOGART

District Amateur Golf Champion Ralph Bogart will be storekeeper, second class, in the United States Navy sometime today. The 21-year-old youngster, son of Commander I. C. Bogart, will leave at 8 o'clock this morning for Norfolk to begin a six-weeks training course, after which he will be sent outside of the United States for duty.

The husky youngster equalled District golf history last fall when he won the city championship for the third consecutive time at Kenwood. He also won the Chevy Chase Invitation last spring and the Congressional Club Invitation.

Raymond Willett, the District assistant pro golf champion who has worked under Gene Larkin at Woodmont for five years, faces an early call in the draft and expects to leave long before the season's opening.

Virgil Worsham, who enlisted in the Navy two years ago after winning the assistant pro title and is now first class seaman, returned home yesterday for a 13-day furlough while his ship is up for repairs.

G. U. Prep Midgets Defeat Landon

Georgetown Prep's Midget cagers rallied in the second half yesterday to lick the Landon Midgets, 24 to 14, on the Garrett Park court.

Led by Jim Guyer, who scored 12 points, the winners held Landon to 4 points in the second half as they wiped away the visitors' 10-8 halftime advantage and won going away.

Ray Robinson Boxes Berger In Benefit

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 19.—The infantile paralysis fund and Ray Robinson figure to have a winning evening in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night at the expense of Maxie Berger.

The skinny Harlem Hammer and Canada's top thumper collide in a 12-ronuder at 10 p. m. (E. W. T.), for which Promoter Mike Jacobs expects some 10,000 customers to contribute close to $30,000. The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis will benefit by a percentage slice "off the top."

Riding along on a 27-fight winning streak since he turned professional a couple of years ago, Robinson is 1 to 5 in the betting. Berger has been one of the more consistent performers among the welterweights for the last year and a half, but at this writing Roundhouse Ray is rated the No. 1 contender for Champion Red Cochrane's crown.

In fact, most of the betting going on centers around Berger's chances o' going the route. Robinson has flattened 20 of the 27 pros he has faced. The last fellow for whom he made the birdies sing was Fritzie Zivic, which is quite a trick. The problem now is whether he can do the same for the fast, veteran from Montreal who has had nearly 100 fights.

Back of the main go is an eight-rounder which has Sammy Secreet, well-regarded Pittsburgh welterweight, taking on Norman Rubio, of Albany, N. Y., in his Garden debut.

Coast Fisherman Hauls 4½-Ton Bonita Shark

By the Associated Press

San Pedro, Calif., Feb. 19.—There was a 9000-pound reason why Fisherman John Midovich's net wouldn't budge when he tried to haul it in.

Midovich, skipper of the fishing boat Zora, tugged and pulled but he had to wait until a purse seine boat with a heavy winch gear aboard came by to help.

Inside the net was a 4½-ton bonita shark, said to be one of the largest, if not the largest, ever landed at a California port.

Midovich's gill net was wrecked, but sale of the valuable shark liver should more than recoup the loss.

Eagles' Courteau Is Warned by Hockey League President

President Tom Lockhart, of the Eastern Amateur Hockey League, is shown above as he talked with Paul Courteau, the bad boy of the local Eagles. Courteau was reprimanded for his recent misconduct in an Atlantic City game. The suspended Courteau returns to the Eagles' line-up tonight when his team meets the Olympics at Riverside Stadium

Retailers Map Self-Policing Price Control

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 19.—The National Retail Dry Goods Association and ten other retail groups have submitted a voluntary retail price control plan to Government agencies along with an alternative program for applying legal control if necessary, it was announced today.

The voluntary method for control of prices in the 1,700,000 retail establishments of the country was worked out in the hope of avoiding "the difficulties inherent in Government control," the announcement said, pointing out the cost of store operation varies widely and it would be difficult to adopt any system of Government control under which prices or margins, either in dollars or percentages, "could be flatly fixed or frozen for all stores on a particular item of merchandise."

Oppose "Over-All"

In event legal control should become necessary, the association and its allied groups recommended no "over-all price ceilings" at the retail level but rather the establishment of prices on individual items arrived at after consideration has been given to all the circumstances affecting them.

Outlining methods to make the plan work, the association said:

"When in the judgment of the price administrator it may be necessary to fix ceiling for retail prices on certain selected items, it is proposed that the following steps should be taken:

"(1) The price at which each individual store may be selling such selected items should be fixed as a ceiling as of a stipulated period;

"(2) Where increases in the cost of merchandise to retailers have been made during the retailer's period of price lag, the retailer should be permitted to increase his price at retail by the addition of the same percentage of increase which has occurred in the retailer's new merchandise cost;

Emergency Action

"(3) In the case of an unanticipated emergency in connection with any merchandise item, where the price administrator finds it necessary immediately to place a ceiling on the prices at all levels, the ceiling order should require the fixing of the retailer's merchandise cost as of a prior date sufficiently early to allow for the customary lag between the retailer's purchase price and his selling price, or make compensatory adjustments in the retail price as provided in above section 2."

Under the plan the association pointed out, if some unforseen major economic change should occur, such as accelerated inflation, the retailer would be compelled to ask the price administrator to adjust all price ceilings to new conditions.

The program, originally drafted by the war service committee of the N. R. D. G. A., has been approved by representatives of 11 retail groups.

Engineering Awards Again Top 100 Million

New York, Feb. 19 (AP).—Engineering construction awards this week exceeded the 100 million dollar mark for the fifth consecutive week, Engineering News-Record reported today. The total for the short week which included the Lincoln's Birthday holiday, was $102,218,000, compared with $104,893,000 the previous week.

Private construction contracts rose sharply, but public work declined enough to offset this gain.

A.T.&T. Net Drops to $10.26 a Share in Year; Taxes Rise 44% to $15 a Share in Same Period

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 19.—The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and its subsidiaries included in the Bell System reported today for 1941 net income of $191,770,694, compared with $210,497,453 in 1940.

MR. GIFFORD

These earnings were equal to $10.26 a share on the capital stock, against $11.26 in 1940.

For the parent company alone net income was $186,974,735, equal to $10.01 a share, against $188,544,032, or $10.08 in 1940.

The drop of roughly $18,750,000 in net income was accounted for principally by a huge increase in the company's total tax bill in 1941.

Total taxes of the Bell System companies, including Western Electric and Bell Telephone Laboratories, for 1941 were $285,493,000, a jump of $88,279,000, or 44 per cent over 1940. This tax bill was equal to nearly $15 a share on the stock, or $4.60 a share more than in 1940.

Bell System operating revenues in 1941 amounted to $1,298,689,000, an increase of $124,367,000 over 1940. Operating expenses before taxes increased $69,961,000, or 9.1 per cent. Net operating revenues before taxes increased $54,405,000 over 1940.

Walter S. Gifford, president, said the company and its associates in 1941 performed a task never before equalled and did it "with credit to all concerned."

Here are some of the statistics contained in his report:

About 1,360,000 telephones were added to service in the year, 409,000 more than ever before in one year.

The average number of telephone conversations per day was 84,692,000, a record high and 5,389,000 per day more than in 1940.

There were a number of "unpredictable surges" in traffic, notably after the attack by the Japanese at Pearl Harbor when calls on some routes jumped to five times normal and persisted at such levels for several days.

The number of employes in the system, including Western Electric and Bell Laboratories, increased 57,600 in 1941 to a total of 379,000 at the end of the year. Of this number, 20,700 were operators, the most ever taken on in a single year.

At the end of 1941 there were 23,450,000 telephones in use in the United States, of which Bell System telephones numbered 18,841,000.

Expenditures for new construction in 1941 totaled $420,000,000, against $290,000,000 in 1940.

More than one million miles of long distance circuits were added in 1941, twice as many as in 1940.

The average telephone was in working order more than 99.98 per cent of the time in 1941.

More than 100,000 employes are on duty during some part of the hours between 6 p. m. and 7 a. m., when most persons normally are at leisure or asleep. More than 50,000 work on holidays and Sundays.

Overseas telephones traffic continued to grow in 1941 despite the decline in messages to Europe. Since the outbreak of war circuits to Berlin, Rome and Tokyo have been discontinued and the one to Manila was cut upon occupation of that city by the Japanese.

At the end of 1941 there were 634,151 stockholders of record, an increase of 3249 over 1940. The average number of shares held per stockholder was 29.

The total 1941 payroll of the system, including Western Electric and Bell Laboratories was $723,418,000, an increase of $114,936,000 over 1940.

More than 5700 employes of the system were in military service at the end of the year.

In his summation, Gifford described the company as "an American institution which has furnished our country with the best telephone service in the world—an example of the superiority of free enterprise in a free country."

Union Electric Sale Deferred

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 19.—The North American Co., billion-dollar public utility holding company, today halted its plans for the sale of its controlling interest in the Union Electric Co. of Missouri to await "more suitable market conditions."

Postponement of further action on the proposed scale was announced by Edward L. Shea, North American Co. president, after a special meeting of directors.

Public offering of the 2,695,000 Union Electric shares through a Nation-wide underwriting syndicate had been scheduled for next Tuesday, but Shea said that in view of the directors' action the North American Co. has requested that tomorrow's hearing before the Securities and Exchange Commission for consideration of the transaction be deferred.

Union Electric is one of the major groups of the North American system. Plans for divestment of ownership by North American were undertaken last fall after the Securities and Exchange Commission indicated it would order the holding company to restrict its interests to one integrated utility system. Subsequently, the North American Co. president said the company, if forced to realign in this manner might accept the alternative of dissolution.

It was North American Co.'s intention to apply proceeds from the sale of Union Electric shares, which represent the entire outstanding issue, to the retirement of the former's outstanding debentures.

Rail Loadings Off Slightly in Week

By the Associated Press.

The Association of American Railroads reported yesterday that 782,699 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the week ending last Saturday.

This was a decrease of 1361 cars, or 0.2 per cent, compared with the preceding week; an increase of 61,523 cars, or 8.5 per cent, compared with a year ago, and an increase of 174,462 cars, or 28.7 per cent, compared with 1940.

A substantial drop in grain and grain products was chiefly responsible for the contra-seasonal decline in total loadings. Coal, however, showed marked improvement.

The Associated Press seasonally adjusted index of loadings, based on 1929-'30 as 100, declined to 89.3, compared with 90.1 the previous week, and 82.3 a year ago.

87 Rails Show 25.8% Gain in January Gross

By the Associated Press

The Association of American Railroads reported yesterday that 87 class 1 railroads had estimated operating revenues of $391,933,512 in January, compared with $311,436,431 in January, 1941, an increase of 25.8 per cent.

The reporting railroads the association said, represent 82.5 per cent of total operating revenues.

Passenger revenues totaled $45,277,735, compared with $33,255,604.

Latest Profit Statements

Western Union Telegraph Co. announced its net earned income for 1941 totaled $7,366,240, after provision for Federal taxes, compared with $3,621,581 in 1940. The company said a more detailed discussion of the results of the year would appear in the annual report of the company, to be issued next month.

Tubize Chatillon Corporation, rayon manufacturers, reported for 1941 net income after all charges, including Federal income and excess profits taxes, of $1,393,638, equal to 86 cents a share on the common stock. This compared with $1,509,520, or $1.24 a common share, in 1940.

New York Air Brake Co. reported for 1941 net profit of $1,309,770, equal to $5.05 a share on the capital stock, compared with $1,046,656, or $4.04 a share, in 1940.

American News Co. for the year ended December 31 showed net profit of $1,117,899, equal to $2.65 a share against $1,108,595 or $2.63 a share in 1940. Through subsidiaries the company distributes newspapers and magazines and operates a chain of restaurants covering many cities.

Kroger Grocery and Baking Co's. net earnings for 1941 were $4,970,102, equal to $2.71 a share after provision for Federal taxes on income and preferred dividends. The earnings compare with $4,607,126, equal to $2.51 a share, in 1940.

American Woolen Net in Year Soars To $11.23 a Share

New York, Feb. 19 (AP).—The American Wool Co. reported today a balance carried to earned surplus for 1941 of $6,943,386 against $3,154,464 in 1940, an increase of more than 100 per cent.

The 1941 net equaled $11.23 a common share after preferred dividend requirements, compared with a 1940 common share earning of $1.76.

Sales in 1941, less discounts, returns and allowances, amounted to $145,748,428, compared with $76,560,111 in 1940. United States Government billings totaled $72,337,589, against $22,231,405 a year earlier. Unfilled orders at the end of 1941, totaled $96,213,807, of which $64,401,551 represented Government contracts.

Moses Pendleton, president, said the directors had ordered the creation of a special contingency reserve of two million dollars to provide for inventory and other losses which may occur at the end of the war.

Baltimore-Philadelphia Ship Line Suspended

Baltimore, Feb. 19 (AP).—The shipping link between this port and Philadelphia, unbroken for more than a century, has been cut by the war.

M. R. Green, manager, said the Ericsson Line had suspended service to Philadelphia for the duration of the war. Vessels had linked Baltimore and Philadelphia via the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal since 1828. The Ericsson Line entered the trade in 1844 and took over its predecessors.

Until the suspension was ordered, the line operated two freight vessels. Passenger service was discontinued in 1936.

The line is the third in Baltimore to suspend sailings during the war. The Merchants and Miners Transportation Co. and the Bull Line previously announced suspension of coastwise service.

Your Federal Income Tax

No. 7—Checking Delinquents

The Bureau of Internal Revenue has at its command many sources for checking up deliquent taxpayers. One of these is the "information at source" provision of the Internal Revenue Code, under which persons, "in whatever capacity acting," are required to report on Form 1099, to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue at Washington, D. C., payments of fixed or determinable income to another in the calendar year of 1941 of $750 or more. If the recipient is married, and is a citizen or resident of the United States, reports need not be made of salary or other compensation for personal services unless the payments aggregate $1500 or more; if the marital status of the payee is unknown to the payer, the payee is considered a single person for the purpose of filing an information return of salary or other compensation for personal services.

Fixed or determinable income includes wages, salaries, royalties, premiums, rent, interest, etc. A separate return of information for each employee is required of employers. The requirement are not limited to periodical payments, but a single payment must be reported. Domestic and resident foreign corporations are required to make a separate report, Form 1099, of dividends or distributions for each individual, citizen or resident of the United States, resident fiduciary or a resident partnership any member of which is a citizen or resident, who has paid $100 or more during the calendar year 1941.

All persons or organizations acting at any time during the year 1941 as broker or other agent in stock, bond or commodity transactions (including banks which handle clearing orders for depositors or custodian accounts), are required to file annual returns of information on Form 1100 with respect to all customers, depositors or accounts for whom or which the total amount of the sales of securities or commodities, or the total market value of the securities exchanged, is $25,000 or more during the calendar year 1941 and each subsequent calendar year, with certain exceptions. A separate Form 1100 must be prepared for each customer, depositor or account for whom or which business was transacted during the year, and must show the name and address and other information provided for in the form.

Information returns are carefully checked with individual returns of taxpayers. Thousands of delinquent returns and additional revenue amounting to millions of dollars have been secured as the result of the examination of information returns.

124 Million Subscribed To Canadian War Loan

Ottawa, Ont., Feb. 10.—Canadian Press)—Canadians subscribed $39,140,250 yesterday to Canada's second victory loan for $800,000,000 and brought total three-day subscriptions to $124,576,250.

Market Tries Auction Block

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 19.—The New York Stock Exchange got a workout with the new system of "auction block" merchandising methods today and many Wall Streeters pronounced it a success.

Under a special dispensation of the Securities and Exchange Commission the exchange has been granted temporary authority to advertise on the ticker tape the fact that a certain broker has a certain block of stock for sale at a certain price. The offer is good for three hours.

Today a block of 2,958 shares of Bon Ami "B" was put up at $37.37½ a share with the stipulation that any broker selling all or any part would receive $1 a share commission. That was at 1:48 p. m.

At 2:20 p. m. orders began to come in and before the close at 3 o'clock there were 18 transactions involving 1775 shares. Nine different firms got customers interested in the stock. The largest number of shares sold to any one was 500 and the smallest 10. Under the arrangement brokers cannot take the stock for their own account and claim the commission at the same time.

Billion Expended On Chemical Plant

New York, Feb. 19 (AP).—Nearly a billion dollars was spent last year for new chemical plants to produce powder, explosives and chemical munitions, Chemical & Metallurgical Engineering" says in its annual review. Most of the money came from Government sources.

Practically all chemical plants operated at full capacity during the year, the review said, but no surplus stocks were held either by producers or consumers. Industrial consumption of chemicals increased about 15 per cent while direct military needs and exports increased much more.

The publication said that while the current production rate was considerably above the 1941 average it must be further expanded to take care of essential requirements.

Timid Bidding Buoys Pivotal Securities; Steels, Motors and Rails Lead Recovery

New York, Feb. 19.—Stocks negotiated a mild recovery sortie in today's market notwithstanding the continued lack of outstanding bullish news from the war.

The list was hesitant at the start but timid bidding for steels, motors, rails and specialties enabled favorites to tack on gains of fractions to a point or so. Many leaders, however, were unable to shake off minus signs and extreme advances were shaded at the close.

The Associated Press average was up .1 of a point at 38.8, first improvement this week. Dealings picked up at intervals but there were plenty of slow periods. Transfers of 345,080 shares compared with 343,700 Wednesday.

While the Japanese were pushing their advantage in the far Pacific, hope revived in financial quarters that developments might soon take a turn for the better when word was received that United Nations reinforcements were arriving in Java. Reports of a possible reshuffling of the British cabinet also seemed to encourage speculative contingents.

The principal recovery motivator, brokers suggested, was the belief the market, which has been hovering around the low mark for the past year, was in a much healthier technical position and could rally, at least temporarily, with a little encouragement.

American Telephone added 1⅛ points to its upturn yesterday as the declaration of the regular quarterly dividend—most had expected a cut—persisted as a cheering influence.

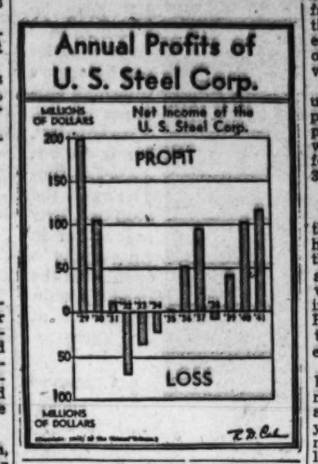
Stocks in the plus division at the finish included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Santa Fe, New York Central, Union Pacific, Great Northern, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Anaconda, Boeing, Westinghouse and Johns-Manville.

A contraseasonal decline in last week's freight loadings failed to disturb the rails which still were buoyed by expectations of a nearby boost in freight rates.

Dow Chemical and du Pont hit new lows for the move but the former came back to finish unchanged. In arrears were Standard Oil (N. J.), Texas Co., International Harvester, Douglas Aircraft, Phelps Dodge, Union Carbide and Philip Morris.

Commodities were mixed. At Chicago wheat was up ¼ to ½ cent a bushel; corn, ahead, ¼ to ⅜, and hogs, down, 15 to 25 cents. Cotton lost 40 to 50 cents a bale.

Slightly higher in the Curb were Brewster Aero, Bell Aircraft, Gulf Oil, American Gas and Republic Aviation. Pacific Salt dropped 5 points on a negligible volume. Easier were Humble Oil and American Cyanamid. Turnover here approximated 47,000 shares versus 57,000 the day before.



Carrier Bonds Surge Higher

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 19 (AP).—Railroad issues cut loose from a generally narrow bond market today and established numerous gains of major fractions to more than a point in active dealings. Pressure lessened against the British Empire loans that have slumped severely since the Japanese began scoring successes in the Pacific.

Total transactions stepped up to $10,677,250, par value, the highest since January 26, and compared with $5,712,200 on Wednesday. The Associated Press average of 20 rails gained .4 of a point at 64.0, the best performance since January 13. Other groups in the index showed little change either way.

Leading the railroad contingent, either in point of net gain or total volume (many in excess of $100,000), were Lehigh Valley 4s at 33⅜, Baltimore & Ohio stamped convertibles of '80 at 40⅞, St. Paul 5s at 12⅜, New Haven 4½s at 28¼ and the collateral 6s at 51⅛, Missouri-Kansas-Texas 4s at 28⅜ and Chicago & North Western 3½s at 31¾.

Packing Firms Indicted For Hog Price Fixing

Kansas City, Feb. 19 (AP).—Indictments charging Armour & Co., Swift & Co., four other concerns and six individuals with conspiracy to violate the Sherman anti-trust law in the operation of the St. Joseph, Mo., hog market were returned today by a Federal grand jury.

The indictments charge that through agreement and concerted action by the defendants there was unreasonable suppression of competition in the sale of hogs on the St. Joseph market and the prevention of the formation of hog prices by free and competitive bidding and buying.

Hog producers in Missouri, Iowa, Kansas and Nebraska were misled with respect to prices paid for hogs on the St. Joseph market, the indictment contends, and the effects were that the producers were defrauded.

Utility to Redeem Bonds

New York, Feb. 19 (AP).—Directors of the National Power & Light Co., an intermediate holding company of the Electric Bond & Share Co. group, voted today to call for payment March 23 the, the concern's two million dollars of 5 per cent debentures due May 1, 2030 at 106 and accrued interest.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Feb. 19 (AP).—The grain market registered another feeble advance today, and although buying was small, fractional gains were held at the close, despite profit-taking and hedging sales.

Limited buying orders from mills, corn processors, feed manufacturers and merchandisers, as well as professional traders, more than offset the comparatively meager selling pressure, but the market again was without sufficient follow-up support. Brokers blamed this on the caution of most dealers because of the war and uncertainty as to developments in the Government program affecting grains.

Col. Pipes Dies; Chief Surgeon At Soldiers Home

Col. Henry F. Pipes, 63, chief surgeon at the United States Soldiers' Home, died yesterday at Walter Reed Hospital.

Born in Cameron, W. Va., Col. Pipes earned his M. D. degree at Columbian University, now George Washington University, in 1902, and was graduated with honors from the Army Medical School here two years later.

Among his stations were the Surgeon General's Office here, Fort Slocum, N. Y.; Schofield Barracks, Hawaii; Fort Humphreys, Va., and Beaumont Hospital, Tex., before coming to the Soldiers' Home in 1937.

He leaves his wife, Charlotte, and a son, Robert L. Pipes. Services will be held at 11 a. m. tomorrow in Fort Myer Chapel with Chaplain John C. W. Linsley officiating. Burial with military honors will follow in Arlington Cemetery.

Lewis W. Mann, Well-Known Auto Dealer, Dies at 45

Lewis W. Mann, 45, of 818 Delafield Place Northwest, well known auto dealer, died yesterday at his home following an illness of several months.

Mr. Mann was District manager of the Buick division, General Motors, and manager of the Mann Motor Co., Silver Spring. A native of Port Huron, Mich., he came to Washington 10 years ago.

Surviving are his wife, Cecelia; three children Patricia, Jean, and Ralph; a brother, Joseph, of Chester, Pa.; a sister, Mrs. Jessie Miller, of Detroit, and another sister in Boston.

Services will be held tomorrow afternoon at the Warner E. Pumphrey funeral home, 8424 Georgia Avenue, Silver Spring. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Listen! with Glynn

Kate Smith, the CBS songstress, voted by the Nation's radio editors as their favorite popular singer, never studied a note of music in her life. One of America's great singers, Kate continually amazes conventional musicians by her unorthodox success as a vocalist, and continually delights radio listeners by her perfectly natural interpretation of songs.

The Songbird of the South never "studies" a new song, nor an old one, either, for that matter. She just "sings" it, according to Jack Miller, who has been her musical director for 10 years.

"Kate is musically unorthodox in every way," Miller declares. "You never know what she will want to sing for a program. Sometimes she will hear a song on the radio, like it and decide that she want's that number for her program. Usually she knows the selection after hearing it twice. She'll sing it over the telephone to me, or our pianist, and we will make the arrangements accordingly.

"Next time, perhaps, one of us will receive a song from a music publisher, we'll discuss it and decide that the number is one that she would like. One of us will play it over once or twice on the piano; Kate sing it. She decides almost instantly whether or not she likes the composition, hits the key she likes, and that is all there is to it until rehearsal time.

"But," concludes Mr. Miller, rather ruefully, "that doesn't mean that we don't have to work like the devil on the orchestral and choral arrangements ourselves."

Contract Bridge

J. G. H. submits this deal on which daring paid dividends. He jumped to three no trump on the strength of a solid club suit, though he was not prepared to stop all side suits. He made his contract, but now he is worried about his bidding. He writes:

"Could you give your opinion of my bidding on this hand? I sat North:

♠ A 6
♡ J 10 8

SOUTH
♠ 8 5 4
♡ 9 7 3
◇ A Q J 3 2

The bidding went:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♣	Pass	1 ◇
Pass	3 NT	Pass	Pass
Pass

"The adverse hearts break 4—3 and three no trump is made. I would like to know: (1) Is one club a bad bid (with a heart response the hand is close to slam)? (2) Is the jump to three no trump asking for trouble?

"P. S.—I bid an opening club that is nonforcing and may or may not have clubs. It just opens the bidding."

It seems to us that our contributor used excellent strategy in jumping to three no trump after the diamond reply by his partner. The oportunity to turn in an easy game through the long club suit was too fine to pass up. He had a very god opening bid; no one could criticize that.

2 Die, 40 Hurt As N. Y.-Miami Trains Collide

By the United Press

Hypoluxo, Fla., Feb. 19.—Two trainmen were killed and 40 passengers injured today when two of the Seaboard Air Line Railroad's premier Diesel-powered New York-Miami trains — the southbound Orange Blossom special and the northbound Sun Queen—crashed head-on.

Seaboard officials said they were unable to give the cause of the accident pending an investigation, but reported that the Sun Queen had been scheduled to take a siding just north of the wreck scene to permit the Orange Blossom to come through on the single-track main line.

William Eddy, a West Palm Beach policeman who was one of the first to reach the scene, said a member of the Sun Queen's train crew told him that the northbound train had been having engine trouble just before the wreck and had slowed to a speed of 7 or 8 miles an hour. He quoted the crewman as saying the Sun Queen would have reached the safety of the siding in another minute.

The dead were J. W. Browning, 66-year-old engineer of the Sun Queen, from Plant City, Fla., and Fireman T. A. Goode, 38, of the Orange Blossom Special, from Tampa, Fla.

"It was one hell of an explosion," said Mario Berini, a New York operatic baritone who was in the Orange Blossom's club car, directly behind the baggage car. "The baggage car did a flip-flop on top of our car and both caught fire from the burning oil."

The injured treated here:

Max Semer and Mrs. Semer, Perth Amboy, N. J.; Jackie Malin, New York City; Mrs. Millie Reif, New York; Mrs. Cecilie Bartelt, Haddon Heights, N. J.; Milton Kissen, New York City; Mrs. Belle Levinson, Baltimore; Mrs. Emily Riley and Dr. Thomas Riley, Clifton, N. J.; Manuel David Ebo, Brooklyn; Lesper N. Hayes, Orange Blossom engineer, Wildwood, Fla.; Sidney Kramer, New York City; Allen M. Dood, La Grange, Ill.; John A. McEvery, New York City; Joseph P. Green, Wildwood, Fla.; L. W. Wikenden, Toledo, Ohio; Mrs. Wikenden, his wife, minor shock.

Twenty-seven Negroes were taken to Pine Ridge Hospital with minor injuries but only four were admitted because of inadequate facilities. Others were treated at physicians' offices.

3 More Card Parties to Aid Blood Bank

Three more card party benefits for the Children's Hospital Blood and Serum Bank were announced yesterday.

But many more are still needed to insure the success of the 1942 campaign, said General Chairman James H. Lemon, urging individuals and organizations to hold similar benefits in the next few weeks.

Sergeant Jasper Post and Auxiliary Unit, American Legion, has scheduled a party for next Tuesday night at the legion's clubrooms, 2437 Fifteenth Street Northwest. John P. Lester is commander of the post and Mrs. Katherine Abreo heads the auxiliary.

James E. Walker Auxiliary Unit will hold a card tournament on February 27 in Odd Fellows' Hall, Ninth and T Streets Northwest, with Mrs. Martha Campbell and Mrs. Fairfax Lomax in charge of arrangements.

The fourth annual Columbia Country Club benefit bridge is scheduled for Monday night, under the chairmanship of Wilbur R. Garrett. He is assisted by Mrs. A. S. Gardiner, Mr. and Mrs. Harry T. Peters, and Eugene Krewson.

Harry W. Brown, blood bank campaign chairman of George Washington Post, American Legion, announced that a benefit dance will be held in March on completion of the series of card parties which are being held at the homes of members. The first was on February 14, at the home of George F. Hooven, post vice commander. Another was held last night, with Charles L. Schuettler as host.

Souvenir tally cards may be obtained free on the first floor of The Post Building, to be used as tickets of admission to card parties for the benefit of the blood bank fund.

The fourth annual campaign is being sponsored by the American Legion, Washington Bridge League and The Post.

Thieves Get $245 In Coupons, Stamps

Internal revenue stamps and Brazil coupons worth $245 were stolen from the office of Robinson, Robaugh & Lukens, brokers, in the Union Trust Co. Building, Fifteenth and H Streets Northwest, yesterday.

The loss was reported to police by Edward Schultz, of 1324 Bryant Street Northwest, cashier, who said that payment on the stamps had been stopped.

Draft-Dodger, 20, Talks Over His 'Ideals' With His Father

By The Associated Press

Chicago, Feb. 19.—A young draft-dodger met his dad today in the office of the United States marshal.

The son, David Nyvall, jr., 20, an art student, and his father, 51, a music teacher, embraced.

They talked of the boy's beliefs—beliefs which prompted him to plead guilty to refusing to register for Selective Service last Monday because he held no "grudges" against the Japanese or other peoples, and "didn't want to kill anybody."

They talked, too, of the dad's beliefs—beliefs which he had mentioned yesterday in his letter to his son:

"My very dear, dear son:

"It occurs to me, as it occurs to you, that this is a war of ideals. These ideals are the ideals of which you and I so often spoke and for which you are willing to suffer. Won't you believe, David, that a frank and open declaration of faith in these ideals might prove to be of tremendous service and inspiration to many, many people?

"Only a great, strong and idealistic man will acknowledge an error in judgment. You be that man, David Always with deepest affection.

"Your Dad."

The son faced his father, held up the letter and said:

"You say this is a war of ideals. It is not. Murder is no ideal of mine."

"Son, you should see some of the letters—50 or more—I have received from people," the father replied. "They sympathize with you. Those that applaud your actions—well, you would not spit on them.

"You said you wanted to give. This is your chance to give. You want to be a leader. This is your first great opportunity to lead and to serve."

"Well, I don't know," the son wavered. "Dad, give me some time to think."

The son went back to his cell. His father declined to post $1500 bond, electing to let him stay in jail until he makes his decision on serving his country. Nyvall, sr., told reporters:

"He's beginning to hesitate in his foolish ideas. I think I'm beginning to convince him."

Oust 'Mealymouths,' Rep. Ford Demands

Representative Leland Ford (Republican), of California, asserted in the House yesterday that unless the Federal Government had a thorough house cleaning of "mealymouth, half-baked, socialistic, racketeering incompetents, we may lose this war."

"We are going to have our hands full winning this war," he said, "and we can't do it by running a three-ring circus, of which one ring would represent the war effort, as against the other two rings representing a lot of these socialistic experiments, these unnecessary things that never should have become a part of Federal Government."

MacArthur's Son,4, To Mark Birthday In Bomb Shelter

Copyright by The Chicago Sun

In an underground refuge on Corregidor, 4-year-old Arthur MacArthur, will celebrate his fourth birthday anniversary today.

Perhaps there will be no birthday party, because shells from Japanese heavy guns on the Cavite shore of Manila Bay pound at the American-held fortress. But there were indications here that there may be other children on Corregidor who might participate in a party, if Mrs. MacArthur, the boy's mother, or others have time to arrange it.

War Department officials indicated that high ranking American and Philippine authorities — such as President Manual Quezon of the Philippine Commonwealth, or Francis B. Sayre, American high commissioner to the Philippines—may be in the powerful fortress.

Mrs. Douglas MacArthur and son Arthur were evacuated to Corregidor in late December from Manila, where they had lived in a hotel penthouse provided by the Philippine Commonwealth.

Knox Queried On Winchell's Radio Permit

By the United Press

Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox was asked by members of the House Naval Affairs Committee yesterday to explain why Newspaper Columnist Walter Winchell is permitted to make radio broadcasts sponsored by a hand lotion firm while on active duty as a naval officer.

"Winchell should be assigned to duty at Samoa or permitted to resign," one committee member said.

The columnist, a lieutenant commander in the Naval Reserve, has been on active duty since the Nation entered the war and thus wears full uniform. He said in his first wartime broadcast that the Navy had asked him to continue his newspaper and radio activity.

Knox was understood to have told the committee that he knew very little about Winchell's case and that he would ask Rear Admiral Randall Jacobs, chief of the Bureau of Navigation, to supply details.

Dear Dr. ——

WELL, it happened! It had my "First Aid" test Thursday morning, February 19th . . . and a most practical test it was. I almost got into a fight but I stood up for the principles which you so ably drilled into my cranium.

While driving up Massachusetts Avenue Thursday morning at 8 o'clock, I was just about to enter the east side of the underpass when I saw a small crowd hovering above a man lying on the street. It was an automobile accident. He was hit by a car. I hurriedly parked my car, grabbed the blanket from the back seat and carefully rushed across the busy street. (Carefully rushed because I didn't want to become another victim.)

The man was shivering and not one of the 10 onlookers thought of covering him up. You see, they weren't "First Aiders." Now, your impressive teachings came to my mind.

I first looked for bleeding. There was none. (And I was all set to apply Arterial Pressure, if necessary.) I then examined him to see if he was breathing. His pulse was beating and his chest was heaving. So he was still alive. Next I looked to see if his limbs were distorted . . . meaning fractures. None were. And I didn't have to look for poisoning. I then covered him with the blanket but he was still cold. I asked the gaping crowd for more blankets. None was available so I took off my overcoat and when I did four more men took off theirs and we carefully covered him, making sure his feet were warm. As you recall, it was freezing cold Thursday and we just about froze, too. More blankets came and he was carefully covered to keep him warm and prevent shock.

Just then I noticed that his eyelids fluttered. So I knelt down, chummy-like and tried to soothe him. I asked him to move his fingers (phalanges to you) and illustrated with mine in front of his face. He moved his fingers of one hand and then the other . . . so I felt that his arms were not broken. Then I asked him to move his feet. And they moved all right.

Treating for shock, as you told us, is a very important part of first aid, so I tried to calm his fears by saying that there weren't any bones broken. And that an ambulance had already been called. His tinge of a smile made me feel good all over for I felt he was relieved to know that his bones were still in one piece.

I then asked him where it hurt, but he shook his head negatively, so I deduced that his neck wasn't broken for he could move his head.

Just then a spectator wanted to lift him up and carrying him to the hospital. Right then and there I jumped up and said that this man couldn't be moved . . . that we must wait for the ambulance or doctor. The dope of a spectator started to get belligerent and appealed to others standing around that the victim should be moved for the ground was cold.

Well, the man started to shove me aside. I had visions of pulling a Joe Louis. And I shoved him away from the victim. I then appealed to several more composed onlookers and explained that I wasn't a doctor but that I have taken First Aid. (I said "have taken" for if I said "was taking," they might think that I wasn't prepared to do "First Aid" work. So I had to tell a white lie.) I told them that an injured person should not be moved under any circumstances. And then I told the belligerent spectator that if the man had a broken neck or back and he was moved, it might paralyze or kill him and if he were moved I would hold this man responsible for the victim's death.

I can laugh about it now for this man didn't insist any more. He didn't want to be held responsible for anybody's death so he shut up like a disturbed clam.

Just then another "First Aid" man came to the scene and he confirmed what I said about not moving the victim. And thus, the others were also convinced. A dentist coming upon the scene said not to disturb the man on the street.

I then knelt down beside the victim again and tried to allay and soothe his fears . . . treating for shock, you know. I said that the ambulance was already on its way and he'd soon have medical attention.

The thankful expression of his eyes repaid me for anything I did in my humble way. Just then the ambulance drove up . . . about 15 or 20 minutes after I came. The interne looked for bleeding and then for broken bones. None seemed apparent so the victim was carefully lifted onto the stretcher and taken to the hospital.

You know, I had a sense of pride on being able in my little way to administer "First Aid" to that man on the street. I felt as if I were some good, anyway, to my fellow men. My many thanks to you for being so impressive and drilling into our minds the first essentials of "First Aid."

Sincerely,

I. A.
